Munitions Cash Went to Hitler, U.S. Probe Told

Charges of Widespread Gun Smuggling Into Germany Heard.

Close Censorship Placed on Cables

Du Pont Agent Abroad Said to Be Alleged International Spy.

By Robert C. Albright.

Charges of widespread smuggling of arms into Germany in violation of the Versailles treaty, and a statement that European munitions interests are backing Hitler, yesterday carried the Senate's armament inquiry into new international fields.

Developments came in the wake of close censorship of a few committee documents, following an early morning conference between Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of Commerce Roper and members of the investigating group.

Four cablegrams involving the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co. were withheld from evidence, after Chief Investigator Stephen Raushenbush disclosed their publication might lead to "a serious situation in a South American country, and probable destruction of life and property."

The country in question was Argentine, an unquestioned authority stated.

Alleged Spy Is Agent.

Later the hearing suddenly switched to continental fields, where the Du Ponts were charged with engaging Del Fungo Giera, alleged "international spy," who at various times represented 13 nations, as the American powder makers' exclusive agent in Germany.

Giera, who invented a powder he claimed would "revolutionize" the munitions industry, on February 1, 1933, was employed to sell E. I. du Pont de Nemours products in Germany under a contract that was destroyed the next day and replaced by a new one, the committee was told.

The second contract, negotiated late the same month, it was developed, placed definite restrictions on Giera's operations and specifically mentioned the arms prohibitions imposed upon Germany—a situation not referred to in the first agreement.

"Rumors," and later bare statements that American arms have been smuggled into Germany by interests entirely apart from the Du Pont company, were freely referred to in company correspondence read into the evidence.

"Regular Business."

"I heard on my visit to Holland that German political associations, like the Nazi and others, are nearly all armed with American revolvers and Thompson machine guns, and that there is a regular business of bootlegging of small weapons from America to Germany, the center of which is Cologne and most of the bootlegging being done by Dutch."

So ran a letter from William N. Taylor, the Du Pont's Paris representative, dated June 27, 1932.

Six months later, on January 9, 1933, Taylor again referred to great quantities of American arms bootlegged into Germany through Holland, and added:

"So far, I have kept away from these smugglers, but I am going to Hamburg at the first reasonable opportunity and call on them to see what information I can get about the business."

The same month, Taylor wrote Maj. K. K. V. Casey, chief of Du

Climbers Frozen On German Peak

7, Including 1 American, Die on Zugspitze.

Hamburg, Germany, Sept. 14 (AP). On famous Mount Zugspitze, the highest in Germany, seven mountain climbers were found dead today, probably from freezing. One of them was Karl Amman, a resident of East Hartford, Conn.

Missing for two days, the mountain climbers, three of them women, were believed to have lost their way. The bodies were found upon a ledge, high up the side of dangerous Zugspitze, widely known for its difficult, deep gorges and sharp precipices.

Amman, 28, had been in Bavaria several weeks. He was reported to be an experienced mountain climber.

Flames Spray Trolley; 20 Passengers Escape

Chicago, Sept. 14 (AP).—A score of passengers escaped from a burning street car today when it was sprayed with flaming gasoline after a head-on collision with a motor truck.

Edward Ison, truck driver for the Clover Motor Freight Co., of Hartford, Mich., said he had swerved to avoid hitting a small child who ran across the street. His truck plunged into the front of the trolley car, and the gasoline tank exploded.

Virginia Flood Spreads Death, Wrecks Homes

Fireman Killed, Bridges Destroyed, Trains Are Halted by Torrent.

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Death and destruction lay in the wake of widespread floods in this section of the State tonight as a record rainstorm swelled streams over their banks and flooded the Rappahannock River to the highest level since 1889, the year of the Johnstown flood.

Selmo Ferri, Virginia Central Railroad fireman, was killed when his train crashed through a rain-weakened trestle about 4 miles north of Hazel Run. Four other members of the train crew escaped without injury.

Falmouth, directly north of the Rappahannock from here, was the hardest hit. Flood waters swirled through the streets. The foundations of several homes were washed away. The front of one residence

W. A. Harriman And 10 Others Indicted in N.Y.

Charged With Sending Out Deceptive Financial Data on Bank.

New York, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Indictments on charges of sending out deceptive financial statements were returned today by the grand jury against ten former directors and one former officer of the New York Title & Mortgage Co.

Among those indicted was W. Averill Harriman, close friend of President Roosevelt. Others were James A. O'Gorman, former United States Senator; J. Stewart Baker, chairman of the Bank of Manhattan; George T. Mortimer, former president of Title & Mortgage; Fred J. Fuller, Mortimer's successor and president of companies which took over business of Title & Mortgage; Harry A. Kahler, former chairman of the title company board; H. Pushae Williams, former chairman of loan committee; Lewis L. Clark, Joseph L. Obermayer, Stanley P. Jadwin and Park A. Rowley.

All are charged with misdemeanors, and Fuller, Kahler and Williams are also charged with felonies. All will be arraigned Monday, but only those charged with felonies must appear in person.

The charges grow out of a financial statement issued dated December 31, 1932, sent to 55,000 stockholders and certificate holders and employed as a means of selling additional certificates. Cash on hand was listed as $8,823,000, but according to District Attorney William C. Dodge, Fuller, Kahler & Williams arranged loans of $1,000,000 each with the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., and the Irving Trust Co., the loans extending only from December, 1932 to January 4, 1933, and never representing more than bookkeeping transactions.

The statement also listed as "available for sale" bonds and mortgages at $30,208,000 when, the district attorney charges, $12,000,000 of these had been pledged to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Irving Trust Co., and were not in the title company's control.

All of the men were members of the board of directors except Obermayer, who was vice president and treasurer.

Turner, Pangborn at Brooklyn.

Change Seen In U. S. Rule Of Securities

Action Is Expected to Follow Adoption of Trading Laws.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

An effort to make more practical the regulations governing the registration of new security issues under the 1933 securities act has been undertaken by the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission, Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the agency, revealed yesterday.

Mr. Kennedy said the commission was "going over the regulations for the registration of new issues line by line with the idea of making them more practical and, if possible, less cumbersome."

He said some progress had been made but that he did not wish to discuss the commission's work in that regard until it had completed the job of giving the regulations in force a microscopic examination and had finally agreed on what changes should be made.

The regulations under examination were drafted by the Federal Trade Commission, which administered the 1933 act until September 1 last, when jurisdiction passed to the new Securities and Exchange Commission, established under this year's stock market control act.

Called Too Severe.

The existing regulations have been sharply assailed in financial quarters as being unduly severe and requiring information unnecessary for a determination of a security's value and expensive for issuers to supply. Revision of some of the regulations, which have been blamed for the paralysis of the capital issue market in recent months, would help the situation, it has been contended.

Mr. Kennedy's statement was the first announcement that the Securities Commission was giving serious consideration to revising the regulations which require issuers of new stocks to supply in great detail varied information, which must be assembled by expert engineers and accountants in many cases.

Asked if it was the commission's intention to "weaken" the effectiveness of the 1933 securities act, Mr. Kennedy replied:

"I said to make the regulations more practical."

It may be several weeks before the commission reaches a final determination regarding the registration requirements for new securities. For the present the agency is chiefly concerned with the formulation and adoption of rules to enforce those sections of the stock market act relating to manipulative practices which become effective October 1.

Moving Cautiously.

Mr. Kennedy said that in framing the rules to govern security trading after October 1, the commission was moving cautiously and only after thorough examination of the possible effects of proposed regulations. The commission is consulting frequently with New York Stock Exchange officials, investment bankers and stock brokers.

The chairman said there would be "no upheaval" on the stock markets on October 1, when his agency actually assumes charge of security

Princess Shops, But Mother-in-Law Has Final Word

Paris, Sept. 14 (AP).—The traditional carefree shopping whims of a princess were revealed today as not so carefree after all. They are, in fact, apparently subject to the desires of a princess' mother-in-law-to-be.

This, at least, is the case of Princess Marina of Greece, who is engaged to be married to Prince George of England. The princess came to Paris to buy Parisian clothes—in a dressmaking shop run by Capt. Edward Molyneux, an Englishman, of course.

And that was all very well, except Capt. Molyneux disclosed that Queen Mary must approve the clothes in her son's wife's trousseau before the purchase is completed.

Wilson Peace Ship in Demand To House Floating Exposition

An effort is being made to charter the steamer George Washington from the Government to accommodate a "floating exposition" in which displays taken from the Chicago Century of Progress would be installed, The Post learned yesterday.

The purpose is to take the "floating fair" to Latin America to stimulate trade for American business. It is being organized by a private concern, the Reciprocal Trade Co. of Delaware.

The company is in negotiation with the State and Commerce Departments now. It proposes to charter the George Washington from the Shipping Board. This famous ship, which carried Woodrow Wilson to the Paris peace conference, has been out of commission several years, tied up near Solomons Island in the Chesapeake. The company would recondition the ship and be under way by mid-January if terms are agreed upon soon with the Shipping Board, William J. Heffernan, counsel for the Reciprocal Trade Co., said yesterday.

Some 300 commercial displays could be accommodated. Portable movie equipment would be installed. It is said several large corporations, including a leading automobile concern, are ready to place exhibits.

State department officials are awaiting more details regarding the representative character of the exhibitors before agreeing to provide the cooperation of American consular officers at ports of call. South American and Caribbean ports would be visited first.

Brussels, Sept. 14.—The Hapsburgs, at last, are going home to Austria.

Sources close to the royal family that once ruled the mighty empire of Austria-Hungary said this evening that former Empress Zita, widow of Emperor Charles I, who lost his throne in the upheaval that followed the World War, expects to be living in Austria by Christmas.

Preparations are already under way at Steenockerzeel Castle here

U. S. Drifting Into League, Geneva Hears

Haitian Delegate Calls Membership Logical Goal of Roosevelt.

Geneva, Sept. 14 (AP).—President Roosevelt's political roadway leads the United States logically to Geneva and membership in the League of Nations, Constantin Mayard, Haitian delegate, told the League Assembly tonight.

In an address which diverted minds of delegates from European political controversies, Mayard praised the American Executive for his action in removing marines from Haiti.

"A new era of confidence has come to Latin America," he asserted, "as the result of Roosevelt's comprehension."

The Roosevelt attitude toward the problems of Haiti, Cuba and Nicaragua constitutes the milestones leading to Geneva, Mayard said. "That is our fervent hope," he added.

Poland Maintains Stand.

Meanwhile, Poland refused to let criticism shake her decision not to let any international body meddle with her handling of the racial, religious and linguistic minorities within her borders.

Joseph Beck, Poland's foreign minister, who yesterday startled the Assembly with his announcement that the Warsaw government no longer considered her minority commitments binding, told American correspondents Poland maintains her refusal.

He denied, however, that Poland was contemplating resigning from the league as the result of British, French and Italian broadsides leveled at her action.

Under the Polish constitution, he said, all minorities, including the Jewish, will continue to be equal before the law. (Some 2,000,000 Jews live in Poland.)

Russian Situation Eased.

Meanwhile, the question of Russia's joining the league—shoved into the background in the sensation created by Beck's speech—appeared on the verge of successful solution.

Reports were that Edouard Benes, Czechoslovakian foreign minister, was motoring to Evian-les-Bains, France, tonight to confer with Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs.

Substance of the invitation to be extended by numerous member states has been drafted and di-

Oh, I Say There! 'Chute Jump Puts Him in Lions' Den

Chessington, England, Sept. 14 (AP).—Ben Turner, parachute jumper, floated smoothly down from Surrey's skies this afternoon to land safely—smack in a lions' den.

Suspended precariously on the bars atop of the cage, Turner's emotions were—to put it mildly—mixed, as two full-grown growling beasts leaped time and time again at his legs, just out of their reach.

Firemen quickly manned hose to quiet the animals and trainers fired pistols, driving the lions to the corner of the cage, while Turner unharnessed himself and clambered down to safety.

Fishermen Survive Battle With Whale

Chiclayo, Peru, Sept. 14 (AP).—Four weary, frightened seamen brought their half-sinking fishing boat limping into Chiclayo today to tell of an attack by a whale 50 feet long.

The big sea beast charged their small sailing craft repeatedly, the men said, swinging its tail furiously. A huge hole was knocked in the hull.

Need for Army In R. I. Fades; Strikers Quiet

Employers Backing Down, Offer Pay Increases and More Jobs.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 14 (AP).—Tension eased perceptibly on the strife-torn textile war front tonight.

Gov. Theodore G. Green, balked yesterday in his efforts to have the State Assembly authorize him to call in Federal troops to bolster the battered National Guard, declared the situation had improved so materially there would be no need for the Regular Army.

Woonsocket and Saylesville, centers of bloody fighting earlier in the week which cost two lives and sent scores to hospitals, remained quiet under the watchful eye of more than 1,000 guardsmen.

Regular Army troops, hurriedly recalled from field maneuvers in Maine and Massachusetts, remained ready for a quick push into this State, should one be ordered, while at Fort Wright on Fishers Island, N. Y., three batteries of the Eleventh Coast Artillery Regiment stood by for emergency orders.

More Connecticut Guards.

More National Guard troops were mobilized in Connecticut, although textile strike fronts reported all quiet. From Augusta, Me., came word that a provisional battalion of the Maine National Guard had been ordered to Biddeford, site of the huge Pepperell Manufacturing Co., as a precautionary measure.

Meanwhile important concessions were announced by several textile manufacturers in New England. The Berkshire Woolen Co. at Pittsfield, Mass., announced that, starting Monday, it would revert to a plan of having one worker operate a single loom instead of two as at present. This will mean employment of 74 additional workers.

At Chicopee, Mass., the Chicopee Manufacturing Co. sent out letters to its striking textile workers offering to reemploy them at a wage advance of 33 per cent on a five-day week with four six-hour shifts.

Three hundred employes of the A. D. Ellis, Inc., mills in Monson were told the mill, which closed last Friday, would go on a one-loom basis as soon as conditions favored reopening.

Reservoir Guarded.

Another development was the disclosure that six guards had been on duty all night at the Diamond Hill Reservoir of the Pawtucket water system after discovery that 25 sticks of dynamite had been stolen Wednesday from a contractor's supply house nearby. The guards were withdrawn this morning.

At Worcester, Mass., officers of every textile union in the central and eastern Massachusetts strike district planned their own relief stations where one is needed. The strike executives asserted no appeal would be made to welfare boards unless absolutely necessary.

The strike movement gained impetus in one direction during the day when a flying squadron of 150 strikers from Uxbridge descended upon Canton, Mass., and after a peaceful conference with mill owners effected the closure of two mills normally employing approximately 700 workers.

It met a rebuff in another when Westerly, R. I., police intercepted 15 automobiles bearing 75 strikers en route to the Bradford Dyeing Co., where 600 operatives are at work, and escorted them back to the main highway.

Nine Reported Slain In Salvador Revolt

San Salvador, Salvador, Sept. 14 (AP).—A revolt in Guatemala against President Ubico was reported today by the newspaper Diario Nuevo, which said two high military officials and seven officers had been executed by a firing squad.

Strike Broke Pact, Charge Of Johnson

NRA Chief Says Textile Union Head Violated His Agreement.

Declares Understanding Was Made to Prevent Previous Walkout.

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Gen. Hugh Johnson, NRA administrator, tonight charged that the National textile strike "is in absolute violation" of an understanding he had reached with Thomas McMahon before the textile code was signed. McMahon is president of the United Textile Workers Union, which called the strike.

Johnson said that McMahon sat in on the textile code hearings and agreed with the findings.

"But the moment the hearing opened," Johnson informed members of various code authorities of the metropolitan area meeting in Carnegie Hall, "and without any notice to me of a change of heart he appeared on the platform of our first great goldfish bowl proceedings and repudiated the agreement that he had made with me in the preliminary discussion.

"It was my first experience with organized labor in the textile industry, and it was not encouraging. Last June a strike was threatened in the textile industry.

"We reached an agreement on that controversy, and on that agreement the strike was called off. The present strike is in absolute violation of that understanding."

Scores Organized Labor.

Gen. Johnson also charged that "if such agreements of organized labor are worth no more than this one then that institution is not such a responsible instrumentality as can make contracts on which this country can rely."

He recounted the history of the textile situation from the beginning, telling of the part McMahon had in the negotiations. McMahon was the only textile union man mentioned.

"The textile code was the first one to be presented under NRA," he said. "I had been working on it as early as March, 1932, long before Mr. Roosevelt became President.

"After exhaustive studies it was determined that a 40-hour week would reemploy all the people normally attached to the textile industry.

One Vote Costs Congressman's Seat in Georgia

Atlanta, Sept. 14 (AP).—A single voter in a north Georgia mountain county today had promoted Judge Frank Whelchel, of the Gainesville City Court, to Congress and retired Representative John Wood to his law practice at Canton.

The vote was cast in Jackson County and gave Whelchel 1,127 to 1,126 for Wood, throwing the county's four unit votes to the Gainesville candidate and giving him the Ninth District Democratic nomination, which is equivalent to election.

Under Georgia's unit vote system, the county popular vote decides who gets the allotted unit votes, the latter carrying the nomination. The popular vote for the entire district has no bearing on the election.

300,000 Families Lose N. Y. Relief

Payments Shut Off After Tax Bill Doesn't Pass.

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—All home and work relief payments, on which 300,000 families are dependent, were ordered discontinued tonight by Commissioner of Public Welfare William Hodson. The payments totaled $700,000 a day.

His action followed announcement by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia that no further relief funds are available because the board of aldermen has not passed the relief tax bill.

President to Meet Dern Today for Conference on R. I. Strike.

(Post Staff Writer).

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 14.—The grim possibility of armed intervention by the Federal Government in the riots of Rhode Island failed to deter President Roosevelt from leaving this morning, aboard the Astor yacht Nourmahal, for the international races close to the strike scene.

These include a conference tomorrow morning at Fort Adams, near Newport, R. I., with Secretary of War George H. Dern and Maj. Gen. Fox Conner, after which the President said he will determine whether to remain close at hand aboard a destroyer or continue to the yacht races.

Mr. Roosevelt drove in a drizzling rain to the lumber yard dock at

Crew of Fishing Vessel Charged With Attack on Filipinos.

Manila, Sept. 15 (Saturday), (AP). Two United States revenue cutters were speeding through the China Sea today in hot pursuit of a Japanese fishing boat whose crew reputedly attacked and robbed three Philippine peace officers on American soil.

The cutter Banahaw was reported directly on the trail early this morning, but details of the chase were lacking because the cutter could not be reached from here by radio. The Arayat was the other cutter in the pursuit.

Both American vessels were equipped with deck guns.

The fleeing boat, Hayun Maru, a 50-footer, with a crew of 24, registered as from Takao, Formosa, presumably was heading either for home or in the direction of Borneo.

Japanese Consul General Kimura in Manila referred to the reputed attack as "outrageous," but expressed belief the men in the fleeing ship were not his countrymen.

The alleged attack occurred in Palawan Province September 11. Palawan is the westernmost island of the Philippine archipelago, southwest of Manila.

Telegrams from Gov. Higinio Mendoza of Palawan and other officials said two members of the Philippine Constabulary and a police sergeant had been attacked by men on the Hayun Maru when the trio went aboard her to inspect her traps and see that she was conforming to regulations.

The three peace officers were cut, beaten and thrown over the side as they seized the ship's log book, advices said. An American known only as Loudon rescued the trio.

For several years Japanese boats have been reported violating customs, fishing, marine and forestry regulations.

Prince of Wales Guest Aboard American Yacht

Cannes, France, Sept. 14 (AP).—Of all the invitations the Prince of Wales received during his stay at Cannes, he accepted only one.

He was guest for luncheon aboard the yacht of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Allen, of St. Louis, Mo., who have been cruising these waters recently.

Lindbergh Milks, Wife Cooks During Forced Oklahoma Stay

Woodward, Okla., Sept. 14 (AP).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife, forced down in a cornfield here yesterday when their airplane developed motor trouble, held court for hundreds of western Oklahoma plainsmen, ranchers and school children today in the modest little farm home of Homer Aitkens, where they stayed overnight.

Schools in this section were closed and teachers brought their young charges to the Aitkens farmyard in buses. There the pig-tailed farm girls curtsied to Mrs. Lindbergh and were repaid with a warm smile.

Farmers sat on the front porch with Col. Lindbergh and talked about drought, crops and the Government's farm program. They answered many questions from the flier about farming.

Arising early this morning Col. Lindbergh aided the overalled Aitkins in his morning chores while his wife helped Mrs. Aitkens prepare a farm breakfast. Late yesterday Col Lindbergh disappeared in a cornfield as the crowd began growing at the farmhouse. He did not appear again at the Aitkens home until after dark. During his 3-mile walk through the field he met Harrison Parsons, a 55-year-old rancher.

"We came back to my house," Parsons related, "for I had to do the milking. Lindy said he wanted to try his hand at it and I turned Sweetie over to him. She is gentle. He was pretty good, too. He milked five quarts."

Word was received here that a new engine for the Lindbergh ship had been placed on a train at St. Louis and would arrive here tonight. The colonel and his wife probably will remain as guests at the Aitkens home until Sunday, when they will resume their airport inspection flight.

New York Officers Seek 'Certain Men' Who Fled Fire Quiz.

Probe Hears New Blame in Disaster

Crew Member Declares Forbidden Polish Spread Flames.

Liverpool, England, Sept. 15 (Saturday) (U.P.).—British police today were reported watching incoming vessels from America on orders from New York to arrest certain witnesses said to have been involved in the burning of the Ward liner Morro Castle last Saturday.

Detectives were sent to watch all incoming vessels, it was understood, following receipt of a mysterious radio dispatch from New York, in which it was reportedly indicated that important witnesses in the Morro Castle holocaust had fled the country.

New York police, it was said, are anxious to interview certain men who have disappeared since the disaster.

Additional details were assigned, it was learned, to watch vessels clearing from Liverpool for European ports, hopeful of intercepting any person or persons seeking to escape questioning in the American sea tragedy.

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Surreptitious use of highly inflammable metal polish, banned by maritime law, aboard the cruise ship Morro Castle, was described today at the Department of Commerce investigation into the ship's fatal fire.

"Was there liquid cleaning polish used on that ship?" he was asked.

"There was."

"Very."

"Was it known to those in authority?"

"It was used around the bridge."

The inquiry heard also a New York City fireman, a passenger on the fire-wracked vessel, declare he was positive of smelling smoke as early as 12:45 a. m., although officers' reports had fixed the start of the blaze two hours later.

Fire Drill Neglect Charged.

Other witnesses declared fire drills on the vessel had been conducted haphazardly, with the passengers not participating and that even crew members failed to respond to calls.

On one occasion, the investigators were told, it was necessary for the chief officer to go below and rout out seamen from their bunks to join the fire drill.

A move by Ward Line attorneys to vacate subpenas, ordering them to produce statements and affidavits of surviving passengers for the Federal grand jury investigation, was undecided. A Federal court judge indicated his decision would be rendered tomorrow.

District Attorney Conboy opposed the motion to vacate his sub-

Alexandrian's Body Found; Ship Victim

Sea Gives Up Remains of Harry Lipscombe.

The body of Harry Lipscombe, one of the two Alexandria, Va., men who lost their lives in the Morro Castle disaster a week ago, was washed ashore yesterday at Point Pleasant, N. J., according to word received by relatives in Lynchburg, Va.

Lipscombe, 51, was a yard conductor for the Southern Railroad. He and Frederick George Faulconer, 44, chief dispatcher for the Southern, left Alexandria August 26 for a 14-day vacation trip to Havana. Faulconer's body was found Sunday, the day after fire swept the Morro Castle.

Lipscombe was a past master of the Scottish Rite Masons. He was married and the father of three daughters, June Lipscombe, Mrs. H. D. Chinn and Mrs. Harvey Butler, and one son, H. A. Lipscombe, all of Alexandria.

Burning Ship Ties Up Traffic In Canal Zone

British Freighter Makes Port; Blaze in Cargo Defies Firemen.

Balboa, Canal Zone, Sept. 14 (AP). Fire and smoke bursting forth as the hatch cover of the British freighter, Bradburn, was removed late today led port authorities to take hurried precautions to protect other shipping in the harbor.

A Canal Zone tug tied up to the ship and beached her on the mud flats off the anchorage here while docks in the vicinity were closed to traffic.

Dense clouds of smoke poured from the Bradburn's hatch, three ventilators, the crew's quarters and the quarterdeck.

Firemen, after abandoning earlier efforts to quench the flames with steam under pressure, decided to use water despite the danger of ruining the cargo of cotton aboard.

Three lines of water were turned on the vessel, the water sizzling as it hit the decks. Firemen had to stand on planks, so hot was the footing.

Meanwhile, passengers aboard the Panama Pacific liner Pennsylvania, which tied up shortly before, lined the decks watching the conflagration.

Racing 550 miles back to Balboa after the fire was discovered in her hold, the Bradburn tied up at Balboa docks this afternoon.

Officers of the Santa Rita, arriving here, charged the fire aboard their ship, as well as that which destroyed the Ward liner Morro Castle, was incendiary, the work of an "international radical organization."

The cargo of the Bradburn, which was en route from the United States to Japan when the fire was discovered, consists of 4,200 tons of cotton, 3,000 tons of phosphate and 50 tons of scrap metal.

Freighter Fire Quelled.

Colon, Panama, Sept. 14 (AP).—A fire in the coal bunkers of the Hamburg-American freighter Cassel was located and quenched today and she sailed at noon for Liverpool. The fire was discovered while the freighter was passing through the canal.

Death, Ruin Toll Of Virginia Flood

was completely demolished. Five homes were completely wrecked.

Hazel Run, a normally shallow stream, was converted into a raging torrent that tore the bridge on U. S. Route No. 2 from its piers.

At Leland, 5 miles north of here, a washout on the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad held up all trains and delayed mail deliveries until noon today.

At Falmouth water wiped away the front of the former studio of Gari Melcher, internationally famous artist. The structure was built 100 years ago of heavy stone laid by slaves.

One section of stone wall in front of the home of St. Clair Brooks was swept away, and more than 150 feet of pavement was ripped up. Water ran through the home of Walter Humphries and overturned his automobile.

Railroad officials said the Hazel Run trestle gave way after the locomotive had partially crossed it. The rear of the engine and the coal tender buckled beneath the level of the tracks.

Ferri, pinned in the wreck, was believed by Coroner W. A. Harris to have died instantly as his body was scalded with steam. He leaves his mother, Mrs. S. A. Ferri, of Brock Road, Va.

Lewis Cook, 26, and Sam Nails, 23, narrowly escaped drowning in an attempt to reach shore from a small island on which Hazel Run flood waters marooned them. Two women and a squad of police officers rescued them.

The heavy rainfall began yesterday afternoon, but showers for the two days preceding had partially raised stream levels. A steady downpour began at 6:30 p. m. continuing almost until 9 p. m. with unprecedented force. Unofficial figures set the precipitation for the day at nearly three inches.

Roe Named to Head Montgomery Post

Foreign War Veterans to Elect October 9.

Montgomery County Post, No. 2858, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has nominated J. Milton Roe, of Chevy Chase, for commander. Election will be held October 9, at which time additional nominations may be made from the floor. The term of office will begin in November.

Roe, with J. H. Hiser and Jack Persham have been appointed by Commander Adlai S. Mages to be members of a committee to arrange for the installation ceremony and a dance.

Testify at Federal Inquiry of Sea Disaster

Britain Hunts for Fugitives In Morro Castle Fire Probe

penas, contending a criminal investigation was entitled to receive all pertinent information, except that constitutionally privileged. Ward Line attorneys argued their data was gathered in privileged capacity as counsel.

Four Bodies Washed Up.

Two of four bodies washed up on New Jersey beaches during the day were identified as those of Morro Castle victims and it was believed the other two also had died in the disaster.

Differences between George I. Alagna, first assistant radio chief on the Morro Castle, and his immediate superior, George W. Rogers, apparently had been settled.

In testimony before the inquiry board, Rogers had declared his assistant was a "troublemaker."

"At times Mr. Alagna may not have been tactful in dealing with members and officers of the ship's crew," a statement by Rogers said, "but I would say from my association with him that he was a perfect gentleman and his character, to my knowledge, was irreproachable."

The two met at the Federal Building when they appeared before the grand jury and chatted together amiably.

Recess Until Monday.

The investigation was recessed until Monday, and Dickerson M. Hoover, head of the inquiry, left for Washington. He said evidence showed the necessity of building ships fireproof throughout, adding it was "not enough" to meet present marine fire requirements.

O'Sullivan testified the illegal polish had a "strong smell of benzine" and that "it was commonly used by the steward's department.

"I'll tell you how I know—they would ask me for it. I would say 'no' and they would answer, 'Well, I'll get it from the steward.'"

O'Sullivan explained later "they" referred to seamen and cadets whose duties included polishing brass on the bridge and parts of the ship other than the decks. The illegal polish was preferred because it required less work.

Says It Helped Fire.

The storekeeper, declaring the banned liquid was not included in the official ship's stores, asserted the fire's rapid spread was assisted by the inflammable polish and paints.

John Kempf, city fireman, insisted he was correct in fixing 12:45 a. m. as the time he first smelled smoke. Going aft on C deck, he said, he was hailed and asked to turn on a water valve.

"I had expected there would be iron discipline. I saw no one around, though. I didn't think it was serious and I worked silently, as I had been told to," he related.

"I saw no fire then, only smoke. I began ordering myself. I had no instructions—to extinguish steamship fires you need orders on steamer and marine construction.

"I had expected officers around—I had read about the Lusitania and Titanic."

Describes Fierce Flames.

Kempf said he left C deck after a hose had burned and when he returned "I saw a fire that looked like a fire blown by a fan. I never knew they could get so much highly combustible matter on a ship."

The investigators had difficulty in restricting the fireman's answers to their questions.

"I hope the red-headed girl and the other girls and all the other passengers that I met on shipboard will remember me and the pleasant times we had and send me some postcards," he shouted into a microphone as he took the stand.

The investigators cut short Kempf's speech.

Testimony that the Morro Castle's lifeboats were in bad condition was given by Joseph Spilgio, able seaman.

"The boat tanks were full of rust," he said, and explained the purpose of the tanks was to "keep up" the boats.

"I'm telling you that them tanks, if they were scraped fully, there would be holes in them."

"I'm concerned why you didn't report this to the officers," Hoover interposed.

Replaced, He Says.

"I didn't have time—you couldn't see them (the tanks) because they had been replaced in the boats."

Representative Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, disclosed at Jersey City that she is working on legislation for mandatory and complete inspections of "every steamship that enters an American port."

Her measure would provide a penalty of $5,000 fine against any owner and the chief officer of a vessel not complying with its provisions and prison terms for cases of grave neglect or second offenses.

R. A. Holden, jr., a Morro Castle survivor, said in Cincinnati that it was his opinion the fatal fire was incendiary and Capt. Willmott, who died several hours earlier, "was murdered." He explained the opinion was based on a cumulative impression, but that he had no direct evidence.

The body of Capt. Willmott was taken to Bellevue Hospital for an examination tonight by Dr. Alex O. Gettler, city toxicologist, and a toxicologist from the Department of Justice in Washington.

Paper Says Liner's Log Tells of Confusion

Boston, Sept. 14 (AP).—The Boston Daily Record says in a copyrighted story that contrary to sworn testimony the engine room log of the Morro Castle was saved from the fire by William W. Tripp, student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and engineer cadet on board, and turned over to attorneys of the Ward Line.

The Record says United States District Attorney Martin Conboy, when informed of the fact, said "It seems evident that the Ward Line is hampering a Federal inquiry. I have communicated information to this effect to the New York authorities and expect that they will demand the immediate production of the log book."

The missing log book, the Record says, reveals an amazing confusion of orders, the last of which would have left the Morro Castle turning in circles around her anchor.

Tripp, who lives in Dorchester, was at the telegraph board when the fire began to rage. The Record says that Tripp from memory placed the first fire alarm as sounding at 2:56 a. m.

The cadet engineer also asserted, it continues, that only two minutes before the alarm, a telephone call came to him from the bridge—presumably from the captain of the ship—asking if the fire was in the engine room.

Tripp told of helping terror-stricken passengers with members of the engineer's crew and later jumping off and being rescued by the Monarch of Bermuda.

Fleet Scout Ships Sail for Pacific

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 14 (AP).—With the battleship Wyoming in the lead, ships of the United States Navy Scouting Force sailed from Hampton Roads today, ending a three weeks' visit here.

By tomorrow night the last of the fighting ships will have left for other bases along this and the Pacific Coast.

Sailing with the Wyoming were the aircraft carrier Lexington and the cruisers Portland, Salt Lake City, Houston and Pensacola, the mine sweeper Tern and the repair ship Vestal. Off Charleston, S. C., they will be joined by the destroyer divisions of the Scouting Force for exercises in the Caribbean Sea.

The remaining ships are due to leave tonight and tomorrow, some bound through the Canal to the Pacific Coast.

Hospital Interne and Clerk Struck on Car Tracks by Speeding Auto.

Struck by a hit-run driver on Fourteenth street near Thomas Circle, Dr. James Hicks, an interne at the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, and Mrs. Thelma Lilly, 23, of Maple avenue, Takoma Park, a clerk at the hospital, were seriously injured last night at 10 o'clock.

The hit-run car, going at an excessive speed, according to police, struck the two pedestrians on the west cartrack while driving well to the left of the traffic lane.

Dr. Hicks was thrown to the right. Mrs. Lilly, thrown 12 feet in front of the speeding car, was run over by the machine, which speeded east from Thomas Circle.

Adolph Bond, taxi driver, of 1014 South Carolina avenue southeast, jumped in his cab and chased the fleeing car, losing it in traffic. He described the car as a black-bodied coach, with a Virginia license ta, which was corroborated by several other witnesses, including John W. Jenkins, of 1228 Sixteenth street northwest, who said "that was the dirtiest case of hit-run driving I've ever seen." The tag number agreed on by witnesses was given police.

Diamond Cab driver Harley Snowden of 1607 I street northwest, assisted by Jack Ferguson, of the Logan Hotel, placed Dr. Hicks and Mrs. Lilly in Snowden's cab and drove to the Emergency Hospital. Severe lacerations of the head and possible slight concussions were found by hospital attendants, although the victims' conditions are described as "undetermined."

According to witnesses, Dr. Hicks and Mrs. Lilly had no chance to escape the hit-run car, which swerved rapidly out of line in the northbound traffic.

Church Will Mark Mission Festival

The Trinity Lutheran Church, Bowie, Md., tomorrow will celebrate annual Mission Festival Sunday with services at 11 a. m. and 3 p. m.

Guest speakers will be the Rev. A. F. Ziehlschlorff, pastor of St. Paul's Church, Charotte Hall, Md., and the Rev. Otto Burhenn, pastor of the Immanuel Church, Baltimore.

Women of the church will serve a dinner for the celebrants. The Rev. Edward G. Collins, pastor, is making arrangements.

Coast Guard's Junket Blamed In Ship Deaths

Senator Hastings Assails Dispatch of Cutter Off Regular Run.

Whoever sent the Coast Guard cutter Champlain to Greenland, from where it is returning, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, Minister to Denmark, to America, must take "part of the blame for the long Morro Castle death list," it was said yesterday by Senator Hastings, Delaware Republican.

Demanding an inquiry into the removal of the cutter from her regular assignment, the Senator, co-chairman of the Republican senatorial-congressional committee, denounced the "junket" as "unconscionable squandering" of the public money. He called ridiculous the explanation of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau that the speedy cutter was sent to Greenland on an "oceanography" expedition, and insisted that some of the Morro Castle passengers who perished might have been saved had the Champlain been on its regular station.

Cites Tugwell's Trip.

"Speaking of junkets," Hastings added, "we have the fresh picture of Prof. Rexford Tugwell boarding a liner incognito to avoid a process server seeking to hale him into court to answer a suit brought to test the constitutionality of the Tugwell-Wallace sugar quota policy.

"The last thing the Administration has wanted has been a fair, square court test of some of its New Deal legislation. This incident also has its seamy side, for press reports from Hyde Park tell of President Roosevelt's hearty laughter on learning how Prof. Tugwell successfully eluded a court summons.

"Thus our Constitution and our laws are flouted and defied by those in high command. Tugwell escapes the process server to enjoy a junket in Europe at Government expense, as did Harry Hopkins, of the FERA, earlier in the season. The brain trusters seem hungry for new inspiration from the Socialist-ridden lands across the Atlantic."

Treasury Ridicules Stand.

The Treasury made an immediate and caustic reply.

"The theory that the Champlain would have been closer and would have been able to do more than the Cahoon, the cutter which replaced her, rests only upon the most remote possibilities," one official said.

"It was by the merest chance that the Cahoon was in the vicinity of the wreck. The chances are 9 to 1 that a vessel at Staten Island would reach the scene before a Coast Guard patrol."

In explaining why the Champlain had been detached for the diplomatic mission, the official said a request for the cutter was made through the State Department and approved by Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr.

He said the cutter was not being used and the trip to Greenland offered an excellent chance to perform valuable oceanographic work.

Hastings pointed out in his statement that the Treasury Department estimated it costs $480 a day to operate the Champlain. On this basis, he said, the trip to land Mrs. Owen will cost the Government $8,640.

"This unconscionable squandering of public money, bad as it is, is nothing compared to the fatal consequences of taking the Champlain off her regular Coast Guard duty and substituting an older and far slower vessel, calculated to have taken an hour longer reaching the Morro Castle than would the Champlain," said Hastings.

Blair Citizens' Group To Hold Flower Show

The Blair Citizens Association, Silver Spring, Md., will sponsor a flower show Tuesday evening in the community house in Jesup Blair Park in conjunction with its first regular meeting.

All entries in the show, which is open only to residents of Blair, must be brought to the hall between 5 and 7 o'clock. There are a number of classes for annuals, perennials, potted plants, cut flowers and the most artistic arrangements. Prof. Walter R. Ballard will be the judge and also will deliver an illustrated lecture on the care of house plants. Following the show a business meeting will be held.

B. & O. Rockville Bridge Closed.

The bridge over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks at Rockville, Md., was ordered closed to traffic for repairs ordered yesterday by the Montgomery County Commissioners.

Women Request Garb for Pupils

190 Montgomery Children Must be Equipped.

Miss Estelle T. Moore, of Sandy Spring, chairman of the home welfare committee of the Social Service League of Montgomery County, has announced the appointment of chairmen of six committees, to serve during the year 1934-35.

Miss Moore also made an appeal for clothing for 190 children under care of the league. Many of the children must be completely provided for so that they may attend school. Members of the women's clubs of the county, churches and Parent-Teacher groups, as well as the headquarters at Rockville will receive contributions.

Committees are: Child case conference — Mrs. Darby Bowman, Rockville; cutting out and giving out material—Mrs. William B. Armstrong, Cabin John; babies' clothing—Mrs. A. H. Scott, Kensington; supply room—Mrs. Potter Ward, Rockville, assisted by Mrs. R. E. L. Smith, Rockville; Mrs. Jesse E. Swigart, Somerset, and Mrs. James Brown, Brookeville; publicity—Mrs. Albert A. Federson, Chevy Chase; purchase of material and new clothing—Miss Moore.

Church Asks End Of Trade in Arms

Lutherans Request U. S. to Take Over Business.

Baltimore, Sept. 14 (AP).—The annual conference of the Eastern District of the American Lutheran Church, in final session here today, called upon the Government of the United States to take the munitions business away from private enterprise.

A resolution adopted by the 200 delegates declared war "a stupid, inhuman and futile method of settling international disputes."

On the munitions business the resolution stated: "We commit ourselves to the proposition that the manufacture and sale of munitions be no longer a matter of private enterprise and profit."

The Lutherans insisted "that military training in State universities and public schools be optional to the student and not compulsory" and protested "any government ruling which would tend to put our Gooovernment above God and cause man to violate his conscience in the matter of bearing arms."

Another resolution adopted put the Lutherans on record as taking part in the national church drive against indecent moving pictures.

Union Planning Embargo Move Upon Textiles

Leaders Prepare to Meet Challenge of Big 'Interests.'

New steps will be taken to strengthen the textile strike and "meet the challenge of the biggest financial interests in the country," union leaders announced last night.

Francis J. Gorman, union chairman, declared he would ask major transportation unions to stop all imports of textile products by refusing to handle such shipments. He predicted the manufacturers would be compelled to rely on their dwindling supply of surplus goods.

Meanwhile, there was speculation whether President Roosevelt might seek to halt the conflict by ordering amendment of NRA codes to grant some of labor's demands, possibly those for shorter hours and better wages.

Ready for "Interests."

"We're fighting the biggest interests in the country," Gorman conceded. "We knew the big bankers and other powerful financial interests would line up behind the textile manufacturers. We're ready for them.

"Already the steel and automobile manufacturers are contemplating a reduction in wages while the cost of living continues to go up. Of course that is just another move by big business to bolster the position of the textile employers."

Gorman said aid for the projected embargo on textile imports would be requested of the International Seamen's Union, the International Brotherhood of Railway Clerks and Freight Handlers and the International Longshoremen's Union.

He said the unions asked to halt textile imports could not be regarded as engaging in sympathy strikes if they complied because they would perform all their other duties.

Price Rise Foreseen.

Observers believed if the union succeeded in halting textile imports and the tie-up continued a few more weeks prices to the consumer of a wide range of wearing apparel would increase substantially. In some quarters the embargo threat was interpreted as an effort to pinch the purse of the average individual and cause public sentiment to crystallize in favor of thestrikers.

Some mills still operating, Gorman said, would be forced to close if their supplies of yarn from abroad were cut off.

The walkout chieftain said new efforts were being made to check Communism in mill centers.

"New instructions are going forward today," he said. "These instructions will repeat with emphasis our original warnings against Communist interference and intrigue.

"The strike must at all costs be protected as a trade-union operation and against perversion by revolutionary propaganda and treachery. Communists have but one aim—revolution. They always take advantage of every opportunity to destroy organized labor and slander the leadership of the American Federation of Labor."

Gorman said a decision on plans to reinforce the 500,000 men and women he estimated already are on strike would be withheld pending a meeting here Tuesday of the union's executive board. Allied trades expected to be effected ultimately included dyeing, carpet and rug, rayon and synthetic yarn.

No Need for Troops.

There is no need, Gorman said, for sending Federal troops to Rhode Island.

"There hasn't been any trouble there," he added, "since the mills ceased trying to keep open. The rest of the country should take a page from the book of Rhode Island. If all the mills voluntarily closed we could settle this thing peacefully rather than in an atmosphere of murder."

The Presidential Mediation Board conferred separately with Gorman and representatives of the rayon industry. Indications were that no new peace proposals were considered. The mediators, unsuccessful in all arbitration attempts, have begun drafting a report which they are expected to submit to the President before October 1.

Boy Who Found Fortune Can't Pay $5 Fighting Fine

Baltimore, Sept. 14 (AP).—Henry Grob, 15, one of the two boys who found $11,220 in gold coins here recently, will face a juvenile court hearing tomorrow because he couldn't pay a $5 fine for fighting.

The money that Grob and Theodore Jones, 16, unearthed in a cellar has been impounded by the court pending litigation to determine its ownership.

Grob and Walter Stankiewiecz engaged in a waterfront fight today with Daniel Lennon, a pier supervisor, who said they attacked him after he attempted to prevent them from destroying some property.

Hailed before a magistrate, Stankiewiecz paid the $5 fine, but Grob, with a fortune in gold possibly his, had no cash, and was ordered held for a hearing.

Manassas Legion Reelects Jamison

Manassas, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—The Prince William American Legion Post, No. 158, met at the town hall last night. Capt. Howard Jamison, commander of the Post, presented the post's first charter and announced that the enrollment was greater now than it had ever been.

A float will be entered in the dairy festival here September 28.

Troops Called Out in Georgia; Rioting Flares

Guards Ordered for Mill on Report Strikers Are Arming.

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 14 (AP). Scattered violence reverberated along the Southern strike front today, additional National Guardsmen were called out in North Carolina and Gov Talmadge ordered out Georgia troops upon being informed by Bartow County officials that "large numbers" of strike sympathizers were arming and preparing to move against an Atco mill.

Sergt. Charles A. Fleming, of Statesville, N. C., attached to a machine gun company of the 100th Cavalry, was stabbed in the back, not seriously, in a clash between his company and 250 strikers in front of the Cannon Mill at Concord, N. C.

Soldiers were using fire hose, tear gas and bayonets to drive the crowd from the mill gates, when an unidentified picket cut Fleming. Guard officers called reinforcements and moved the picket mass back a few feet.

Leader Arrested.

Arthur Fortner, said to have been the crowd's leader, was arrested for inciting to riot.

Five persons at Burlington, N. C., were jabbed by bayonets as soldiers fought off picket encroachments at the E. M. Holt Plaid Mill. An additional National Guard company was sent there. Another company was sent to Albemarle, where local authorities feared trouble.

At Aragon, Deputy Sheriff C. D. Stone led a band of armed workers against a union flying squadron and dispersed the pickets. He announced he would lead a deputized band to rid Polk County of picketing.

Gov. Talmadge in a long statement denounced flying squadrons and armed pickets and said he intended to see them stopped. The Governor criticized the United Textile Workers for calling the strike.

At Fayetteville, N. C., a special officer narrowly escaped death when someone threw a dynamite bomb over the fence at the Puritan Rayon Mill. Investigating the package, J. D. Hobbs finally saw the smoke of the fuse and ran just in time. The bomb blew a hold in the ground.

Engineer Beaten.

At Lonaconing, Md., Joseph Jones, night engineer of the General Textile Mills, was beaten by pickets. It was the first violence in Maryland, which, like Virginia, has hardly felt the strike.

A death indirectly attributed to the strike occurred at Gaffney, S. C., where George McCraw, night watchman at two mills, was killed in a quarrel with Dock J. Parris, a dance hall operator. Parris and McCraw were said by officers to have been on bad terms for several days since an argument about flying squadrons. All Gaffney mills have been closed since the first day of the strike.

The extent of the strike was virtually unchanged. No more closedowns were reported, nor did additional mills reopen.

Revision Is Seen In Securities Act

trading, and that he saw no reasons for any disturbances. In all probability, so slowly is the commission moving to guard against any ill-advised decision, only basic rules will be announced and made effective by October 1, Mr. Kennedy explained.

These will be supplemented and built up as time goes on to cover all possible contingencies and close all loopholes to manipulators, the chairman pointed out.

The commission extended until next Saturday the time in which application may be made for temporary registration of listed securities on exchanges. Under the original rule the period in which application might be made in order for registration to be effective was today. No exchange may carry on its lists an unregistered security after October 1.

Applications for temporary registration have arrived in large numbers in recent days. But there are about 25 stock issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange and approximately 40 on the New York Curb Exchange, for which applications had not been received yesterday.

The commission also announced the appointment of Allen E. Throop as its assistant general counsel. Mr. Throop, a New Yorker, has been secretary of the Foreign Bondholders Protective Council, Inc., set up last year to safeguard the interests of American holders of foreign public dollar bonds.

Prior to the organization of the council, Mr. Throop was associated with the law firm of Cotton, Franklin, Wright & Gordon, of New York. He is a graduate of the Harvard Law School, served for two years as editor of the Harvard Law Review and in 1932 served for a time as counsel to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

New Ministery Orders Reich to Pay in Marks

Berlin, Sept. 14 (AP).—Hard pressed as ever for foreign exchange, Germany today ordered her insurance companies and policyholders to make payments abroad in marks only.

No foreign exchange will be available for such payment after September 30, the Reich economics ministry decreed. Dollar contracts will be adapted on the basis of 2.50 marks to the dollar, it was set forth.

Printers Propose U. S. Newspaper Merger Inquiries

Chicago, Sept. 14 (AP).—Investigation of newspaper mergers was proposed as a job for the newly created Federal Communications Commission today by the International Typographical Union.

The printers' union asked the commission to declare "if found in the public interest" all communications services and all news gathering agencies public utilities, as a means of increasing the number of publications.

Another resolution declared that the major networks "virtually control" radio facilities at present and urged the Government to hold back at least 50 per cent of all radio licenses from private hands for the use of labor, farm, educational, religious and fraternal groups.

Both were adopted at the I. T. U.'s seventy-eighth annual convention on its final day. Earlier the convention voted to submit a new work-week plan to its 75,000 members, with 40 hours the maximum.

President Names 4 for West Point

The War Department announced yesterday, according to the Associated Press, that the following candidates have been designated to take entrance examinations for admission to the Military Academy at West Point on July 1, 1935:

By President Roosevelt—John G. Tyndall, jr., Fort Bragg, N. C.; James H. S. Rasmussen, Fort Monroe, Va.; Thomas J. Wright, Cherrydale, Va.; Julian G. Squires, Charlotte, N. C.

Ninth District, North Carolina—Thomas M. Crawford, Salisbury; Frank N. Patterson, jr., Albermarle, first alternate.

Tennessee—Elmer C. Haney, 933 North Broadway, Knoxville.

Arkansas, Second District—Leslie Grady, Des Arc; Samuel A. Madison, Williford, first alternate; Gracchus L. Smith, jr., Tuckerman, second alternate.

Wider Valley Pike Urged for Safety

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.). Widening of the Valley pike through the village of Mount Crawford, 8 miles south of here, was urged by the Harrisonburg Lions Club last night in a resolution forwarded to the State highway department.

This short narrow stretch has been the scene of many automobile wrecks recently, the latest of which, two days ago, resulted in the death of a Harrisonburg school teacher.

The entrance to the town from the south is said to be particularly dangerous. The widened Valley pike stops abruptly and the traffic goes on a narrow slippery road which has a 20-foot embankment on the east side.

Travel Club to Hear Description of Tour

The Wanderlust Travel Club will meet at the home of Miss Betty Anderson, 708 Longfellow street northwest, next Tuesday, at 8 p. m., it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. Maurine Goding will speak on "A Motor Tour Through the West."

Hunter Class Title Awarded To Round Hill

Fairfax Horse Show Will Hold Concluding Events Today.

Despite the inclement weather and muddy grounds, the twentieth annual Fairfax Horse Show was held yesterday in the old fair grounds at Fairfax. The show will be continued through today with the children's classes and pony exhibits.

The hunter championship yesterday was won by Round Hill, owned and ridden by James N. Andrews, of Somerset, Va., and the reserve championship was won by Spring Hope, owned and ridden by Mrs. John Hay Whitney, of Middleburg. The judges of the events were Judge J. R. H. Alexander, of Leesburg, Va., and Waugh Glascock, of Upperville, Va.

Today's show will be judged by North Fletcher and Mrs. Ruth Guitar, both of Warrenton, Va.

Green hunters—First, Round Hill, owned by James N. Andrews, of Somerset; second, Rockale, owned by Margaret Cotter, of Washington; third, Spring Hope, owned by Mrs. J. H. Whitney, and fourth, Gray Eagle, owned by D. O. Furr, of Middleburg.

Handy hunters—First, Annie, owned by Mrs. James Hamilton, of Warrenton; second, Sandy, owned by Capt. Marion Carson, of Fort Myer; third, Gray Eagle, owned by D. O. Furr, and fourth, Lumberjack, owned by W. T. Carrico, of Bethesda, Md.

U.S. Board Asks That Houde Co. Be Prosecuted

Buffalo Firm Rejects Order to Be Bound by Majority Vote.

Prosecution by the Department of Justice in the outstanding Houde labor case was predicted yesterday by Lloyd Garrison, National Labor Relations Board chairman.

He said he expected prompt legal action in the refusal of the Houde Engineering Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., to abide by an order of the board that it recognize an American Federation of Labor affiliate as representing all its employes despite membership of a minority in another organization.

Mr. Garrison revealed that the case had been referred to the Justice Department and to the NRA compliance division with a recommendation for revocation of the firm's Blue Eagle immediately after the board had been notified earlier in the week of the company's refusal to be bound by the decision.

The chairman said he would confer shortly with Justice Department officials and added:

"I have no reason to assume it will not be vigorously pressed by both the Justice Department and the NRA. Both have discretion, of course, as to what action they will take, if any. They're under no legal obligation to do anything."

He conceded smilingly that the board's majority rule stand conflicted with the view of Donald Richberg, of the National Emergency Council, and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, that minorities should have a voice in collective bargaining discussions.

Mr. Garrison denied, however, that the board and President Roosevelt held divergent views. The chairman said Mr. Roosevelt did not necessarily frown on the majority rule in principle, although he approved an agreement last spring in a threatened automobile strike which provided representation for rival unions on a pro rata membership basis.

The National Association of Manufacturers has urged employers to disregard the board's ruling, which was interpreted by the A. F. of L. as a major victory for organized labor.

Hotel Warned Of Liquor Suit

ABC Head Insists Place at Old Point Comfort Violates Law.

Richmond, Sept. 14 (AP).—Chairman Heth Tyler, of the Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, said today that the board could seek an injunction against the Chamberlin Hotel at Old Point Comfort if that establishment continued to ignore State laws and serve hard liquor to guests.

"This would be drastic action," Mr. Tyler said, "and we hope we will not have to resort to it. In fact, it would not settle the issue concerned."

He said an injunction could be asked on the grounds that the hotel, in selling hard liquors contrary to the Virginia control law, was constituting itself a "common nuisance."

Virginia law limits the sale of hard liquor to State dispensaries. Hotels and restaurants may serve wine and beer, when so licensed, but are barred from handling the hard drinks.

The hotel, situated on the Federal reservation at Fort Monroe, has contended that State laws do not apply to it.

Richmond, Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Receipts from all liquor stores operated by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board from May 15 to August 31 totaled $2,211,448.92.

At this rate, assuming a net profit of 10 per cent—a conservative estimate—the State's liquor store profits for the first year with 75 stores operating are expected to be fully up to the anticipated $1,675,000.

There were nine stores opened in May, 16 in June, 14 in July and 12 more in August; 51 in all on August 31. There are now 53 in operation and there will be about 75 by the end of the year, according to present plans.

Folk Music Fete To Draw Experts

Roanoke, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Experts in folk music from many parts of the South are expected to participate in the All-Southern Fiddlers convention, which will be held here on September 28 to 29.

Harve G. Sheets, of Konnarock, who won first price at White Top this year with his clog dance, is among the entrants in contests to be held during the convention. Others include Howard Wyatt, also of Konnarock, who won first prize among the White Top fiddlers, and J. W. Spangler, second fiddle, of near Danville. In the ballad-singing contest competition probably will be keen between Marion Barker, of Chilhowie, and Texas Gladden, of Salem. Gladden was presented with second prize at the White Top festival last year by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The convention is being sponsored by Roanoke Lodge, No. 3, of the Maccabees, with E. M. Wineharger as chairman.

Mrs. Yates' Rites Today.

Frostburg, Md., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Mrs. Jennie Yates, 78, widow of Isaac Yates, will be buried tomorrow in Allegany Cemetery, following services at her home in Grahamtown, a suburb, to be conducted by the Rev. William D. Reese, pastor of Mount Zion Baptist Church, of which she was a member.

William Aberle, 76, Buried.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—The funeral of William Henry Aberle, 76, who died at his home at Hyndman, was held this afternoon, conducted by the Rev. W. B. DeChant of the Reformed Church. Burial was in Hyndman Cemetery.

'The Coming American Boom'

President May Virtually Double Currency of Nation If He Wishes, British Author Believes.

—By Maj. Lawrence L. B. Angas—

This is the ninth installment of the book by Maj. L. L. B. Angas, British economist, which recently caused a flurry in American financial circles. Although some of the economics expounded will not stand an acid test, The Post is nevertheless publishing the book because it does contain interesting material.

Of the $4,000,000,000 actually expended on "emergency" account about 50 per cent has come from public subscriptions to Government issues, while the other 50 per cent has come from borrowings from the banks, either through short loans or long-term issues. The latter, as explained, is inflationary in nature, and has been the main cause of the rise in the net demand deposit currency of the country within the last year from about $11,000,000,000 to $12,500,000,000.

Of the $4,000,000,000 of "emergency" expenditures actually disbursed in the fiscal year 1933-4, the greater part took the form of direct relief. The main items in round numbers were as follows:

Agricultural relief $900,000,000, exclusive of $300,000,000 obtained from processing taxes.

Urban relief (mostly CWA), $1,400,000,000.

Reconstruction Finance Corporation, $800,000,000.

The principal item in the remainder was for the Public Works Administration, with about $1,000,000,000.

Actual Appropriations.

As regards actual appropriations for the future, i. e., permissive expenditure not yet spent: Appropriations in the last two Congresses have amounted to approximately $12,000,000,000 (including Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds, the total is $17,500,000,000) of which $6,800,000,000 was provided during the recent session ending in July, 1934.

For the coming year, June, 1934-5, the funds now earmarked for "relief," total $3,270,000,000 which exceeds the President's January, 1934, estimate of maximum needs by $525,000,000; this additional sum is now earmarked for drought aid.

Taking potential expenditures as a whole, the following approximate unexpended amounts, available up to the end of 1935, still appear to remain at the President's disposal:

	Million.
1. Permission to print paper money, granted immediately after the President entered office, March, 1933	$3,000
2. Permission to issue notes against silver	1,500
3. Unexpended portion of gold devaluation profit. (This at present is largely earmarked for exchange equalization and for the purchase of Government bonds, and it is not improbable that Mr. Roosevelt regards this fund as part of the $3,000,000,000 in item 1)	1,600
4. Farm relief	2,000
5. Unexpended portion of Reconstruction Finance Corporation's funds ($7,300,000,000) originally allotted in January, 1933	3,300
6. Housing and home loans	2,000
7. Unexpended funds appropriated in the budget message of January 4, 1934, for the year June, 1934-5	5,000
He also has:
8. More than $1,000,000,000 deposited in the Treasury and not yet spent	1,000
Total (in millions)	$19,400

Inflation Angle.

If use is made of the first three items available, this will, for the most part, constitute a pure note inflation, which, for the moment, Mr. Roosevelt almost certainly hopes to avoid, and will only resort to it other methods fail.

The funds mentioned in items 4, 5, 6 and 7 would, for the most part, come from borrowing from the banks, and would thus lead to bank credit currency inflation, as distinct from note inflation.

Item 8 is already at the President's disposal, and its expenditure would not increase either the note or bank deposit currency. It will be seen, however, that most of the other amounts available would, if expended, be inflationary in character.

Could Double Currency.

Items 1, 2 and 3 would not increase the aggregate of Government debt; they would merely be inflationary; but items 4, 5 6 and 7 would, in addition to being inflationary, add to the burden of Government debt except in so far as extra tax revenues exceeded expenditure.

The President's position, however, is that he can, without further authority from Congress, inflate paper notes by $4,500,000,000 (items 1 and 2) and by means of Government loans inflate bank deposits by $12,300,000,000 (items 4, 5, 6 and 7). Net demand deposits now stand at $13,000,000,000. (Author's note—Statistics for net demand deposits (i.e., current accounts) as published by the reporting member banks only cover about half of the total banks in America, but may be taken as roughly representative of the whole. Time deposits are not immediately spendable by the owners and must not be counted in the statistical total of spendable money. The time deposits of one man are lent to another by the banker and become his demand deposit. They should, therefore, not be counted twice over, although to do so is a common mistake.) The Federal reserve notes now stand at $3,000,000,000. In other words, he can still, of he wishes, by various means virtually double both the note and deposit currency of the country, for he has only spent about $4,000,000,000 out of the total of at least $22,000,000,000 allocated to him. (I am assuming in this argument, I believe rightly, that item 7 does not overlap any other of the items.

Loudoun to Enter Float in Festival

Leesburg, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Under the leadership of Shirley Myers, dairyman, plans are going forward for Loudoun County to be represented at the Piedmont Virginia Dairy Festival in Manassas, September 28, with a float.

The county, which is a large dairying center, has never before been represented with a float. Dairymen will meet here Tuesday evening to complete plans for the entry.

The Loudoun Hunt, in full hunting costume, will take part in the parade and act as escort for Miss Elizabeth Rust, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David N. Rust, who has been selected to represent the county as Princess Loudoun.

Masons at Staunton To Elect New Officers

Staunton, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—The annual election of officers of Union Royal Arch Chapter, No. 2, Royal Arch Masons, will be held in the temple here Tuesday at 8 p. m., according to announcements made by the Rev. Walter S. Thomas, high priest, according to announcements made by the Rev. Walter S. Thomas, high priest.

Making his official visitation at that time will be Ollie C. Hope, most excellent high priest of Virginia.

Makielski Appointed By Governor Peery

Richmond, Sept. 14 (AP).—Gov. Peery today announced the appointment of S. John Makielski, of the University of Virginia, to the State board for the examination and certification of professional engineers, architects and land surveyers. He will serve until July 15, 1936, succeeding Dr. Edmund S. Cameron.

The Governor also announced the reappointment of Senator William H. East to the highway commission. Senator East's term expired July 1. He was renamed for four years.

Drunken Driver Fined $100, Gets Jail Term

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—C. H. Latham, 26, was fined $100 and sentenced to 30 days in jail for driving while intoxicated after a hearing yesterday in Justice Henry G. Dannehl's Police Court.

Latham gave his address at Heflin, Va., but papers found on his person indicated a Washington residence, officers said. He pleaded not guilty.

Deluge Breaks Capital Record; City Bales Out

Rain Heaviest for September in 58 Years; Basements Still Flooded.

A warm sun broke through skies clouded for more than two days yesterday, a few hours after an early morning downpour broke a record for September rainfall set 58 years ago.

Total precipitation for the month to date was 11.39 inches, the Weather Bureau having measured a fall of 1.44 inches between 10:20 p. m., Thursday and 8:50 yesterday morning, when the rain stopped and storm clouds began to lift. Today will be cloudy, the bureau predicted.

In scattered sections of the city, the sewer division of the Sanitary Engineer's Department was called to pump out flooded basements. Generally, however, its work was light, although the Highway Department kept several hundred men at the task of cleaning up after Wednesday's cloudburst.

The Potomac rose 2.7 feet near Glen Echo, above the tidewater limit, but by 11:15 a. m. had dropped to 2.3 feet above low water, the river and floods division of the Weather Bureau reported.

Charges by Representative Sol Bloom (Democrat), New York, that the Archives Building had been built in one of the lowest spots in the Capital and probably wouldn't be a fit place for Government records in times of heavy rain were answered by the contractors.

Water in the building reached a maximum depth of 15 inches, and most of this came in through an open ramp on the Seventh street side, one official explained. The building, about 80 per cent completed, is perfectly waterproofed, he said.

With this month less than half over, a new all-time record for any month was in sight. The present record—14.41 inches—was set in August, 1928.

Tubize Mediation Conference Called

Richmond, Sept. 14 (AP).—Union officials and representatives of the Tubize Chatillon Corporation will confer next week, probably on Tuesday, Gov. Peery said today, in an effort to break a deadlock over the conditions under which the firm may reemploy striking workers to fill jobs in its knitting department.

Nathan Shefferman, Federal Labor Board conciliator, will act as referee, the Governor said.

Meanwhile the plant and its employes have perfected what the Governor called a "truce" today. Disagreement halted the rehiring early this week when the union asserted its members were being "discriminated" against. Raymond S. Burrows, plant manager, denied discrimination.

Three Transients Fall From Bridge

Richmond, Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Three men who stepped off a freight train which stood on a trestle were brought to Memorial Hospital today from Mecklenburg County.

They are Curtis Ott, 21, of Whitemire, S. C.; Joseph Dixon, 25, of Gaffney, S. C., and Ralph Bell, colored, 29, of Washington.

The Mecklenburg Transient Bureau, which sent the men here, said that the three attempted to get off a box car, not knowing that the train had halted over a 30-foot ravine. Their conditions were described as fair today.

Capital Woman Dies In Maryland Crash

Mrs. Rachel Ensor, 22, of 413 Randolph street northwest, telephone operator, died in Havre de Grace Hospital yesterday a short time after an automobile she was driving crashed into a pole.

Slippery roads near Aberdeen caused her car to skid into the pole as she was driving to New York with a friend, Miss Thelma F. Coiner, 23, of 1204 Delafield place northwest. Miss Coiner escaped uninjured, while Mrs. Ensor suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries. Both girls were employed at the Georgia exchange.

C.B. Townshend Funeral To Be Held in Annapolis

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Funeral services for Charles B. Townshend, 58, well-known farmer of Davidsonville, Anne Arundel County, will be held from the residence tomorrow at 2:30 p. m., followed by interment in Cedar Bluff Cemetery, Annapolis.

Mr. Townshend died yesterday after an illness of several months. He was a son of Dan Townshend and the late Mrs. Townshend. Besides his father he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Rose Waters Townshend, four daughters and one son, all of this county, and several brothers and sisters. One of his daughters, Miss Frances Townshend, is a well known horsewoman.

Worker Hurt by Rock In Ohio Shoe Strike

Logan, Ohio, Sept. 14 (AP).—George Hansell, 30, of Columbus, an employe of the H. C. Godman Shoe Co., was seriously wounded today when struck by a rock hurled by one of seven men who, Deputy Sheriff Stanley Sparnon, of Hocking County, said, ambushed a Godman truck. The seven men surrendered.

Union workers in two of the company's plants are on strike, demanding a closed shop.

Medical Society Meets.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—The Eastern Panhandle Medical Society held its fall meeting here yesterday. Drs. A. W. Armentrout and M. H. Porterfield read papers. The next meeting will be held in Charles Town on the second Wednesday in December.

Arms Makers of Europe Aiding Hitler, Inquiry Hears

Three Names Mentioned.

He mentioned three names—Maurice Magnus, who he said had a New York representative named Leo Kohn; Beno Spiriro, of Hamburg, and one Carlowitz, of Hamburg. He said the three men worked together and signed each other's contracts.

"It is undesirable to deal with these people; they are all under suspicion and their operations are irregular and payment is bad," this letter concluded.

But still later the same month, Taylor wrote Casey, the committee's record charges:

"The contraband of ammunition is increasing tremendously. I. C. I. (Imperial Chemical Industries), have received continuous inquiries for delivery to the free port of Hamburg from Magnus and Beno Spiriro.

"We have invited Spiriro to meet us this week in Paris, but he refused to come.

"There seems to be the beginning of a decided increase of activity in the amunition business in Europe."

Senator Clark Makes Charge.

The charge that Hitler is backed by two large European arms makers interested in improving the munitions business hurled by Senator Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, a former lieutenant colonel in the United States Army, just before hearings were adjourned for the week.

"It is common knowledge that Hitler was financed by the Skodas in Czechoslovakia who were financed by Schneider (Schneider-Creusot), in France, who wanted to start a war scare and sell more munitions," said the Missouri Senator.

"Don't you know that?" he inquired of Lammot du Pont, head of the Delaware power firm.

"No, I do not," retorted Du Pont.

Secretaries Roper and Hull came to the Capitol yesterday before the hearing got underway, accompanied by a coterie of aids, and for more than an hour they conferred with the Senate Committee.

It was the second such visit for Secretary Hull, who last week expressed fullest "sympathy" with the inquiry, but advised committee members of numerous representations from foreign governments and officials whose toes have been indiscriminately stepped on.

Secretary Hull Worried.

Although both officials yesterday were chary of comment, it was learned that Hull was still worried about international implications, including the effect of the hearings on prospective trade agreements. Roper was immediately concerned about foreign trade repercussions.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, persistent chairman of the investigating group, told reporters he will not "hold back" material evidence.

However, a letter relating to payment of commissions to certain Chinese authorities, in connection with sales of munitions by the Du Ponts in China, was withheld from the record and sparingly referred to in testimony.

In addition, four cablegrams bearing on alleged efforts by Du Pont representatives to dissuade Argentine officials from building a powder factory of their own, were kept out of the record, but significantly alluded to by Investigator Rauschenbush.

"If these cablegrams were put into the record, wouldn't it mean a very serious situation in a certain South American republic, involving destruction of life and property?" Rauschenbush asked Lammot du Pont.

Lammot did not reply immediately, while Pierre du Pont rose to his feet to reply to a question asked earlier in the hearing, that had gone unanswered.

When he finished, Raushenbush returned to his question, and Lammot replied slowly:

"I think it would be undesirable to publish those cables."

The investigator rephrased his question.

"Are you in a situation where divulgence of things you do might cause political repercussions in a South American country?"

Lammot repeated he did not think the matter should be put in the record.

Asked Reimbursement.

The episode followed disclosure of a series of letters in which Antonio Carames, who had worked for the company in Argentina, demanded reimbursement for "outlays" he said he had made in attempting to stop construction of an Argentine powder factory by a German firm.

It was said the German company, Koln Rottweil, entered a low bid for the job, while the Du Ponts, working with their associates, Imperial Chemical Industries, of England, made a bid of their own. Carames claimed credit three times for having the German bid rejected.

Carames wanted $15,000 for the expense he was put to, letter disclosed. Raushenbush charged a settlement was effected, but the Du Ponts admitted nothing, except that Carames was retained as an employe both of their company and the I. C. I. in South America.

"We would rather sell powder than build factories," Irenee du Pont said under questioning.

Earlier, investigators brought out that the Delaware firm negotiated with Mitsui, a Japanese company for the sale of Du Pont's ammonia oxidation process in 1932.

"I am mystified," commented Irenee, "why you regard it as wrong for us to have opposed building a powder factory in Argentina, and at the same time think it was wrong for us to have helped Japan to make chemicals cheaper."

"We are not concerned with the ethics, but with the facts," Raushenbush replied.

Felix du Pont, cousin of the three older Du Pont brothers, Irenee, Pierre and Lammot, told the committee it was he who contracted with Del Fungo Giera in February, 1933, to represent the Du Ponts in Germany.

He said he thought he had made a "mistake." The contract with Giera, he said, was terminated in April, 1933, when the alleged former "spy" was paid $25,000 and released. Giera claimed $37,000 was due him for expenses incurred, it was stated.

Called Former Spy.

Maj. Casey confirmed from the witness stand a statement by Senator Clark that Giera was a former spy. At various times, the Missouri Senator charged, Giera was employed by 13 countries, and after working for Germany, supplied the American Government with plans of German mines in Heligoland.

Felix du Pont said the company wanted an agent in Germany because of the country's expectation it would soon be relieved of the prohibition on importation of arms and armanent imposed by the Versailles Treaty.

Even after Giera was released as German agent, the Du Ponts disclosed he came to them later, insisting he could get them a Japanese order for machinery. The Delaware firm consulted Government officials, then agreed with Giera to sell the machinery providing no blueprints or plans were demanded, it was testified.

"We didn't expect to hear any more from it, and we never did," Maj. Casey testified.

The Du Pont's director of military sales said the last he heard of Giera was a report that the former "spy" sold Japan his invention of a new powder.

"I attended one of his demonstrations and saw three shots fired," Casey told the committee. "All I can say is, I hope they buy a lot of it."

Argentine Inquiry On Airplane Opens

Buenos Aires, Sept. 14 (AP).—Aroused by unfavorable reflections cast on some Argentine officers by testimony presented to the United States munitions inquiry, a commission to "safeguard the honor and prestige" of the Navy started functioning today.

Headed by Rear Admiral Orlandini, the commission will investigate circumstances under which the Navy acquired airplanes abroad.

Chile Bans U. S. Bids For Aviation Supplies

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 14 (AP).—Senor Emilio Bello, Chilean defense minister, served notice today that the bids of American aviation firms seeking to sell materials to the government will not be considered.

In a letter to aviation chief Arcena, Minister Bello said:

"Please inform American firms which have bid for the sale of aviation materials that their bids will not be considered, and that they may retire from negotiations."

Exchange Seat Sells for $78,000.

New York, Sept. 14. (AP).—Sale of a New York Stock Exchange seat for $78,000, a recovery of $2,000 compared with the previous sale, was announced today.

gested, and the draft of the Russian reply approved, it was understood. Moscow's entrance was expected next week.

Three of the great powers that joined forces 13 years ago to give Poland back her lost independence united again today to condemn her for flouting the obligations she incurred with that independence.

Sir. John Simon, Britain's secretary of foreign affairs, said pointedly:

"It would not be possible for any state to release itself from obligations of this kind, by unilateral action. * * * The terms of Article 93 of the Treaty of Versailles can not be overlooked—the article which deals with the establishment of Poland."

Barthou Supports Simon.

Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, who said he considered it his "loyal duty to associate myself entirely with" Sir John's words, pointed out that Poland's action would imperil treaties and the league mandate itself, and added:

Baron Pompeo Aloisi, head of Italy's delegation, said Italy could not imagine what Poland meant by unilateral denunciation of a general treaty and said flatly;

"The Italian policy is that existing obligations must be respected pending their future possible revision."

There was talk that Swiss factions, bitterly opposed to the Soviet's membership, might demand referendum of the people to determine whether Switzerland shall resign if Russia is elected.

Should that come to pass, the league would have to look for new headquarters.

Last of 13 Children Dies in Virginia at 88

Purcellville, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.). Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Mary Swann Florence, 88, widow of A. C. Florence, who died at her home yesterday. She was the last of the 13 children of the late David and Elizabeth Connor and was a native of Loudoun County.

Sterilizing Ordered For 52 Insane Women

Vinita, Okla., Sept. 14 (AP).—The Oklahoma Board of Affairs ordered the sterilization of 52 women inmates after a hearing at the Eastern Oklahoma Hospital for the Insane.

It was the largest group ever ordered sterilized in the State. There was no opposition to the orders.

Orange County Fete Invitation Sent Roosevelt

Byrd Asks President to Open Celebration of 200th Anniversary.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt was asked yesterday by Senator Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, to open by radio the 200th anniversary celebration of the founding of Orange County, Va., which once extended as far West as St. Louis.

Mr. Byrd wired the Chief Executive asking him to speak over a Nation-wide radio network on September 25, when Virginia's early days will be brought back to memory in a pageant to be participated in by 1,000 lineal descendants of the county's early settlers. The celebration will continue through September 28.

The county, which first was colonized in 1710 by Alexander Spottswood, who established a group of Germans at Germana Ford, was formally organized in 1734 to embrace not only its present limits in central Virginia, but all that lies west and northwest of it to the Great Lakes and beyond the Mississippi River.

The sites of the cities of Chicago, Detroit, Indianapolis, Cleveland and Pittsburgh were included, besides St. Louis, in the vast territory that was Orange County, a subdivision of the crown colony of Virginia.

The county is rich in lore. Montpelier, the home of President James Madison, is there. President Zachary Taylor was born there. It was from Germana Ford that Spottswood, a Colonial Governor of the Old Dominion, rode out with his Knights of the Golden Horseshoe to explore the West.

Churches Map Role For Orange Co. Fete

Orange, Va., Sept. 15 (Spl.).—As a part of the religious participation in the Orange County Bicentennial celebration, which is to be held here September 25 to 28, Dr. George W. Richards, president of the Eastern Theological Seminary, is to make the principal speech for the Reform Church, Dr. J. Silor Garrison, pastor of the Reform Church of Harrisonburg, announced today.

The Reform Church will hold their meeting at Germana, first home of the Reform Church in this part of the country, at 11 a. m., September 25. The Lutheran celebration will follow immediately after the Reform Church meeting. Dr. Richards was formerly president of the Alliance of Reform Churches of the World, holding the Presbyterian system of government, and is president of the General Sydnicate of the Evangelical Reform Church.

Following the Reform and Lutheran meetings, the Colonial Dames of America, in the State of Virginia, will hold a short reception. Mrs. Granville Valentine, of Richmond, sponsors the Fredericksburg branch of the organization. At 4 p. m. the United Daughters of the Confederacy will hold a meeting.

Library to Be Dedicated.

The celebration will continue Wednesday, September 26, at 10 a. m. with the donation of the library of the late Samuel Marcus to the Gordonsville High School in commemoration of the contribution by Jews to Orange County history. The donation is made by Mr. Marcus' daughter, Mrs. Ellie Marcus Marx, principal of Henry Clay High School, Norfolk. The address upon this occasion will be made by Virginius Shackelford, of Orange, late a member of the board of visitors of the University of Virginia and at present a member of the State board of education.

The Junior Women's Club of Orange will stage a meeting in memory of William Monroe in the courthouse at Orange at 11:30 a. m., September 26. William Monroe was cofounder of the public school system along with Thomas Jefferson and James Barbour. The chief speaker will be Dr. Sidney S. Hall, superintendent of public instruction, Richmond. Mrs. Joe Mercer, of Woodberry Forest, will preside.

At 3 p. m. of the same day the Baptists will hold a celebration at Gum Spring, about 6 miles northeast of Orange. The meeting will be held in honor of the meeting of Parson Leland and James Madison, later President of the United States. This interview pertained to matters of religious freedom later incorporated in the first amendment to the Constitution. Dr. S. C. Mitchel of the faculty of the University of Richmond, prominent leader in the inter-racial council and an authority on inter-racial matters, will make a historical address.

Memorial to Zachary Taylor.

On the courthouse green at Orange the American Legion will unveil a monument to the memory of Gen. Zachary Taylor, twelfth President of the United States at 10 a. m., Thursday, September 27. This is the sesquicentennial of the birth of Zachary Taylor.

At 11 a. m. of the same day the Orange Bar Association will hear an address delivered by Judge Gordon Barbour Ambler, of Richmond, a grandson of Philip Pendleton Barbour, formerly of the United States Supreme Court. The subject of the address will be "The Contribution of Orange County to American Jurisprudence." Gov. George C. Peery will be asked to preside, and the speaker of the day will be introduced by Judge Alexander T. Browning, of Orange. Judge Ambler has the robe of his ancestor.

The Methodist celebration will be held Friday, September 28, at 11 a. m. at Palmyra, showing the Methodist contribution to Orange County life. A choir of 20 young men and women, dressed in pioneer costumes, will sing old-time hymns in the "lined out" fashion according to the ancient ritual. There will be impersonations of such characters as the historical circuit riders, among whom was Bishop Asbury. The speaker of the occasion will be Dr. J. M. Rollins, editor of the Richmond Christian Advocate.

One Hurt as 1,700 Strike at Martinsburg Mill

Mary Baldwin College Open; Enrollment Up

Other Virginia Schools Also Meet Record Registration.

Staunton, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Mary Baldwin College, here, formally opened its ninety-third year today with the largest number of pupils in its history.

Dr. L. Wilson Jarman, president, announced that the college has 232 boarding students from 30 States and three foreign countries, while students from this immediate community will bring the total enrollment to almost 300. A new dormitory, Fraser Hall, has been opened in the house formerly occupied by Dr. Jarman and his family, who have moved to Rose Terrace, a residence recently purchased by the college.

The student body was welcomed by Dr. Jarman, Dean Elizabeth Pfohl and Dr. Hunter B. Blakely, president of the college board of trustees and college pastor, at chapel exercises this morning.

Students began arriving at the college on Monday. A faculty meeting was held that evening, followed by an informal reception. Tuesday the freshman orientation began with freshman assembly, where the newcomers were greeted by Dr. Jarman, Miss Pfohl, Mrs. Thomas H. Grafton, registrar, and Miss Mary Bell Archer, of Clarksdale, Miss., president of the student body this session. A series of orientation lectures were begun, subjects including "The History of Mary Baldwin," by Miss Nancy McFarland, assistant professor of Latin; "How to Use the Library," by Miss Abbie McFarland, librarian; "How to Study," by Dr. Kenneth L. Smoke, professor of psychology and philosophy, and Mrs. Grafton, registrar; and "Interpretation of Literature," by Miss Mary E. Latimer, assistant professor of English and director of dramatics.

A tea was given for the new students Tuesday afternoon, and there were parties for the freshmen on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, another to follow Saturday evening following the recital by the music department. Sports events also are programmed for Saturday, and Sunday morning the student body will worship at the First Presbyterian Church. The first Y. W. C. A. vesper service will be held Sunday at 6 p. m.

Washington and Lee Open.

Lexington, Va., Sept. 14 Spl.).—A reception at the home of Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of the university, last night brought to a climax festivities of opening week at Washington and Lee. An assembly tomorrow morning will formally open the session.

Freshmen and other students yesterday heard three talks in the last of a series of meetings designed to acquaint them with the traditions and ideals of the university. Prof. W. W. Morton spoke on "Christian Work on the Campus;" Prof. R. N. Latture discussed "The Freshman Adviser System," and Dean R. H. Tucker and Dean Frank J. Gilliam spoke on "The Dean's Office and Freshmen."

Bristol, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—A record enrollment was established at King College and the largest registration total in the last four years was announced at Sullins College today as the fourth day of school opened, with students still arriving.

The total number of full-time pupils at King continued to mount with 152 students already enrolled. At Sullins, a total of 250 girls began classwork today and college officials announced that every room was filled.

Dr. Robert Yost, president, stated today at King College's record-breaking registration represented a 40 per cent increase over enrollment at this time last year. The number of students who will room at the college is twice the 1933-34 sessions's total of boarding pupils.

Classwork began at King yesterday morning and the student body heard Dr. Yost in the first daily chapel exercise at 10:30 a. m.

New Deal Is Called Liberal Revolution

D. C. Coyle, in Virginia Quarterly Review, Says Destruction of 'High Finance' Would Increase the National Income.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.). Writing on "Recovery and Finance" in the October issue of the Virginia Quarterly Review, University of Virginia magazine devoted to National affairs, David Cushman Coyle describes the New Deal as a "liberal revolution against the disastrous rule of high finance."

Mr. Coyle, consulting engineer and member of the technical board of review of the Public Works Administration, contends that if "high finance can be destroyed by the middle class, with the help of labor votes, the National income will be greatly increased and opportunities for employment will be numerous."

Naming the power of high finance as public enemy No. 1, Mr. Coyle writes that there is a "wide realization among Government officials and the people that Wall street must be curbed before prosperity can be made safe for business." Already the events are shaping that will blow away the fog from the minds of experts and of the people, leaving the New Deal face to face with the main problem, he adds.

Wants More Public Works.

Disclaiming belief in the revival of the capital investment market as a means of bringing about recovery, Mr. Coyle urges the use of surplus money in public works and social service. He expresses a lack of faith in controlled production, pegged prices and other forms of centralized planning to protect profits.

"Theory and experience indicate that if any industry has to be centrally planned, it has be owned by the only corporation that can disregard profit and loss—the Government. Everybody interested in economics, except some of the leaders of industry, knows that the only alternative to public ownership is decentralization. Under the NRA, leaders of industry tried to set up a form of planned production that is practical only in a Communist state, but without being willing to adopt Communism."

Discussing lost purchasing power, he said part of it had disappeared completely in the form of vanished bank deposits, and the rest is limited to those who have more money than they can or will spend, whether they be corporation executives, stockholders, movie stars, successful kidnappers or unusually fortunate landlords.

Want Bonds for New Money.

"Before the workers can get any effective increase in real income, part of the missing money will have to be supplied by selling bonds to the Federal Reserve in return for new money, regardless of conservative financial opinion, and spending the new bank money on public works and service.

"The rest of the missing money will have to be extracted from those who refuse to spend it, by taxation of incomes and estates. There is the primary problem of purchasing power, and until it is solved the dispute between workers and employers is premature."

Mr. Coyle points out that "the conflict between labor and employers is an obstacle to the clear definition of the New Deal. If the American people are to destroy the power of finance, the Government must have the support of the intelligent part of the business and professional group.

"However bankrupt intellectually the conservatives may be, they can not be dislodged from their financial stranglehold on business if the middle class chooses to take the conservative side. The only outcome of such an alignment must be a Fascist regime, incapable of solving the problem of distribution and loaded by its very nature for an explosion similar to but worse than that of 1929.

"Quest for Freedom."

"The New Deal is the quest of the American people for a way to free themselves from the octopus of finance that has been strangling their free business for several generations. The essence of the New Deal is that some day the lines shall be drawn for a battle between the American people and the lords of finance.

"The American people have set out to find a stable prosperity in a system that will allow a fair amount of individual freedom of initiative. They are not headed for fascism or communism, and if they fall into either of those systems it will be only after their present quest has ended in disappointment."

Mr. Coyle placed the solution of grave problems of labor unrest on the continued influence of the President, and concluded that "the more desperate parts of the journey are still to come, but the tide of destiny is setting strongly in toward the new land of plenty. If the country can keep its nerve while the present boomlet dies away, and if the leaders of the New Deal can think fast enough, the chance of arriving successfully appears to be good."

Among the articles in the review are "An Anatomy of Revolution," concerning Europe's revolutionary past, by Prof. Robert C. Binkley, of Western Reserve University; "Revolt From Realism," a review of the theater, by Walter Prichard Eaton, of Yale University, and a short story by Josephine Pinckney, of South Carolina.

Milk Board Plans To Continue Work

Virginia Court Ruling to Be Given Later.

Richmond, Sept. 14 (AP).—While the test of the constitutionality of the State milk act is being made in the State Supreme Court, the milk commission today said it would continue its work supervising the control of production and distribution of milk on eight markets already licensed.

The markets licensed are those at Roanoke, licensed June 16; Danville, licensed July 1; Harrisonburg, licensed July 1; Staunton and Waynesboro, licensed July 22; Lynchburg, licensed July 26; Petersburg and Hopewell, licensed July 27; Newport News and Williamsburg, licensed August 13, and Norfolk, where hearings were completed this week.

A market was licensed at Charlottesville, but milk men there withdrew after a period of difficulties.

The case now before the Supreme Court grew out of complaints in Staunton. The case is on the court's docket in Staunton, but there has been no indication as to when it will come up.

Mrs. Harry Hendricks Funeral Is Conducted

Shenandoah Junction, W. Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Funeral services for Mrs. Lucy Hendricks, 73, who died here Wednesday, were held at her home this afternoon. The Rev. John W. Rosenberger, pastor of the Charles Town Methodist Episcopal Church South officiated. Interment was at Shepherdstown.

Mrs. Hendricks is survived by her husband, Harry Hendricks, a daughter, Jessie, at home, and the following sisters: Mrs. Harvey Hendricks and Mrs. Norman Lucas, of the county, and Mrs. Roland Snow, of Shepherdstown.

Church Builds Parish House.

Oakland, Md., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—St. Matthew's Protestant Episcopal parish has authorized construction of a parish house at a cost of approximately $6,500. Work on the foundation has begun.

Hunt for Wife Ends in Killing Of Her Mother

Richmond, Sept. 14 (AP).—Robert Bruffy, 26, was near death at Memorial Hospital here tonight with three bullets in his body.

They came from the pistol of his father-in-law, John J. Silva, who told police he fired after Bruffy had killed Mrs. Silva in a savage attack. The woman died from the results of more than 50 blows on the face with a fist and the effects of having her head beaten against a brick wall.

Bruffy's wife, who was living with her parents, said today that he carried a stethoscope with him when he came searching for her last night. She said he intended to use it to be sure Mrs. Silva was dead.

Mrs. Frances Godfrey, at whose home the attack occurred, said Bruff came there seeking his wife, a frequent visitor at the house. He created a disturbance, she said, and Mrs. Silva, living two doors away, called her daughter to come home. Bruffy, Mrs. Godfrey said, then attacked Mrs. Silva. When the woman tried to crawl from him into the house, he kicked and beat her as she lay on the floor, Mrs. Godfrey asserted.

Silva, armed, met Bruffy, who was searching the house for his wife. At the first shot Bruffy ran screaming from the house. Two more bullets struck him.

James A. Arnold, 74, Paid Last Tribute

Fredericksburg Stockman Died on Wednesday.

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held today for James A. Arnold, 74, stock raiser and agricultural authority, who died Wednesday in the Mary Washington Hospital.

The Rev. Dudley Doogher, of St. George's Episcopal Church, conducted the rites from the Arnold home. Burial was in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Arnold is survived by his wife, Mrs. Annabelle Barnes Arnold, and four daughters. They are Miss Edna Arnold, Fredericksburg; Mrs. Frank McLaughlin, Washington; Mrs. Roland Maxwell, Woodstock, Md., and Mrs. S. D. Moore, Richmond.

Neely, McNutt to Speak At Parkersburg Meeting

Parkersburg, W. Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—United States Senator M. M. Neely and Gov. Paul V. McNutt of Indiana will be among the speakers on the program of the West Virginia State Educational Association convention in Parkersburg October 25 to 27, when approximately 5,000 teachers are expeted to gather here.

3,000 Firemen Hold Sessions At Hagerstown

Eastern Fire Chiefs Open 3-Day Meeting; Parade Set Today.

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 14 (Spl.). Several hundred fire chiefs, delegates from five States and the District of Columbia, gathered here today with the convening of the seventh annual three-day convention of the Eastern Association of Fire Chiefs.

Ross B. Davis, Philadelphia, president of the association, presided at the opening session which heard an address of welcome by Mayor I. M. Wertz, with a response from Chief John Kenlon, New York City, chairman of the association's board of directors.

A tour of historic points this afternoon, followed by a midnight theater party, featured the first day. Three thousand firemen from all sections are expected to participate in a parade here tomorrow night, in which will be scores of pieces of modern fire-fighting equipment.

Fire chiefs from New York City, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia are in attendance.

A grand ball will be held tomorrow night, followed by special shows and dances. A banquet will be held at noon tomorrow, which will be followed by drills and competition at the city park.

Waynesboro, Pa., Sept. 14 (Spl.). Organization of a ladies' auxiliary of the Mechanics Fire Company, composed of 26 members, has been effected here. Officers are, president, Mrs. H. F. Poper; vice president, Mrs. Alfred Fitz; secretary, Mrs. Homer Kriner; treasurer, Mrs. Jesse Byers.

The group will make its first public appearance tomorrow, when it will march in the Fire Chiefs Association parade in Hagerstown, Md.

Greencastle, Pa., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—The Rescue Hose Company will be represented in the parade to be held in Hagerstown in connection with the convention of the Eastern Fire Chiefs Association.

Williams to Join Staff of College

Richmond, Sept. 14 (AP). — Dr. George A. Williams, State director of the emergency education program, will become a professor at Harrisonburg State Teachers College on September 22, he announced today as he handed in his resignation.

Dr. Williams holds degrees from Lebanon Valley College, Iowa State College and Yale University. He has taught at Iowa State, Yale University Medical School, Bethany College, Atlantic Christian College, Jefferson Medical College, Atlantic University and Fredericksburg State Teachers College.

He has held his present post since last November.

Arrests for Intoxication Show Heavy Increase in Virginia

Richmond, Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Arrest figures in Richmond have climbed steadily since the State started selling whisky four months ago, reaching an all-time record in August, when 2,493 were jailed on one charge or another, as compared with 1,956 arrests in August, 1933.

Drunks arrested set an all-time high with 546, and 594 were charged with being disorderly. Reckless drivers followed with 245, while only 71 were charged with ABC law violations. Police say they are making no drive on drunks. Twenty-seven of those arrested for drunkenness were under 21.

Roanoke, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—A sharp increase in arrests for drunkenness since repeal of prohibition has been noted in police records here. Two State liquor stores opened in Roanoke on June 13 and since that time arrests for drunkenness have averaged about 250 per month more than in the same period of 1933.

In July, police records show, 284 persons were arrested for being drunk, and in August there were 261 arrests. Last year the figures were 176 for July and 157 for August. There were 56 "drunks" on police dockets on the day after Labor Day, a new high record for a single session. The previous record was 43.

In the same connection local officials also are perturbed over the seemingly increasing rate of fatal accidents.

Lynchburg, Va., September 14 (Spl.).—Arrests for drunkenness here last month show more than a 100 per cent increase, the number being 187. In August a year ago the total was 75.

Bandit Blinds Relief Paymaster With Pepper, Flees With $418

Baltimore, Sept. 14 (Spl.).—A bedraggled man walked into the office of the Federal Transient Bureau in East Baltimore today, slapped the glasses from the nose of Herman Avery, paymaster at the bureau, and flung red pepper into Avery's eyes.

Then the ragged robber snatched an envelope containing $418 from Avery's desk, and dashed from the room. Pursued by a clerk, both slipped on the stairs and fell, but the fugitive regained his feet and fled in a cab.

An hour later police, guided by a small boy, arrested a man who gave his name as Joseph Taylor, 34. Taylor was hiding in a small closet in a house near the robbery scene and was discovered by the boy, Nathan Sterling.

A search of Taylor's clothing and his room resulted in the recovery of $361 of the stolen money, but Taylor refused to tell what he had done with the rest. He said he spent a night earlier this week in a transient home in Washington, and came to Baltimore this morning. He is held for court action on the robbery charge. Avery was not seriously harmed. The money was for payment of workers on relief projects.

Mill Hand Lives With Jaw Severed By Saw Accident

Danville, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Keen medical interest is being manifested by local physicians in the case of Robert Kepley, 24-year-old sawmill hand, of Caswell County, N. C., who is miraculously surviving cranial injuries, in Memorial Hospital here.

A metal dog on the carriage of the saw fouled the blade and was flung into his face with such violence that his jaw was severed and his head cut open. Twelve cranial fractures have been discovered and the fragment of metal penetrating his face remains under the brain.

He is taking nourishment and has shown no sign of succumbing.

France Takes Lead on Miller In Senate Race

Gains in Tardy Returns in Washington County; Hill Runs Third.

Baltimore, Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Tardy election returns from Washington County, which arrived in Baltimore late today, sent Dr. Joseph I. France into the lead over C. Wilbur Miller in the race for the Republican senatorial nomination.

The vote from Washington County was 2,457 votes for France, 2,033 for John Philip Hill, and 2,026 for Miller. Somerset County's vote, which also reached Baltimore today, gave Dr. France 765 votes; Miller, 372, and Hill, 415.

Accordingly, in the State-wide vote, France forged ahead of Miller by just 11 votes, and indicated that he will have 57 votes in the State nominating convention. Miller will have 51, and Hill 38. Seventy-five votes are necessary for nomination.

France May Lose Out.

Even though France has the lead in the total number of votes in the primary election and in the nominating convention, he will not necessarily win the nomination. His failure to win the needed 75 votes in the nominating convention will make it necessary for the convention to invoke the second-choice system for picking its nominee, and either Miller or Hill might be the choice under this system.

The nominating convention is scheduled for September 27, and it will be then that the final decision will be made.

Hill is said to have been a heavy favorite on the second-choice vote. He ran on the ticket headed by Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough, who polled 34 convention votes for Governor, against 106 by Harry W. Nice, the nominee of the Republicans, and six by Smith, the other of the three G. O. P. candidates.

If Hill achieves the nomination, he would be running for Senator on a ticket other than that on which he ran in the primary election, but Republican officials promise a harmonious fight in spite of the antagonism of the primary.

Ritchie Had Close Call.

A tabulation of votes today showed that Gov. Ritchie polled 106 votes in the Democratic State convention, against 43 accorded to Dr. Charles H. Conley, of Frederick, his opponent in the Democratic primary.

This does not tell the whole story, however. Dr. Conley ran so close behind the Governor in many counties and city districts that a difference of 2,000 votes throughout the State would have defeated Ritchie and given the nomination to Dr. Conley. These 2,000 votes, of course, would have to be distributed to the doctor's advantage. For instance, a turnover of 558 votes in Washington County would have given him the county's seven convention votes; a turnover of 200 votes would have given him the 12 convention votes of Carroll, Garrett and Howard Counties.

The Republicans are delighted at the showing Dr. Conley made, claiming almost the entire vote he received was an anti-Ritchie vote by disgruntled Democrats. They foresee victory, as a consequence, in the general election in November.

Anne Arundel Gives Ritchie Big Majority

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 14 (AP).—With the smoke of battle cleared following the primary election, political observers in both parties in Anne Arundel County today were busy taking stock and analyzing the results.

On the Democratic side the State ticket came out about as expected, with Ritchie for Governor and Radcliffe for the United States Senate and Representative Gambrill swamping his biennial rival, John W. Klemm, with a 10-to-1 vote.

As predicted, the entire Democratic county ticket backed by the "organization" was nominated, with one exception. That was the victory of W. Meade Holladay, of Annapolis, over Lewis H. Kelly, county commissioner from the Fourth District, for the nomination as register of wills.

G.O.P. Slate Announced In Frederick Primary

Frederick, Md., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—With two precincts out of 57 missing in Frederick County, not expected to change results, successful Republicans at the primary election yesterday were made known today.

They are: Sheriff, Guy P. Anders, Frederick; county treasurer, Thomas A. Chaplins, renominated, Frederick; register of wills, Leslie W. Glaver, Middletown; State senator, Harry W. Legore, Legore; House of Delegates, Joseph Hard, Myersville; Howard Kefauver, Middletown; Joseph B. Payne, Brunswick, and Jacob B. Ramsburg and John F. Thompson, Frederick; county commissioners, Abraham H. Derr, U. Grant Hooper, Frederick, and Jesse I. Renner, New Midway.

There was no contest for clerk of the circuit court, judges of the orphans court, State's attorney and surveyor. The vote for register of wills and two of the county commissioners is so close that the final result will not be known until the vote is officially canvassed by the election supervisors.

Nice Is Winner, But Ticket Lags At Hagerstown

Washington County G.O.P. Primary Vote Count Is Completed.

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 14 (Spl.). The complete count today in the Republican primary in Washington County, while giving Harry W. Nice, for Governor, a plurality of 339 over Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough, returned the Old Guard which supported Goldsborough victorious in the central committee fight which named five of the seven members.

Andrew K. Coffman, Thomas Hassett, J. Frank Ridenour, Edward M. Tenney and D. Angle Wolfinger won, while J. Lloyd Harshman and David Ankeney, candidates on the Young Republican Group, which supported Nice, were elected. Joseph I. France received 2,457; John Philip Hill, 2,033, and C. Wilbur Miller, 2,026 in the Senate race. Fred N. Zihlman's margin was 3,802 over William A. Gunter for Congressional nomination.

Scott McClelland Kline was nominated for sheriff by a 44-vote margin; Ernest W. Miller is State Senate nominee by 1,726 margin; Martin L. Ingram, State's attorney nominee, by 1,071; Harry E. Keedy, county treasurer, by 3,505; John Ankeney, Simon L. Downey, F. T. Fiery, Frank B. Beard, sr., and John B. Beard are county commissioner winners in a ten-man race.

Carroll County Vote Shows Close Races

Westminster, Md., Sept. 14 (Spl.). Tabulation of Carroll County primary returns, made shortly after noon, yesterday, revealed a record of more than 50 per cent of the county's registered voting strength, and a general victory for organization candidates.

Of more than 60 candidates aspiring to office, the principal fight centered around the contest for State's attorney on the Democratic ticket. Bruce Bair was defeated by John Wood, whose victory was assured when both Mount Airy and Berrett districts gave him a majority of 330 votes.

With each party having six candidates on the ticket, the contest for sheriff was also spirited, especially in the Republican ranks, where George C. Fowble, Westminster, former sheriff, was defeated by John Shipley, Sykesville, by less than 100 votes. Charles W. Conaway, of Westminster, is the Democratic nominee.

Only four members of the old Democratic State Central committee were renominated as the result of a contest which developed when five additional candidates filed for that office. A. B. Sellman, Mount Airy, former chairman of the committee, withdrew when the contest developed as his position on the board of election supervisors prevented him from becoming a candidate for any office in which there was a contest.

Robert W. Carter, Sykesville, and William Conaway, Westminster, brother of the successful Democratic candidate for sheriff, are the new members of the committee, replacing Mr. Sellman and Mrs. Charles O. Clemson, Westminster.

Delegate Race Tight.

For the House of Delegates on the Republican ticket, C. Ray Barnes, Winfield; Charles B. Kephart, Taneytown, and Melvin W. Routson, Uniontown, all former delegates, were nominated, with Carroll S. Rinehart, Union Bridge, as the new nominee, replacing Sherman Flanagan, who was not a candidate. The result of Routson's nomination was uncertain until the returns from the last precinct were announced, both Routson and Ernest W. Pickett, Woodbine, having 2,067 votes, before Precinct No. 2, Westminster, completed the final count.

The defeat of Mrs. Mary Speir, Westminster, Democratic candidate for the House of Delegates, came as the second defeat for a woman aspirant for this office, Mrs. Chester Hobbs, Mount Airy, having lost a similar nomination eight years ago.

Another close contest was revealed in final returns for Republican Orphans Court judge, J. Albert Mitten, Westminster, being defeated by John H. Brown, New Windsor, by 200.

An additional contest was held in Manchester District, where opposition to the Conley gubernatorial ticket resulted in defeat for the former county central committee. New members of the committee are Walter E. Garrett, William U. Hersh, Jacob L. Myers, Charles L. H. Miller, Samuel J. Warner and Rock H. N. Zumbrum.

With returns in new registration throughout the county on Tuesday, incomplete, reports from 13 out of 26 precincts show 398 Democrats registered and 300 Republicans. The official count of Wednesday's balloting started at noon today.

Dry Law Is Beaten.

Emmitsburg, Md., Sept. 14 (Spl.). Returns yesterday from the three precincts here gave over a 2-to-1 majority for the wet referendum.

Out of the 606 votes cast at the primaries, Frank J. Campbell, of Emmitsburg, Democratic candidate for State's attorney in Frederick County, was given 364. Ernest R. Shriver, of this district, Republican candidate for county commissioner, received 187.

Pocomoke City, Md., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—State Senator Milton L. Veasey, Democrat, won renomination by a margin of 101 votes over L. Griffin Callahan in one of the most contested primary elections ever held in Worcester County, according to the latest reports today.

Dr. Charles H. Conley defeated Gov. Ritchie in the gubernatorial contest. George L. Radcliffe won the senatorial contest from W. M. Maloy. Samuel E. Brimer, Ralph R. Dennis, and Clarence E. Robertson won the Democratic nomination for the Maryland House of Delegates and Thomas F. Johnson for State's attorney.

Radio Waves and Ripples

By George M. Adams, Jr.

AH! At last the arrival of "The Gibson Family" and Roxy's "ear pictures," two events heralded with endless eloquence and boundless prediction by scores of handouts variously proclaiming that a "new art form is about to be launched" and a new broadcasting technique to be spilled on the air.

Running rough shod over the dying gasps of stage musical comedy, "The Gibson Family," is intended to create a new tradition in radio merely by airing the ups and downs that most American families know. So in their full hour show, Messrs. Arthur Schwartz and Howard Dietz, authors of the "Band Wagon" and "Three's a Crowd," with the aid of Courtney Ryley Cooper, who wrote the script, are proceeding in the hope that listeners will find their show everything that legitimate musical comedy is not. The "Gibson Family" will run for 38 weeks in 38 self-contained dramas over N. B. C. networks at 8:30 p. m.

C. B. S.'s countering effort, the work of that gentle showman, Roxy, will occupy a 45-minute spot at 7 p. m. with a large and elaborate show of new discoveries and the first presentation of his "ear pictures." The premier tonight will depict an "ear picture" of British India in the eighteenth century, the old South, and a cross-section of life as seen along New York's Riverside drive. Reinald Werrenrath, barytone, who knows his "Fuzzy Wuzzy" and "Danny Deever," will sing during the vista of India.

Combining sound effects, musical suggestion and dialogue, Roxy's dear old "ear pictures" seem to promise more amusement. They intend to replace nothing. No! They aren't going to joust with "The Gibson Family" to fulfill that new art form that thousands of writers, artists and musicians fairly howled for after Sigmund Spaeth sent out his far-reaching questionnaire just to see if the boys would bite when he invited them to tell what was wrong with radio.

Well! N. B. C.'s offering of the "Gibson Family" tonight has been promised as the balm to ease the hurts of millions of listeners who have found average programs very conclusively boring. You'll have a whole hour to decide.

THE Ross-McLarnin fight will be broadcast tonight from Madison Square Garden over N. B. C. networks, according to reports current here late yesterday.

Earlier announcement of the event is usually withheld, as Garden officials feel that many fans, knowing in advance that the bout would be aired, prefer to stay home and listen. Look for further announcements on the air about 8:30 p. m.—the main event should go on at 9 p. m.

A MERE "pf-f-ft" in the air, that rumor unveiled from nowhere, stating that N. B. C. announcer's voices might be scrutinized through recordings.

Emanating from the feverish brain of someone who "received word somehow," it develops that Kenneth H. Berkely, station manager, has no such intentions. He likes his boys. They're all one happy family. But if the person who made intimations of an "ordeal" about to be thrust upon such fine laddies as Messrs, Coyle, McGrath, Mayo, Rogers, Youse, Kimball, Bell and Douglas, will get in touch with Mr. Berkely, maybe something can be done about it.

Berkely, by the way, will listen today to an announcer from New York, who, if he shows up, might get the vacancy due October 15 in N. B. C.'s announcing ranks. Auditions held Thursday of local announcing material produced nothing sufficiently impressive to excite Mr. Berkely.

"GODFREY, McDonald and Reilly may be kind and 'good to their mothers' but they are rotten announcers," writes one J. E. S. "Everyone of discernment knows this," he adds.

Then his scathing pen lights upon your scribe. "In their defense," he continues with a flourish, "you line up with all the morons who support them. You line up with the kind of people who support Jimmy Durante on the air. You line up with those writers who support radio in everything, right or wrong."

For our many and manifest sins he therefore nominates us to the honor of "President of the Yes-men's Club of Radio." Most unkind, sir! Most unkind! But with the last feeble ounce of discernment still left to our wavering discrimination we welcome your deluge of criticism and suggest you get in touch with the "morons" who have been maintaining Messrs. Godfrey, McDonald and Reilly on the air these many months. Prophetic enlightenment is their dish . . . if it fall from the hand of one so young and so inexpert at the typewriter.

"MON DIEU! Mee-stair Allen!"

"'Ave you evaire been to ze Folies Ber-zaire? For that you do not need a voice . . . you need th-e-e-se! (business of describing a sinuous arc in the air).

The above, with variations, occurred yesterday in N. B. C.'s reception salon as Lucie Delza, a dark, piquant singer of Gallic songs, pinioned Shannon Allen to a sofa because he had inadvertenly assumed or heard that she had been a performer with the Folies Bergere, one of the milder Parisian spots.

Mademoiselle Delza, just returned from a North African tour, specializes in the "My Man" school of romantic heat . . . personal and intimate. Recently she found her way to Allen's Airbreaks. And Allen, perhaps, not recovered from an overdose of De Maupassant, therefore forgot for the moment that all French singers do not linger in the stalls at that bad, bad place, where Americans confirm their suspicions about Gallic voluptuousness.

No Longer Deliberative.

James M. Beck's voluntary decision to retire from Congress at the conclusion of his present term is doubly significant. It will remove from the House one of the few remaining Representatives deserving or desiring the title of scholar; it emphasizes a change not only in the Congressional mind, but as well in the Congressional method.

A brilliant lawyer and a scarcely less brilliant author, he has never been a mere politician. A half dozen universities and colleges have conferred honorary degrees upon him; France, Belgium and Poland have given him decorations. He is a fellow of learned societies here and abroad, an honorary bencher of Gray's Inn. From 1921 to 1925 he was Solicitor General of the United States. He carried into Congress, and maintained there, the torch of the Old Tradition and the flag of the Grand Manner.

But, at 73, James Montgomery Beck is also a realist. In what was once one of the world's greatest forums for the shaping of legislation through debate, he has seen debate decline and effective opposition at least temporarily disappear. He has seen the most important measures initiated by the Executive, formulated in committee and then rushed through the House by methods that would be entirely those of the steam-roller if a steam-roller could attain the speed of an airplane.

His retirement will not diminish the number of seats held by the opposition, for the district he has so ably represented is unalterably Republican; but he believes that there can no longer be any use for his special type of talents in a designedly deliberative body that has ceased to be deliberative. Certainly the House offers little inducement to continued service by distinguished members of the minority when —as Mr. Beck phrases it—that minority is "denied adequate opportunity . . . even to offer amendments to proposed legislation."

The Safety Campaign.

Officials are naturally disappointed at the sudden increase of traffic fatalities this month in spite of their safety campaign. But they have no reason to be discouraged, and abandonment of the safety campaign ought not to be contemplated.

No one who is familiar with efforts of this kind hoped for spectacular results from the safety campaign during the first few weeks it was in operation. Education of the public under any conditions is a slow and tedious process. It comes through constant and persistent efforts rather than spectacular campaigns. And in most cases something more persuasive than mere "education" is needed.

The fact that fewer accidents have occurred in recent weeks and fewer people have been injured suggests that some progress has been made, even though the number of fatalities has suddenly increased. No doubt the public at large is responding, at least in some measure, to the safety campaign. But the minority, which habitually violates traffic regulations, doubtless continues to do so. It is questionable whether this group can be effectively influenced by the "Voice of Safety" or by polite warnings resulting from the observations of the special traffic observers. In view of the current trend of accidents more drastic measures in dealing with persistent and flagrant violations of the traffic law are certainly in order.

Even the most effective safety campaign is only a first step toward reduction of traffic accidents. To obtain the best results it should be accompanied by rigid enforcement of traffic laws; by thorough examinations for all drivers and by the withdrawal of permits from individuals who prove incompetent to operate a motor car with safety. It goes without saying that all unnatural hazards, such as blind approaches to dangerous intersections, should be eliminated, and regulation on arterial streets should be adequate at all hours. More emphasis on these aspects of the traffic problem, combined with the safety campaign, would afford a basis for permanent as well as substantial improvements.

Lack Of Coordination.

Law-abiding citizens are instinctively repelled by the spectacle of the Federal Government prosecuting for nonpayment of income taxes gangsters and racketeers whose crimes against society should long since have landed them behind prison bars. However, this anomaly, revealing the inadequacy of our methods of law enforcement, is one to which the American people have become accustomed of late years. Consequently, it seems quite an ordinary and logical proceeding for the Treasury to announce its intention of conducting a vigorous drive against evaders of special excise taxes now operating illegally in dry States.

Under existing Federal statutes persons engaged in the manufacture or sale of alcoholic beverages are required to pay a Federal occupational tax, whether their business has the sanction of local law or not. The Treasury is legally bound to attempt to collect such taxes from individuals operating in defiance of local laws. Officials carefully explain that payment of this special tax does not give bootleggers a license to operate in dry States. Nevertheless, the Federal Government presumably expects that most of the tax-paying violators of local laws will continue in business. Otherwise they would probably find means of evading the tax collector.

The situation is humiliating to public-spirited individuals who believe that law-breakers when discovered should be punished in accordance with the terms of the law. Indeed, the absence of coordination between State and Federal laws and law enforcing agencies, which permits and indeed enjoins the Federal Government to profit from the violation of local laws, is a serious indictment of our legal system. Such conditions tend to demoralize public sentiment and make the work of law enforcement increasingly difficult.

Reassuring Business.

A number of spokesmen for the Administration have lately taken pains to assure business men that the Government is not seeking to deprive them of fair profits. Chairman Jones, of the RFC, thought it desirable to repeat this assurance in an address delivered before the National Business Conference at Babson Park, Mass. He added, however, "I wonder since when should the President of the United States be required to assure or guarantee any class of citizens a net profit—whether business, labor, farming or what not."

Of course, no business man expects assurances from the Government that he will be protected against the normal losses and hazards of a private profit economy. On the other hand, business will not be satisfied by mere verbal assertions that the present Administration does not contemplate a revolutionary assault upon the system of private ownership and operation. What is wanted is tangible evidence that the New Deal policies will not create conditions which deprive the average competent and intelligent business man of the possibility of earning a fair profit.

So long as business men are hampered in making future commitments by fear of currency manipulation; so long as investment activities are curbed for similar reasons as well as checked by restrictive laws, and profits are cut or destroyed by policies that result in raising costs of production prior to an improvement in demand, there will be lack of confidence in the outlook. In the very address in which Mr. Jones sought to reassure his audience, for instance, he urged employers to assume new liabilities by taking on more workers. Indeed, he stated that the responsibility for removing people from relief rolls rests with business and industry.

Assertions of this sort go far toward destroying the effect of soothing generalizations about official regard for the profit motive in industry. Unemployment is a responsibility for the community as a whole—it can not be met by simple appeals to industry to take on workers who can not be employed with profit. Emphasis upon moral responsibility is misplaced under existing conditions. If the Administration and its spokesmen believe that fair profits, fairly earned, supply the stimulus which provides work and wages for the idle, they should seek to restore the conditions essential to the emergence of profits. The resultant stimulus to business and investment activity will then absorb workers now dependent upon relief funds.

Closing The Gap.

According to the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the general average of wholesale commodity prices advanced to the highest level of the year during the week ending September 8, when it stood at 77.8 per cent of the 1926 average—the maximum figure reported since January, 1931. Of especial significance is the appreciation in prices of farm products and of foods, which has been so rapid that it has almost closed the gap between agricultural prices and those of other commodities.

Thus, the index of the farm products group for the week ending September 8 stood at 74.3 per cent of the 1926 average, which is 31 per cent higher than it was a year ago. Food prices also have advanced 19 per cent as compared with a year ago. As a result of this relative improvement in agricultural prices, the index for all commodities, exclusive of farm products and foods, is now only a few points above the index for farm products. Reflecting pronounced advance in wholesale prices of foodstuffs, retail food prices have been climbing rapidly of late, advancing 3.2 per cent in the last two weeks of August.

To the extent that higher prices for agricultural commodities result in a better distribution of income between farmers and industrial producers, they are a welcome development—one which has, indeed, been announced as a major objective of the recovery program. The rise in the price of food at retail which follows will undoubtedly be an extra charge upon the incomes of industrial workers, but in so far as higher prices add to the total returns of the farming population the resultant reallocation of incomes is calculated to assist business recovery.

Unfortunately, the higher prices paid for farm products will not bring corresponding increases in total farm income because the drought has destroyed crops over a wide area where many farmers will have to be supported by bonus and relief payments. However, it is estimated that despite the drought, the advance in prices, supplemented by rental benefits, has been great enough to produce a total cash income for farmers $1,000,000,000 in excess of the amounts received in 1933, or a gain of 19 per cent.

Moreover, the drought together with the systematic curtailment of output has succeeded in solving the problem of overhanging farm surpluses. Obviously, the improved domestic marketing position in case of basic commodities such as wheat, cotton, and cattle, is not a tribute to the perfection of the planners' art but chiefly the outcome of a natural disaster which has spread devastation over a wide area, and added greatly to the burden of Federal relief expenditures. Such liabilities as well as the losses to business due to decreased buying in badly affected farm regions will in part neutralize the benefits of higher prices for farm products in more favored regions. On balance, however, the gains appear to outweigh the losses so far as the farming population as a whole is concerned.

The price indices show that one of the most frequently noted causes of the depression—the maladjustment between farm and industrial prices—has been virtually eliminated from consideration. The depressed state of the markets for farm products can no longer be cited as a major obstacle to general business revival. Attention may, therefore, be concentrated to an increasing extent upon those impediments to revival caused by monetary and fiscal policies which impair investment confidence.

Nice Vs. Ritchie.

An interesting race for the governorship of Maryland is forecast by the final returns of the primary elections. Harry W. Nice, Republican, will oppose Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, Democrat, who is seeking reelection for a fifth term. Any one who challenges Gov. Ritchie in the Old Line State assumes a tremendous responsibility. Yet it is conceded that Mr. Nice will make a strong fight.

Perhaps the most unfortunate element in the Democratic primary was the solid vote against Gov. Ritchie on the Eastern Shore. It is true, of course, that the people of this section have never been enthusiastic about Mr. Ritchie. In preprohibition days he was an ardent wet, while the Eastern Shore is politically dry. But that is not the most important element in the anti-Ritchie vote. The Governor is disliked because he took a courageous stand against mob law on the Eastern Shore.

The surprising strength of Dr. Charles H. Conley is significant chiefly because it is being interpreted as a protest vote against the Governor. In 15 years of continuous service as Chief Executive at Annapolis Mr. Ritchie and his appointees have made some enemies, as all governors do. In fact, it appears that the very length of his service is in some respects a handicap, for the reason that people are, as Shakespeare said, inclined to forget the real accomplishments of a career and remember its mistakes. That is a sad commentary on politics, but nevertheless true.

No doubt Gov. Ritchie will stand on his record, even though it covers the depression years in which dissatisfaction with public officials has become widespread in nearly every part of the country. Presumably Mr. Nice will challenge that record. It is to be hoped that the fight will be conducted on clear-cut issues of this sort, without the play upon racial prejudices and mobocracy which entered into the primaries.

Say It Isn't So!

Barney Gallant occupies a peculiar niche in prohibition's hall of fame by virtue of having been one of the first of a long roll call of individuals who went to jail for violating the Volstead Act. He is better known as the man who introduced the cover charge to Greenwich Village. In either capacity he is looked upon by fellow New Yorkers as one of their own. But Barney is quitting the Village. That section which he found a congerie of stables, garrets and poets and left a place of apartment houses, studios and crooners, no longer holds any particular lure for him. So, he says, he is going to Florida. He expects another boom there.

While we wish Mr. Gallant all the luck in the world and hope for his sake that he may, as he declares he will, prove fallacious the old saying that a rolling stone gathers no moss, we hope he proves it anywhere but Florida. We especially hope he is wrong about another Florida boom. If there has been any one consolation about the depression it has been the complete disappearance of the subdivision, either beside or under water; of the high-pressured realtors (how they felt insulted when they were called real estate agents; didn't they copyright the name, realtor?); of the gaudy posters and folders; the ridiculous statements and advertising; the cross-country trek of Fords to Florida; the palms; the villas; the cities that were swamps; the architectural impossibilities that sprang out of the ooze and sand—all this, we hoped, had gone forever.

And now comes Barney Gallant, wiseacre from Greenwich Village, to warn us of another "boom." If we must have another boom, can't it be elsewhere than Florida? We doubt if we could survive another such exhibition, despite our friendship for Hamilton Wright, who has so faithfully posed bathing girls throughout these boomless years in a desperate effort to keep us all from forgetting the miracle that was Miami—before the depression and the hurricane.

A Parade of the Past From the Files of The Post.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

LONDON REPORTS said that the battle of the Marne had about come to an end, with the Germans, who had retreated quite some distance, with considerable variation at different points, attempting to straighten out their front in preparation for the next big battle.

REPORTS FROM Berlin said the Germans were partly successful and a general battle was still in progress. Gen. Hindenburg's army was reforming in the eastern war theater after the conclusion of his pursuit.

DEMOCRATIC MEMBERS of the House in a caucus agreed on the proposed war revenue tax bill. Beer, wines and tobacco were to pay the heaviest toll. There was to be a special stamp levy upon banks and brokers, stock shares, drafts and telegrams. The proposed bill was expected to meet strong opposition in the Senate.

Favors Liberty League.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It does not matter so much to me the political complexion of the American Liberty League. I am concerned about what it stands for and the reasons for its birth. One of its charter members—John W. Davis—I served with in the West Virginia Legislature when he was 21 years old and had ample opportunity to judge the motives that prompted his actions on all questions coming before that body, and am in position to testify of his high character, honesty of purpose and great ability.

When he has been employed by big corporations, in recent years, it was solely because he has a great mind and wonderful legal ability. The same can be said of Al Smith and other members of the original organization, Democrats and Republicans. For anyone to insinuate that these men have a selfish interest in forming this organization is to assassinate some of the finest characters as well as some of the ablest men of the Nation. The questions raised by this organization are so vital to every American who loves his home that the question of which party would gain or lose by its operation is immaterial and should not be given consideration. To reject or ignore the continuance of the things it stands for means the overthrow of our Government, namely, the principles that made this country the greatest in the world. In our very worst financial troubles the American masses were much better off than any other people of the world. Let us guard these God-given rights—not only for ourselves, but for future generations.

In the past three months I have traveled through ten States and have talked to many people of all parties. I find at least 90 per cent greatly confused.

Now, to whom are the great, loyal Americans, who love their homes and country, in both political parties, to look for protection in this their hour of great need? They can not hope for relief in the two great parties from this radical element, as I have endeavored to point out.

The American Liberty League comes to us now with an offer of relief. It says, "If you are a Democrat, continue to be one. If you are a Republican, do the same thing, or a member of any other party, do likewise," but let us join hands on common ground for one or more purposes in order that we may beat back our common enemy, those radicals who would destroy our Government and take from us our privileges and liberties which are dearer than life itself to all true Americans. Jobs for Young Folk.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please permit a mother of three jobless young folk to beg help upon the solution of the job problem. The trouble is monopoly and improper distribution of jobs, along many lines.

Married women whose husbands are in the United States service are holding thousands of positions that should be held by young men well fitted. The young men want to marry; many of them feel hopeless and their morale is breaking. Why feel surprise at the Socialistic tendency of young people? They are not bitter over monopoly of property, but monopoly of employment. As an example, take the Home Loan Office. Many new jobs are being given out, married women have a great many. Young men are turned down. Women whose husbands have Government positions have places in the Home Loan. I know, personally, of cases in the Treasury and Department of Agriculture where husband and wife are jointly drawing salaries of $6,000 and $9,000 per year. The married women will hold their places until they are forced out. The plight of young people does not interest them.

Give the young man a break—so willing and anxious to be up and doing, but his job occupied by a married woman who wants more luxuries and no responsibilities. I have heard so much discussion by young college men and women, who want a chance, that I am greatly moved by the situation. How can it be improved or changed?

MOTHER OF FOUR.

The South Trimble Club.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We have been called upon to define "brain trust." Not being able to find a definition in public print, we are submitting the following question and answer:

What is the "brain trust?"

It is that intangible force which controls the exercise of brain power. For good or for evil, the brain trust controls.

Brain-power can be obtained only through the processes of constructive thinking. The results of constructive thinking are attained only through the processes of action, application and transformation. To accomplish anything it is necessary to use brawn, money and brain. Brawn is labor; money is the incentive, and brain is the control.

Trusts were started in Queen Elizabeth's time, and as they were for the purpose of managing church property, they were good trusts, from a Christian point of view. They served so well that they were quickly commercialized and used for general business purposes. As used for business purposes, abuses of power conferred commenced to creep in and such abuses were enforced for the reason that trusts were legal and the abuses were within the law. Hence, it was found necessary to pass laws to curb the vicious practices of trusts and to protect the public against unfair practices.

Therefore, the brain trust, as we know it today, is—organized, legal exercise of brain-power.

"The Stuff of Dreams."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Taking up The Post of September 8, as usual, to get the latest news from the various fronts, I saw (or thought I saw) this editorial heading: "Mind—The Only Reality," so construed by Sir James Jeans. Of course I guessed right away why Congress, in recent years, has appeared so unreal; but you, Mr. Editor (although, according to Sir James, you may be only a mathematical symbol dressed up) may imagine my state of incredulity when I learned that the editorial itself, and your whole paper, and all the happenings therein recorded, are only "clothing, which I myself had draped over mathematical symbols." Well, some papers are like that, and don't even have the drapery, but I had thought better of The Post.

I was about to lay aside your imaginary paper, as no more than a bedizened symbol, with its seeming 24 pages of non-existent parables, when the saving passage caught my alleged eye, which states that applesauce and banana oil are also a sort of fancy drapery for symbols. Then it occurred to me that Sir James, himself, might be only a mathematical symbol, dressed up, and nowhere to go. Let it go at that; but what I don't understand yet, is why Sir James should so far delude himself—himself likewise a delusion—i. e., why he should so delude a delusion, as to make an address on the subject, when he must know that the address, the addresser, and the addressee were only mathematical symbols with drapery attached.

Labor-Saving.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: A statement by Miss Grace Frysinger, home economist, Extension Service of the Department of Agriculture, published in The Post on August 28, is a good example of the loose thinking often found in political places.

She says, "Labor-saving devices do not appeal to the rural housewife as much as they do to the city dweller," and she offers as proof the fact that, when she sent out a questionnaire, many women expressed a desire for larger porches!

The washing machine is the leading labor-saving device that can be installed for the benefit of the housewife—rural or urban—and since one-half of all farm homes already enjoy the advantages of power washing machines, it stands to reason that they would not show up at all largely in the indicated preference of farm women for additional improvements.

WILLIAM SHAW.

As Others See It.

Airy Arithmetic.

Secretary Morgenthau's arithmetic, leading to a conclusion that the total cost of the New Deal is to date only $505,000,000, hardly stands the test of analysis.

Against the increase of $6,000,000,000 in the National debt the Secretary of the Treasury sets the $2,000,000,000 profit on the gold devaluation. That item, to his mind, reduces the cost of the New Deal by just so much.

The Secretary forgets where this gold profit came from. It came directly out of the people, out of every person who had savings, who had money owing to him, who had life insurance, who had trusted to the Government's pledged word that its currency and its promises to pay would be redeemed in gold money. The profit from the gold devaluation was a capital tax levied on the people of the United States. They are paying it and if it is not a New Deal cost to Secretary Morgenthau it is one to their pockets.

The second item by which the Secretary cuts the cost of the New Deal is an increase of $1,600,000,000 in the Treasury balance since March 4, 1923. This is a mere bookkeeping figure. It means only that the Administration's spending agencies have not been able to shovel out the money appropriated as fast as they had expected. It is all, however, ear-marked for spending. And, by the way, where did it come from? It is only additional taxes wrung out of the people. Another "noncost" item about which the people who dug it up have no illusions.

The Secretary's third and last item is $1,095,000,000 increase in the assets of agencies owned or financed by the Government. This is a superb example of financial optimism. These assets, when examined, turn out to be money loaned by the Government. Some of it may eventually be paid back. But it strains one's faith to assume that the great sums lent to States, counties and cities will all be put back complete on Uncle Sam's pantry shelf.

When the Secretary's airy figures have all been examined the big boost in the National debt is seen to stand there as substantial as ever.

The Post Impressionist

"Trust Not In Princes."

Postoffice, Saturday.

THE other day we predicted wide return of the biographical whitewash brush. Now we are reminded that somebody lately applied that implement to Louis Napoleon. This must have required considerable effort, yet it is an effort we have long felt should be seriously made. Lord Cowley, for instance, believed in Louis Napoleon—albeit the Wellingtonian faith of that Englishman was severely tested. And he had an eye keen through both inheritance and training, and long occupied a post wherefrom visibility was excellent.

* * *

He was a nephew of the Iron Duke, the conqueror of Napoleon I. He had taken his degree in diplomacy. He was Victoria's Ambassador to the Court of Napoleon III.

* * *

We have lately been looking at bits of his Paris letters. They are letters he wrote and letters he received. Those from his own pen are freely salted by the Attic elements of their writer. Those from such sources as Hubner and Richard Metternich, Austria's envoys, were generally written immediately after audiences with the Emperor at the Tuileries. Nothing could give a more personal picture of that palace and the Palace of St. Cloud. Nothing could more clearly evidence Napoleon III's strange power than the way in which his dour figure dominates this correspondence. Yet here, as everywhere else, Louis remains a riddle.

* * *

Today's world envisages the Empress Eugenie only in prim crinoline; here she is shown us in Spanish costume, astride her horse. Our mental pictures of the Emperor are all of him as formally pictured throughout bound volumes of The Illustrated London News; he is shown us here in those off-hour attitudes in which Carpeaux sketched him. But if you draw a little nearer to the wife, you are still really no nearer to knowing the husband.

* * *

Was it indeed Ollivier who provoked Prussia to the fatal war of 1870? Napoleon here says so. Yet can we believe him?

* * *

He could do incredible things and seems to have loved to say things that were incredible. Thus, immediately after the Crimean War, where his ally was the Turk, he informed his recent enemy, the Czar Alexander, that a breaking up of Turkey "should be provided for by all prudent and far-seeing governments." Yet France had gone to war with Russia, because of the Russian theory about "the Sick Man of Europe!"

The France of Louis Napoleon had many things to dread, but none more than the growing power of Prussia. Nevertheless, in 1863 he is telling an intimate of Prussia's monarch: "If I had been in your King's place last year. I would have addressed the country and have taken for my text Arndt's words, 'Das Vaterland muss groesser sein' . . . 'Give me a strong army and I will give you a strong Fatherland.'"

* * *

Long before Machiavelli, guile masqueraded as indiscretion, and it has become the habit of modern historians thus to account for the indiscretions of Napoleon III. They have painted him wiser than he could have been, in order to paint him blacker. But what depth of diplomacy can account for these follies?

* * *

Anyhow, as we have already said, Cowley believed in the Emperor's fundamental honesty—Cowley, the shrewd ambassador, with a brain as much like his uncle's as his physical features were like those of that winner of Waterloo—Cowley, who, these incisive letters of his reveal, foresaw an Anglo-German naval-construction race the moment that, in 1866, he got word of Prussia's victory over Austria at Sadowa. His belief suffered many a shock in the events which preceded that battle, with all the duplicity of Louis' playing now Vienna's hand and now Berlin's, and frequently both hands together. But the belief somehow came through.

It was, in short, Cowley's theory that events were to blame for Second-Napoleonic aberrations, and not that, as most modern and worse informed commentators maintain, the aberrations at least hastened the unhappy events. You recall how the Mohammedan myth imagines its prophet's coffin as suspended in space. Just so does Cowley see this last and living French prophet of the precarious imperial tradition in a country even then veering again toward republicanism. His throne is a "Mohammed's coffin . . . suspended between autocracy and liberalism."

* * *

Thus the English apologist.

There may well be something in what he says. In what he says there is certainly much of the diplomatic interpretation of ethics.

* * *

Is there something, too, of national prejudice?

"I can not help still having a feeling of regard for him" says Cowley —"can not doubt the goodness of his heart."

But the British Ambassador makes it quite evident that he also did not doubt the Emperor's continual protestations of love for Britain. "Je regarde l'Angleterre comme ma femme, les autres comme des maitresses." Louis Napoleon was the first to make that little joke: "I regard England as my wife, the other countries as mistresses." In all these letters, which the house of Benn has just published in London ("Conversations With Napoleon III"), the sole fact to make one doubt Lord Cowley's perspicacity is that noted by their London Times reviewer: "But, of course, Louis Napoleon was never a model husband."

* * *

So he remains a riddle.

"Which," we remarked to Mr. Merlo J. Pusey, "is only what we all are."

And to which Mr. Pusey responded with suspicious mildness: "Yes, but with varying degrees of interest."

Barging Through Europe With Carlisle Bargeron

Russia!

MOSCOW—The schooling that the Russians are getting now notwithstanding, those outside of the high government and party ranks live in utter ignorance of not only the outside world but their own country. The officials admit this, admit that their people are fed nothing but propaganda but they defend it as necessary. I do not know but that they are right, considering the subjection of the Russians for so long.

BARGERON.

The extent to which they do swallow the propaganda, however, the understanding they have of the outside world, the things they believe about their own country, are utterly amazing.

* * * *

I was told by one enthusiast, above the average of intelligence, that Russia had invented a mechanical refrigerator which no other country has. I am assured that no mechanical refrigeration has been built in the country and certainly my experience with ice does not warrant the belief that the Russians are at all proficient in the art of handling it.

On another occasion I visited a factory, a very plain, ordinary sort of a factory. The manager, after showing me about, observed pityingly: "Of course, you have nothing like this in the United States." When I tried to convince him that we had quite a few factories, a lot of them not even in use, he could hardly resist calling me a liar.

Similarly, others spoke confidently in the belief that conditions were much better in Russia than in the States. I got a big laugh from a few of the young American "Communists" among the more than 200 American youngsters who are taking a summer course at the University of Moscow. This number, incidently, is considerably increased over the enrollment last year and the sponsors hope for a big attendance next year. Kermit Roosevelt, a son of one of the President's cousins, and Ring Lardner, jr., are among the students.

Most of them are average American students with no thoughts of communism in mind. A very small radical set, however, would make our very best soap-box orators blush with envy. There is one Negro among them and they have been working ceaselessly on him to make him radical but I am told that he is one of the most conservative in the group. He is a Southern Negro educator.

On one occasion the young radicals, if they can be considered that seriously, held a meeting at which they harangued on the mistreatment of the Negro in the South. To clinch their argument they introduced the Negro. Much to their chagrin he spoke well of the treatment of the Southern Negro.

As I say, not knowing the psychology of the Russian mind, I have no quarrel with the propaganda they are fed. What I can't understand, though, is why in the matter of the unfavorable comparison with the United States those who live in Leningrad and here do not catch on. They must have seen thousands of well-dressed Americans this summer, not only well-dressed but Americans with shoes which the rank and file of Russians stare at longingly.

Perhaps the answer to this, however, lies in the discussion I had with another enthusiast. I asked him how he could square his understanding of the United States with the clothes I, myself, for example, flad on, particularly the shoes.

He shrugged and intimated that I was just one of the vested rich. Now I'll have to insist that a lot more people than myself have shoes in the United States.

* * * *

Another point is that while the propaganda, the ignorance, on which the Russians exist, may be a healthy diet for them, it is a handicap for the country insofar as foreigners are concerned. My feeling and that of all foreigners with whom I have talked is one of distrust. I noticed this particularly among those traveling in planes. They insist upon German planes wherever they are available and are inclined to use other modes of transportation when they aren't.

As one traveler explained to me, their planes maybe perfectly reliable but you can't believe them in matters of this kind, not on oath.

Akerson Rejects Veterans' Position

George Akerson, former secretary to President Hoover, will not become a member of the board of appeals of the Veterans' Administration under President Roosevelt.

Mr. Akerson said yesterday he had reluctantly and respectfully declined the appointment and would become executive secretary of the Code Authority for the paper distributing industry. He will have offices in New York.

Walter Newton, another member of the Hoover secretariat, served a year as a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board under President Roosevelt, but was not reappointed when his term expired.

First Lady Is Invited To Sponsor New Ship

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday was invited by Secretary Swanson to be sponsor of the new aircraft carrier Enterprise, to be launched early next week.

The vessel, a 20,000-ton ship, is being built by the Newport News Shipbuilding & Drydock Co. The date of completion is scheduled as February 3.

G. O. P. to Continue Drive on New Deal

By Raymond Clapper.

It can be put down as a fact that the Republican high command, despite the gloomy implications in the party's setback in Maine this week, is determined, after thinking it over, to go right ahead hammering the New Deal, just as before, only harder.

This is not what a number of prominent Republicans think ought to be done and considerable controversy may develop. But those in command of the National party machinery take the position that it would be a betrayal of the principles for which they stood in the first stage of the New Deal to try to straddle now. Chairman Fletcher of the Republican National Committee and the co-chairmen of the Senatorial-Congressional campaign committee, Senator Daniel O. Hastings and Representative Chester C. Bolton, are of one mind on that.

Will Fight for Policies.

A good many politicians do not regard this as good strategy for the November elections, but on the other hand those now in custody of the National party organization feel that if they have any excuse for continued existence it is to fight for the traditional policies in dark days as well as brighter ones.

Therefore, while the present management is in control of these two principal Republican organizations, the party doctrine will continue to be emphatically anti-New Deal.

The result of this is that some Republican candidates, who personally have supported a considerable number of New Deal measures, and who feel it would be suicidal to stand as straight out anti-New Deal candidates, will be allowed to write their own local platforms. They may spurn the aid of anti-New Deal speakers from National party headquarters if they so desire. But so far as the nature of the headquarters attack is concerned, it was indicated in two sharp blasts from Senator Hastings yesterday.

He held up to scorn the fact that the Coast Guard was unable to render maximum assistance to passengers of the burning Morro Castle because its fastest cutter was off its regular assignment on a junket to bring Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, Minister to Denmark, home from a visit in Greenland. Senator Hastings also fired at Undersecretary of Agriculture Tugwell, who boarded a liner for Europe incognito to escape a process server seeking to take him into court in a suit to test the constitutionality of AAA.

Result of Stand Pending.

Whether this attitude will drive more progressive members of the party into the arms of the Democrats—as has already happened with Senators Hiram Johnson and George Norris, for instance—or whether it will precipitate a division within the party and a battle for control like the 1912 Taft-Roosevelt split, remains to be seen.

"The Republican party will never make a comeback so long as its policies are dictated by the Fletchers, the Wadsworths and men like Hilles and Ogden Mills," said Senator Gerald P. Nye (Republican), North Dakota, yesterday. "The party has got to cut bait. It must lay out a program that is progressive, and not a program that says 'sit still and don't rock the boat.' The voters are discouraged and disgusted with certain phases of the New Deal, but they are going to put up with that in preference to the old deal because they believe somebody is trying to do something for them."

As indicating the sharp cleavage developing inside the party, two prominent Republican Senators seeking reelection, and both slated to become conspicuous contenders for the Republican Presidential nomination two years hence, are taking different positions representative of the two schools of thought.

Reed Blasts New Deal.

Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsyvania, opened his reelection campaign yesterday in Bethlehem, Pa., with the declaration that the New Deal must be ended and ended now. He won renomination on an anti-New Deal platform and is unterrified by the indications of New Deal popularity in Maine and some other States this week.

On the other hand, Senator Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, just victorious in a primary race in which he avoided a frontal attack on the Roosevelt Administration, issued a statement yesterday in which he said he would campaign neither as a supporter nor as an opponent of the New Deal. He said he found some things in it to praise and some to condemn.

There is every indication that the Republican party is at the moment one of divided counsels, with those in charge of the National machinery pushing forward on a clear-cut policy of opposition and numerous candidates feeling that public opinion has undergone a fundamental change in the last two years, setting out on their own in an effort to reconcile themselves to a different viewpoint.

"I am opposed to Fascist or Communistic trends.

"I am opposed to Congressional abdication and Executive concentrations.

"I am opposed to dangerously growing bureaucracy—and particularly a bureaucracy which frankly abandons the merit system and substitutes spoilsmanship. I am opposed to National price-fixing. It never worked, and never will. I am opposed to the suspension of anti-trust laws and the encouragement of monopoly. I am opposed to printing press money and believe that such inflation inevitably becomes suicidally uncontrolled."

Reed Blasts Regime In Opening Campaign

Bethlehem, Pa., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—The cost of the New Deal must be paid for by rich and poor alike, Senator David A. Reed (Republican), said today in the first of a series of speeches opening his campaign for reelection. He took a straight-out position of opposition to the Administration.

"The fearful extravagance that we now see in Washington must some day be paid for, by every American—not just rich Americans, but all Americans, rich and poor alike," Senator Reed said. "There are just two ways of paying for it—taxation or repudiation. One way is honest, the other is dishonest. All over the world we see nations adopting one or the other of these two courses. We do not need to guess or prophesy about the results, for they are plain to every one with open eyes. New Zealand, for example, had a New Deal long before we did. The lessons of experience were disregarded. Everything was to be newer and better. The Government was to run everything, boss everybody, dictate to every citizen. The debt of the Dominion ran wild, as ours is doing now, but those who protested were called Tories and croakers.

"Last year the crash came, and the people of New Zealand were disillusioned as we will inevitably be. The period that was then regarded as their New Deal is now called the period of 'Borrow, Boom and Bust.' New Zealand has not repudiated, but has chosen to take the fionest course. Is it only the rich who are suffering? On the contrary, it is the workers of New Zealand who are footing the bill in lower living standards, lower wages, higher rents, higher living costs.

"Suppose, on the other hand, that we try to escape from this awful burden of debt through repudiation, as Germany did. Is it only the rich man who suffers? It wasn't so in Germany. No bank failed there when the mark went to zero. But the working people of Germany nearly starved * * * Rich men, fearing inflation and repudiation, can send their capital to other countries. But a working man can not send his labor abroad. He has to stay here and take the full shock. Then if he has a little savings account, or a life insurance policy, or a Liberty bond, or even cash in his pocket, he sees its value shrink from day to day while he is powerless to prevent it."

Vandenberg Attacks 'Growing Bureaucracy'

(Associated Press.)

Outlining the issues on which he will seek reelection, Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, said yesterday he favored "rational and practical unemployment insurance," but was opposed to "State Socialism, or State Collectivism, or National Regimentation."

Vandenberg indicated he would run neither as a friend nor foe of the New Deal, but would "insist upon taking each proposition upon its merits, regardless of its source."

"I believe we suffer more from underconsumption rather than overproduction," he said.

"I believe the next election is the most important since the Civil War. If this be anti-New Dealing, then I am anti.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

What's a "Maple Massager?"

SLANG, according to the late great H. W. Fowler, is "the diction that results from the favorite game among the young and lively of playing with words and renaming things and actions; some invent new words, or mutilate or misapply the old, for the pleasure of novelty, and others catch up such words for the pleasure of being in the fashion."

THEO. HALL.

Now it is almost as hard to say what slang is as to define the word "natural." Cant, colloquialism, lingo, argot, and jargon—all are included. Mr. Fowler proves shrewdest toward what we might call the Walter Winchelling of words. As best example, how Mr. Winchell must have chortled when he hit on the term "Reno-vated" for divorced! It is—here stands a token of what I was just saying—a pure "natural." And as further example of the lively mind, this time from the book in hand, take "maple massager"—it is simply stage slang for a dancer.

But Howard N. Rose's "A Thesaurus of Slang" (Macmillan, $1.75) throws definition to the winds, and plunges right into vocabularies. The result is something of a hodge-podge. For side by side with the newspaper slang of "to kill a story," meaning to discard a piece of writing, there is given the word for an "Editorial Representative at an External Source of News." Could you possibly guess? The term is merely "a correspondent," which isn't slang at all but a technical word, and not very technical at that.

No—what Mr. Rose has done with a modicum of industry is to set up his categories (aviation, college, detective, hobo, lumberjack, New England, newspaper, oil field, railroad, sea fishing, sports, theater Western and war) and to file away under them any and all expressions which he found in those sectional and professional fields. Apparently he had only to hear a term once in order to consider it salted down, for sometimes the connection is frail indeed.

I can't think it very accurate or very rewarding to learn that a "widow lady" is sea fishing slang for a widow, or that "in quick order" is football slang for "rapidly." The first seems a plain New England colloquialism, no more connected with the sea than the word "skinflint," and the second I should guess to be more military than gridiron.

* * * *

Mr. Rose worked neither hard nor long enough—the project deserved more care. My reason for saying this is the simple fact that the reader can add items to his list without batting an eye. Under New England there's no "poke" and no "tonic"—two of the Bay Colony's most characteristic words. Under "newspaper" there's no "on the rim" for "at the copy desk." Lest you think I'm setting myself up, know that a group of friends to whom I exposed the book suggested three or four additional expressions apiece. Mr. Rose could have doubled the books size and value with two weeks of small talk.

When the book came into the New York Herald Tribune's book department, the staff jumped on it for this very reason. They found, for example, that Mr. Rose had given just 17 slang ways of saying "drunk" as an adjective. Sitting around and scratching their heads for a few minutes, the staff added the following: "Sozzled, stewed, high, blind, pickled, half-seas over, washed full, out, cocked, blotto, crocked, fried, stinko, stinking, boiled, stymied, three sheets to the wind, scorched, addled, tanked, squiffy, squiffed, plastered, boozed, stiff, soused, canned, out like a light, spiffed, comatose, dead, orey-eyed, blear-eyed, foozled, under the table, and happy."

Then, said Miss Mary Welles: "If the male members of the staff had not been on vacation, the office might have been able to make an even bigger list.

But, insufficiently cooked as the book is, it remains entertaining and valuable. Though Mr. Rose is going to mislead young writers when he says there is enough material "in any one section to supply, in toto, the local color for stories based upon that section." Writing a Western story means something rather more than learning that a cigarette is a "brain tablet." Or even that "hay-wire" means crazy or messed up—which wasn't included. But as reminder, or as adding phrases to one's technical vocabularies, "A Thesaurus of Slang" is of definite help.

Why, by the way, doesn't someone really do this job right? A complication from Eric Partridge's "Slang: Today and Yesterday," H. L. Mencken's "The American Language," proceedings of the Modern Language Assocation, and H. T. Webster's cartoon series, "They Don't Speak Our Language," to name but a handfull of sources, cries aloud to be made. And if I were doing it, I'd make a party of it and bring in all my friends. Then I could put in that fine old Southern expression for cussing out—"I gave him up and down the country!"

* * * *

If you'd like to try your wits on some of the fine phrases this country has produced, here is a list of various slang terms. The translations will appear tomorrow.

1, grum; 2, conk; 3, a dog house; 4, a damper 5, a consid'able pussy; 6, a gully washer; 7, a rocksy; 8, to kankaroo; 9, the ears; 10, a clever morning; 11, to make the queer 12, the wiggle-stick; 13, a stir-simple; 14, A Tarzan; 15, to hang a goober; 16, to turn a riot into an oil can; 17, pee-wee soft song men; 18, a spud-glommer; 19, a tad pele 20, a hot slough; 21, diamonds 22, to balloon.

Deficit of U. S. $494,464,972; Drop Expected

Third Quarterly Income Tax Installment Being Received by Treasury.

As taxpayers yesterday rushed at the last minute to pay the third quarterly installment on their Federal income tax, due today, the Treasury's daily statement revealed the deficit for the fiscal year, which started July 1, to be $494,464,972.

The deficit will be diminished somewhat over the week-end as the receipt of income tax payments are recorded by the Treasury, but after a few days it is expected to start climbing again.

Receipts between July 1 and last Wednesday totaled $700,185,971. So-called ordinary expenditures totaled $537,591,469 and so-called emergency expenditures, $657,059,474, making total Treasury disbursements for the period, $1,194,650,943.

Treasury officials, however, insist that in any examination of the deficit and the cost of the "New Deal," the probability that the Federal Government subsequently will recover a large part of the money now being spent must be considered.

As an example of their contention, officials of the PWA yesterday asserted that approximately $1,043,986,602 of the $3,700,000,000 allocated and disbursed by that agency for public works will return to the Treasury eventually.

This estimate was based on loans made by the agency to public bodies, railroads, for subsistence homesteads, irrigation and hydro-electric power projects and Federal low-cost housing and slum riddance projects.

Approximately $551,000,000, or more than one-half of the sum estimated as recoverable, was loaned to State governments and their political subdivisions or agencies.

Ickes Opposes Loan for Span On Chesapeake

Hopes for $8,500,000 Are Given Up on Word of Tydings.

Hope for a Public Works Administration loan of $8,500,000 to construct a 10-mile bridge across Chesapeake Bay virtually has been abandoned, it was learned yesterday.

Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior and administrator of the PWA, has told Senator Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, that he is not favorably disposed toward the bridge project. Tydings said yesterday that he interpreted Ickes' attitude as distinctly hostile to the request for a loan, and added that he doubted if the money ever would be advanced.

The proposed Chesapeake Bay bridge, which would link the Eastern and Western shores of Maryland, long has been urged by business leaders on both shores. They feel it would do much to cement the interests, economic and otherwise, of the two sections. At present, most of the Eastern Shore's business goes to Delaware.

The bridge, as visualized by its proponents, would be one of the largest in the world, extending from Tolchester Beach, on Chesapeake Bay, 12 miles west of Chestertown, to a point at Harts Island, 14 miles east of Baltimore.

Three thousand men, it was estimated, would have been given direct employment on the bridge and 3,000 others indirect employment in the making of materials.

Secretary Ickes, it was learned yesterday, also has turned down an appeal for PWA funds to widen and deepen the Delaware and Chesapeake Canal. Improvement of the canal has been urged by shipping interests in Baltimore and elsewhere.

Snow Falls in South Dakota.

Rapid City, S. Dak., Sept. 14 (AP).—Snow fell for five minutes here today. A temperature of 37 degrees was recorded at 12:30 p. m.

EDWARD FRANCIS McGRADY, Assistant Secretary of Labor, labor adviser to NRA chief, Gen. Hugh Johnson. Static, zestful, table-pounding strike settler, he's fearless, ingratiating and explosive as he quickly hops about the country on pacifying journeys into troubled labor areas. Because he can make workers listen to reason he has confidence of employers. Started his career in the pressroom of the Boston Traveler, soon plunging into Boston City Council and the State Legislature. He's impetuous, forceful but not unreasonable. Tall, straight-backed, he doesn't appear to be within 15 years of his age, which is 60. Though he lives modestly, he parades the dapper splendor of a man-about-town.

Such a large proportion of those who have been pictured by Mr. Robles have asked for the originals that The Washington Post is saving all these drawings to honor the requests of any future members of "The National Gallery."

Letter From a Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen

My dear Louise:

The situation isn't new. I suppose the cave woman stood in the doorway of her cave after nightfall, anxiously awaiting the return of her half-grown cubs and wondering which of them had made a meal for the saber-toothed tiger.

And doubtless when they came in hours later, they grumbled in chorus: "Aw, Maw, what did you wait up for? Tigers ain't dangerous, and anyway we were up a tree."

Parents and their young have always been that way.

When the party doesn't break up until after midnight, and the ride home takes half an hour more, you see no reason for us to wait up if we are tired. Why can't we go on to bed like sensible people and let you slip in quietly at your convenience?

I know how you feel about it. All youngsters feel that way—and doubtless I once did.

It would be pleasant if you could lead your own life without having to trouble others or feel responsible for their worry and without feeling guilty of causing needless anxiety.

Doubtless you think at times that you would like to get a job and support yourself and live in a boarding house where nobody would know or care at what hour you came in.

I'm sorry, my dear, but no one of us can live his own life without regard for others—except on a desert island.

Our anxiety for you is natural and sensible. In this day of motor car accidents, bandits and sudden death, we can't feel free of responsibility until you get in. You may need us. And staying up is less painful than being waked an hour after we get to sleep.

As for the boarding house, there is no respectable lodging place where a girl can come in at all hours without a word of rebuke or warning.

Happy laughter and shouted good-nights at 1 a. m. bother somebody. Wherever you go there are rules to keep, neighbors to consider, other rights to observe.

Freedom is a dream; and no place on earth can you disregard the rights and feelings of others without some kind of punishment.

Love,
DAD.

Mount Rainier's Glaciers on Diet; It's the Tepidity

Seattle, Sept. 14 (AP).—Mount Rainier's 28 glaciers have gone on a diet.

They have shrunk more during the last year than in any other year in their recorded history, the National Park Service said today.

But don't be worried about the largest glacial system in the United States disappearing in a hurry, Park Naturalist Frank Brockman said.

The 28 gigantic masses of ice that cluster around Mount Rainier were there before Columbus discovered America and probably will remain for thousands of years more.

"Nisqually," said Brockman, "best known of Mount Rainier's rivers of ice, retrograded 155 feet since last September. Nisqually is about 5 miles long and at the present average rate of recession, it will still be a glacier 5,000 years from now."

The light snows of last winter, the early spring and the warm summer have acted as a powerful reducing treatment for the ice mountains.

Aid Reveals Program in Drought-Hit Area.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 14 (AP).—Uncle Sam is starting to pour $76,000 a day into the purses of drought-stricken sheep raisers of the Western States through the drought relief buying campaign, Harry Petrie, chief of the cattle and sheep section of the AAA, said here today.

Petrie announced a daily buying quota today of 38,000 sheep for shipment to processors from the drought-parched ranges of the West.

The figures he gave today included only the sheep purchased for shipment to processors and does not include animals condemned and slaughtered on the range or slaughtered by State relief agencies.

Surgeon Flies 250 Miles to Sea to Aid Suffering Sailor

Cape May, N. J., Sept. 14 (AP).—A surgeon and a Coast Guard seaplane crew of four flew 250 miles to a ship at sea today to provide medical attention for Donald Chase, a seaman on the steamship Effingham suffering from inflammation caused by a cinder in his eye.

Droning through rough weather to the ship, 100 miles off Norfolk, Va., the seaplane, piloted by Lieut. W. A. Burton, settled down alongside the Effingham. A lifeboat was lowered, and Dr. William A. Weaver, jr., of Philadelphia, went aboard to treat Chase.

A radio message to the Coast Guard base here had said the seaman's condition was critical. Arrangements had been made at the base for his removal to a hospital.

Mystery Envelops Next Long Move

His Plan to Oust Foes From Office in Dark.

New Orleans, Sept. 14 (AP).—Mystery today cloaked Senator Huey P. Long's threat to throw the entire New Orleans city administration out of office.

His legislative committee, investigating charges of "graft and corruption" in city officialdom, adjourned "subject to call," and political circles were wondering if Senator Long planned to call the Legislature into special session to impeach the officials.

At a lengthy session today the committee heard testimony concerning large loans to Judge Nat Bond of Civil District Court and financial transactions of Superintendent of Police George Reyer and Chief of Detectives John Grosch.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

"Can Prayer Be Answered?"

Mary Austin, who died a few weeks ago, produced a small book with this interrogatory title just before her death. And now either she knows the answer or she knows nothing.

The last time I saw Mary Austin was at a dinner of the Authors Club in New York in November, 1932. She spoke with extraordinary vigor and urged upon us the necessity for constant striving. Too many people are trying to secure a position, place, post, seat, chair or something of the sort, she said, which is the reason so few ever amount to anything. We should always be advancing, always on the move, always eager for new experiences.

She was born in Illinois in 1868, studied at Blackburn University and became a public speaker, lecturing in California at the university and in England. She became an authority on the American Indians, their folklore and their religion. She wrote novels and essays and scientific historical works. She was something of a mystic, and became deeply interested in comparative religions.

She had serious illnesses and meditated much and often on the mystery of life and death, for repeatedly, it would seem, she was told she had some sickness from which she could not recover. She considered the question of mental healing, and knew a great deal about the methods of the medicine men among the Indians, and apparently had a considerable number of authentic records of cures that they had brought to pass by prayer.

In 1931 she wrote a book called "Experiences Facing Death," and at the end of July, 1934, she published a little book of 55 pages called "Can Prayer Be Answered?"

This is entirely different from the evangelical or devotional treatise that one might expect from such a title. It is rather a case book of instances that she has either observed or herself experienced.

She was brought up in Midwest Methodism, as she calls it, and later a crisis in her life made her consider the whole subject of the efficacy of prayer. She makes this definition: "Prayer, to the aboriginal, is an explicit motion of the inner self which puts you in touch with the living principle which controls the existing emergency, whether it be of sickness or the need of rain to make crops grow." Although her little book is written in simple language, I am not sure that I understand it, but it is clear that she thought it a proven fact that the Supreme Mind in the universe, even though she did not know what to call it, could be reached by her prayer; that there was a genuine response.

I can not see or feel the importance of the "gestures" to which she gives such extraordinary emphasis. But she concludes as follows:

"With all I am willing to admit about my prayers, I must admit that I have never taken the whole measure of what I pray to. I do not know its one unchanging name. Whatever I, being sincerely moved by the need of it, pray to, it works. I fancy it works better the nearer I get to its actual identity, its true personality.

Great Gathering Of Scientists Set

10,000 to Meet Next April in New York.

Cleveland, Sept. 14 (AP).—Plans for holding the largest meeting of scientists in the world's records in New York City next April, with upward of 10,000 present, were announced here today by the American Chemical Society.

The meeting will celebrate the 300th anniversary of the founding of chemical industries in the United States. Economic, industrial and scientific leaders of America will be invited to participate.

Hope that President Roosevelt might make the opening address was voiced by the arrangements committee, of which Prof. Arthur W. Hixson, of Columbia University, is chairman.

Jones, Texas, Out For Speakership

Representative Marvin Jones (Democrat), Texas, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, disclosed yesterday he was considering running for the Speakership, but withheld a definite announcement, the Associated Press reported.

"I would like to be Speaker. Who would not?" the Texan said.

He stressed his view that agriculture should not be overlooked in selecting the House leadership.

Another Texan, Representative Sam Rayburn, Interstate Commerce Committee chairman, already was in the Speakership race. Other contenders include Representatives Byrns, of Tennessee, the majority leader, and Bankhead, of Alabama.

Fort Peck Dam to Start; Will Cost $72,000,000

Fort Peck, Mont., Sept. 14 (AP).—Construction of the massive Fort Peck Dam, more than 200 feet high and two miles long, will be started on the Missouri River by a force of Montana relief workers and craftsmen on October 1, Maj. T. B. Larkin, chief of the Army Engineering Corps, said today.

Four or five years, perhaps more, will elapse before the 72,000,000 project is completed.

Social Action Council to Map Church Plans

Rev. Clinchy, of D. C., One of Group Named by Congregationalists.

At the meeting of the National Council of Congregational Churches, held at Oberlin, Ohio, in June, a new National board, called the council for social action, was created. This was in response to the desire of the people of the Congregational Churches for a body which, through research, education and action, could develop and carry out a vital and definite program of Christian social thinking and action. The Christian Century hailed this action as the greatest forward step taken by the church since the establishment of the missionary enterprise.

A National board of directors was constituted by the Oberlin assembly, and the Rev. Russell Clinchy, pastor of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, was elected as one of the 18 directors of this council for social action. The council met for organization and the preparing of a program in Portland, Me., on September 1, 2 and 3. Mr. Clinchy will interpret the meaning of this council and discuss its program in his sermon, entitled "The Newest Adventure of the Church," tomorrow morning at the 11 o'clock service of worship of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

The officers of the church and the officers of all church organizations will meet with Mr. Clinchy for supper at the Y. W. C. A. on Monday evening to discuss the program of the church for the coming year and to plan how it may be put into action.

Dr Albert J. McCartney To Discuss Social Trend.

Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, minister at the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, has just returned from a motor tour through the drought-stricken areas and on to the Pacific Coast, returning through Arizona and New Mexico, and he plans to speak at the service tomorrow morning on those features of social and religious conditions which awaken concern for the welfare of the country. He will take as his subject "Our Land."

Next Sunday, September 23, services in the Sunday School will be resumed in all the departments at 9:45 a. m. The Sadler Missionary League will meet at the home of Miss Louise P. Bishop, 1801 K street northwest, on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock Mrs. Barger will speak on "Africa."

"Going Nowhere," Topic Of Dr. A. A. Stockdale.

Dr. Allen A. Sockdale, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets northwest, will have as his sermon subject tomorrow at 11 a. m., "Going Nowhere." Paul DeLong Gable will be at the organ. There will be no evening service.

The Departmentalized Sunday School has started its sessions again. Classes open at 9:45 a. m. The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor will hold its first meeting of the season Sunday at 6:30 p. m. in the east parlor. Miss Lenore Goodwin, president, will lead.

D. C. Federation Official To Preach at Cherryville.

Dr. W. L. Darby, secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, will preach tomorrow at the morning service at Vanderwerzen Congregational Church, Cherryville, Va.

The 7:45 p. m. service at the Ninth Street Christian Church, of which the Rev. Clifford H. Jope is pastor, tomorrow will feature the annual School Days program. For this service, which is held the evening before the opening of the Washington public schools, the boys and girls of the Sunday school and the community will be special guests. The junior vested choir will sing "Shepherd of Israel."

Dr. Godfrey Chobot To Preach Tomorrow.

Dr. Godfrey Chobot, minister of the Sixth Presbyterian Church, will preach at the morning service tomorrow. The Men's Bible Class and the Woman's Bible Class will meet at 10 a. m., the teachers being the Hon. J. Austin Latimer and Mrs. F. W. Holt.

Special Revival Services Set At College Park.

Special revival services will be held at College Park Baptist Church, beginning Monday at 8 p. m. The pastor, the Rev. J. P. Scruggs, will be assisted by Dr. B. P. Robertson, pastor of the Hyattsville Baptist Church. The members of the Berwyn, Erieson Memorial and Hyattsville churches, neighboring churches, as well as the people of the immediate community, are invited to attend.

Dr. Raphael H. Miller To Discuss Government.

"Does America Want a King?" is the sermon topic Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller, minister of The National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle, has selected for tomorrow night. He will discuss the principles of self-government vs. dictatorship and the quality of citizenship required to maintain free and just institutions.

At the morning service Dr. Miller will speak on "Say, Yes." Mrs. B. D. Shreve, soprano soloist, will support Dr. Miller in the morning service and a mixed quartet will assist at the evening service. The choir will resume its work for the season tomorrow.

"Where Is Christ," Topic At Church of Pilgrims.

At the Church of the Pilgrims on the Parkway at Twenty-second and P streets, the Rev. Andrew R. Bird will preach Sunday morning on "Where is Christ?" and Sunday evening at 8 p. m., on "The Challenge of Change." His topic on Thursday at 8 p. m., will be "The Prophet and National Policies."

On Monday at 8 p. m. the woman's auxiliary will be addressed by Mrs. Molte Martin, from the Belgian Congo. At the same hour, there will be a meeting of the men of the church, at which Dr. Stewart Boyle and John Knox will lead the discussion.

A Writer for Eternity

By William T. Ellis.

Why are so few preachers great writers? The decline in authorship among the clergy is one of the puzzling phenomena of the times. They have, presumably, the best literary training, in four years of college, followed by three or four years in the theological seminary. They have been drilled in the loftiest subjects, and have studied that "pure well of English undefiled," the Bible. Their field and objective is the public. Most important of all, they are prophets, "forthtellers," of God. Yet even the religious press shows an appalling lack of message and of literary ability amongst its clerical contributors, and in the secular press they appear scarcely at all.

It was not always so. A hundred years ago the great divines were the great authors. And the sublime prophetic books of the Old Testament reveal their authors as men of surpassing literary skill.

Of all the mighty organ-toned voices that have echoed down from the pre-Christian era, with the possible exception of the Psalmist's, the noblest is that of Isaiah, who served his country and Jehovah for more than 40 years, through the reigns of four kings, chief amongst these being King Hezekiah. Isaiah was a city man, living his life in his nation's capital, Jerusalem.

Success By Early Start.

One explanation of Isaiah's great career is that he began his work when a young man. This morning's paper carries an interview with Henry Ford, criticizing modern education because it annually turns out millions of youths from the high schools, who want any sort of job, but have no conception of their own fitness and no training for a chosen calling.

No cracker-box wiseacre was Hezekiah, grumbling footlessly about what somebody else ought to do. He was a king and a leader. His sense was sound. So he saw that a mighty wave of national awakening was necessary to cure a multitude of evil local conditions. "The rising tide lifts all ships." For the task before him no ordinary laws or edicts would suffice. Only a great surge of religious sentiment—one of mankind's master motives—could avail to raise the Chosen People to their former level of life.

Superstatesmanship was shown by this ancient sovereign in thus harnessing heaven to elevate earth. He knew that people are ruled by their emotions, and that the religious emotion is mightiest of all. Hezekiah had never heard of "mass psychology," but his judgment and observation told him that if he could get the people as a whole stirred up to do their religious duty all that was wrong would be made right.

A religious revival has cleaned up many a community more effectively than the police could do. It was a spiritual arousal that had made the Jews a nation, so the king sought to enlist the same force in remaking them, as he called for a pan-Jewish Passover celebration in Jerusalem. He knew the tug which an appeal to national history makes upon the normal heart.

It was a master stroke to extend the call to backsliding Israel to the north. Probably the invitation would not be accepted by some, but many faithful souls would answer, and his own people would be stirred by the thought of a revived religious solidarity. Doubtless not all communities in the United States and Canada will hold National recognition day celebrations for Sunday school teachers on October 6, but the vastness of the project will be felt by those which do observe the day. Hezekiah's comprehensive invitation set the ancient feelings of religious and national solidarity to coursing through the hearts of the Hebrews everywhere.

"Here am I; send me," the youthful prophet responded when, at the time of his vision in the temple (in the temple, mark you who have "outgrown" the Church), he heard the Lord calling for a messenger. From that hour, Isaiah knew himself to be a sent man. Thenceforth he lived only to carry the messages given him of God. And God never leaves such a servant without a message. The first requisite of a prophet is a high and holy call.

Ossacionally one meets a man or a woman who is profoundly conscious of God. Such a one is really spiritually-minded. Olive Schreiner, in "Dreams," tells of a woman coveting the best gift for her unborn child; and her prayer was answered in the promise that "spiritual things shall be real to him." Life is on the highest possible plane for those to whom God is "a living, bright reality."

Messianic Prophet.

Isaiah was a God-aware man. That was the whole source of his power. He has been called the prophet of the exaltedness of God. In seeing God, he saw all else in proportion. And to him was given such clear intimation of the character of Christ that Christians turn to his pages almost as often as to the Gospel of John. He is preeminently the Messianic prophet.

In a New York paper's page of sermon reports recently I read the foolish statement that "the only sin today is social sin." It was typical of the muddy thinking of a lot of preachers who devote themselves to reform, and what they call "the social Gospel. Many of these men have become little better than common scolds, getting their sermons from the gloomier columns of the newspapers, rather than from the Scriptures. Is it any wonder that they quickly degenerate into what newspaper men call "publicity sharks," their discourses framed primarily with an eye on the news columns?

There was more of social justice in Isaiah's message than in a myriad of these querulous, complaining railings at the Government and at existing conditions. One clear glimpse of God will do more to effect social justice than any amount of slumming by preachers.

A Patriot Prophet.

We are not left greatly in doubt as to what Isaiah would think of the modern preachers whose vaunted "internationalism" consists largely in deprecation and derogation of their own country. From first to last, Isaiah was a patriot. He loved Jerusalem and Judah with an intense loyalty.

But it was along spiritual lines that Isaiah did his greatest work. His denunciation of the arid, selfish ecclesiasticism of contemporary Judaism hits hard at some modern conditions.

Never for an instant was there absent from Isaiah's thought the truth of the yearning, compassionate love of God for His wayward children. In this lesson we have the great gospel invitation, with its truth of hope and restoration, from the Father heart of Jehovah: "Come now, and let us reason together, saith Jehovah: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool."

"Your Body," Subject At Science Center.

"Your Body, a Godly Manifestation," is the subject of the evening service at 8 p. m. Sunday at the Super Mind Science Center, 1614 K street northwest. Prof. William Estep has chosen his text from I Corinthians iii 3:9. "For We Are Labourers Together With God: Ye Are His Building."

The morning service Sunday will be based on the topic, "God, The Only Reality."

Dr. Herbert Scott Smith Returns From Vacation.

The Rev. Dr. Herbert Scott Smith, rector of St. Margaret's Parish, has returned from a vacation. On Sunday the services at St. Margaret's will be: 7:30 a. m.—Holy Communion for the Communicants League and the Workers of the Parish; 11 a. m. —Morning Prayer and Sermon by the Rector. Miss Charlotte Klein, St Margaret's organist and the quartet have also returned from their vacations. The Sunday School will reopen October 6.

Rock Creek Episcopal Church Opens Fall Program.

The fall activities of Rock Creek Episcopal Church, Rock Creek Church road and Webster street, will open tomorrow with celebration of Holy Communion at 8:30 a. m., followed by morning prayer with sermon by the Rev. Dr. Franklin J. Bohanan, rector, at 11 a. m. The first fall session of the church school will be held in the parish house at 9:30 a. m. The Young People's Fellowship will resume its Sunday meetings at 7 p. m. On Wednesday, Ember Day, the Rectory Guild will meet at 2 p. m. On Friday, St. Matthew's Day, there will be celebration of Holy Communion at 10:30 a. m.

"Christ and Modern Spirit" To be Sermon Theme.

"Christ and the Modern Spirit" is the sermon theme of the Rev. Dr. Frederic W. Perkins at the Universalist National Memorial Church, tomorrow at 11 a. m. The musical ministry is by the National Capital Choir of 30 voices, under the direction of Dr. Albert W. Harned. The church school will open tomorrow at 10:15 a. m., except the adult Bible class, which is taught by Dr. Perkins in the Romaine-van Schaick room at 12:15 p. m.

On Tuesday at 12:15 p. m., the first Mission Circle luncheon will be held in Perkins Hall. At 1:30 p. m., there will be the Mission Circle business and devotional meeting in the Western room, followed by a program on "Vacation Values." The Church School Association will meet on Thursday at 6 p. m. for its monthly supper conference and business meeting. On Friday at 7:30 p. m. the Boy Scout troop meeting will take place.

Rev. Wilder to Preach At St. Andrews.

At St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, the rector, the Rev. A. J. Wilder will preach at the 11 a. m. service.

Holy Comforter Chapel Services Announced.

The Rev. William L. Mayo, Minister-in-charge, announces that the services tomorrow at Holy Comforter Chapel, Rock Creek Parish, 5714 Georgia avenue, will include celebration of Holy Communion at 8:30 a. m., morning prayer and sermon at 11 a. m., and evening prayer, with address, at 7:30. The Chapel Guild will meet on Wednesday at 8 p. m. The Boy Scouts will assemble on Friday evening.

Bishop Freeman to Speak At Cathedral Service.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, D. D., LL. D., Bishop of Washington, who returned from his summer vacation this week, will deliver the sermon at the people's evensong service in the great choir of Washington Cathedral tomorrow at 4 p. m. This will be Bishop Freeman's first appearance in the pulpit since he left last June for his summer home in Sorrento, Me.

The sermon at the service of morning prayer and celebration of the Holy Communion at 11 a. m. will be delivered by the Rev. G. Freeland Peter, D. D., Canon and Chancellor of the Cathedral. Music will be furnished by the Cathedral choir of men and boys, under the direction of Edgar Priest.

A special order of service is being prepared for Sunday afternoon, September 23, when delegates to the convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police and officers and members of the Metropolitan Police Department will assemble in the great choir to pay tribute to the memory of Maj. Richard Sylvester, who served as superintendent of the local Police Department from 1898 to 1915. Bishop Freeman will deliver the sermon.

The weekday choral service at 4 p. m. in the great choir from Tuesday to Friday, inclusive, will be resumed September 18.

First Divine Science Church In New Quarters.

The First Divine Science Church of Washington has moved to the Burlington Hotel and will hold its first service there Sunday at 11 a. m. The minister, Grace Lightfoot Patch, will speak on "What Is Divine Science?"

"What Price Religion?" Topic of Dr. Pierce.

"What Price Religion?" is the subject upon which Ulysses G. B. Pierce, D. D., minister of All Souls' Church (Unitarian), will preach at the 11 a. m. service. The church school will resume its sessions at 9:45 a. m. with four departments and graded classes for all ages.

Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon Will Preach Here.

Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon, presiding bishop of the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, will preach Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in Emery Methodist Church, 6105 Georgia avenue. Bishop Mouzon is the senior bishop of the College of Bishops and will preside at the 150th session of the Baltimore Conference, which will meet in Baltimore beginning October 4, comprising churches in the District of Columbia, part of Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

Y. M. C. A. Service Set For Lincoln Park.

The religious work department of the Y. M. C. A. will hold the closing meeting of the season in Lincoln Park Sunday at 4 p. m. This will be designated as Central Union Mission Day and the address will be delivered by John Bennett, the Superintendent, with music by the Central Union Mission Glee Club.

College Youth Sunday To Be Observed.

College Youth Sunday will be observed at the Chevy Chase Baptist Church tomorrow morning when the pastor, the Rev. Edward O. Clark, will have as his subject "On Certainty In Religion." Young people attending college will be the guests of the congregation. At the 8 p. m. service, Mr. Clark will preach on "Finding God Every Day." The Christian Endeavor Society and the Sunday Evening Club will meet at 6:45 p. m.

"Divine Companionship," Topic of Dr. Evans.

On Sunday morning at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, Dr. Albert Evans, associate minister, will preach on the subject, "Divine Companionship."

At 6:45 p. m. the young people of the Christian Endeavor Society will observe their service of worship. Sunday at 8 p. m. the usual evening vesper hour will be observed in the lecture room. Dr. Evans will deliver a brief meditation.

Dr. Sizoo will return to the pulpit September 23, after an absence of some weeks.

Dr. James H. Taylor Returns from London.

On Sunday, Dr. James H. Taylor, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, will preach both morning and night. Dr. Taylor has returned from London, England, where he has been preaching during the month of August at Marylebone Presbyterian Church and St. Andrews Presbyterian Church.

The Presbytery of Potomac will convene on Monday night, September 17, at Bealton, Va. From the Central Presbyterian Church the representative to Presbytery will be the pastor, Dr. Taylor, and Elders R. P. Clarke, principal, and James T. Mathews, alternate. The Home Mission committee of Potomac Presbytery will meet on Monday at the Central Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Dr. Z. B. Phillips Will Preach Tomorrow.

The Rev. Dr. Z. B. Phillips, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, will be the preacher at the 11 a. m. service on Sunday. Dr. Phillips has just returned from his summer home on Cape Cod. The Rev. Mr. Doll will preach at the 8 p. m. service.

The winter session of the church school will begin on Sunday, September 23 at 9:30 a. m.

Staff Capt. Wellstead, Of Toledo, Here.

Staff Capt. Rose D. Wellstead, of the Volunteers of America branch in Toledo, Ohio, will speak at services of the local organization tomorrow afternoon in the mission at 471 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Adjutant H. Mills Aroh will conduct the services and direct the musical program.

Dr. John Compton Ball Has Anniversary.

Sunday will make the official opening of the thirty-second year of the pastorate of Dr. John Compton Ball, of the Metropolitan Baptist Church. His theme for the morning will be "The Call from the Far Horizons." At the evening service he will speak on "The One Safe Path of Life." At this service the choir will be assisted by a male quartette.

"Substance," Subject at Christian Science Churches.

"Substance" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The golden text is from Philippians iv:19. "My God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus." Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do not appear. (Hebrew II: 1, 3.).

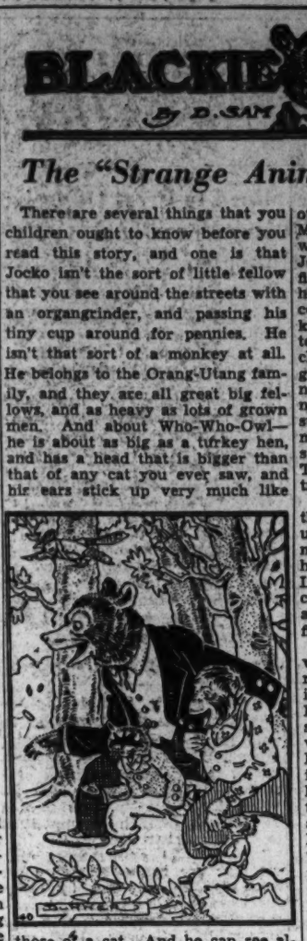
"Cities of Refuge," Subject Of Dr. Forney Hutchinson.

Dr. Forney Hutchinson, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, South, will use as his sermon subject tomorrow morning, "Cities of Refuge." At the evening service Dr. J. Howard Wells, presiding elder of the Washington district, will preach. Dr. Hutchinson will be in Annapolis, Md., assisting in the dedication of the new church school building in that city.

Dr. Rufus W. Weaver To Continue Series.

"American Christianity in the Life of Our Nation," a study of the religious background of American culture, will be the subject of Dr. Rufus W. Weaver at the First Baptist Church tomorrow morning, in his series of sermons on "The Christian Faith in a Changing World." The evening program will be a service of music by the choir, with an interpretive talk by Dr. Weaver on "The Greatest of England's Early Hymn Writers."

The B. Y. P. U. Clinic will be the theme of the young people's program tomorrow evening. Next Friday evening there will be a meeting of the B. Y. P. U. officers and group captains at the church.



The "Strange Animal" Dresses Up.

There are several things that you children ought to know before you read this story, and one is that Jocko isn't the sort of little fellow that you see around the streets with an organgrinder, and passing his tiny cup around for pennies. He isn't that sort of a monkey at all. He belongs to the Orang-Utang family, and they are all great big fellows, and as heavy as lots of grown men. And about Who-Who-Owl—he is about as big as a turkey hen, and has a head that is bigger than that of any cat you ever saw, and his ears stick up very much like those of a cat. And he can see almost as well in the day as in the night, though it is his business to get most of his living at night. Now let's follow these big folks around a little and see what they do.

You know that Mr. Man has been thinking that it is a man, and not an animal, that is doing all the cutting-up around his place, and Blackie and Jocko know what he has been thinking. Why not help him to believe it a little stronger? That's what Blackie and Jocko said.

It is getting to be pretty cold weather, and Aunt Lindy has taken Tom's winter suit out of her chest where she has had it packed with a lot of pepper all summer, to keep the moths out of it, and she has hung it out in the sun to get some of the pepper out, and to get it to smell nice and clean, just as the sun makes her bed smell good when she puts it out. But it still smelled pretty peppery when she came to take it in, a while before night, so she told Tom that if it stayed out in the dew all night and then in the sun again all the next day, it ought to be fixed, and so she left it there on the clothes line.

Jay Bird was just getting ready to go home when he heard her say it, and it sounded to him like good news for Jocko. He had heard Jocko say that he wished he had a suit that looked like the ones that other folks wore so he might fool Mr. Man and Uncle Joe, and so he wiggled his wings right over to Jocko and told him where he could find his suit. But before he went he called Hound Dog off in the corner of the field and told him to keep his mouth shut if he happened to hear any noise out about the clothes line that night, or he might get shot. There wasn't a bit of noise made about the place that night, and there wasn't a sign of a suit on the clothes line the next morning, but there were plenty of signs of a visit during the night. Those signs were "strange animal" tracks.

If Hound Dog hadn't been so sick that he could hardly hold his head up, and not able to eat a single mouthful of breakfast, he would have heard something from Aunt Lindy and Tom, but they just couldn't blame a dog that was sick as he was for not going out and fighting that sort of a robber.

Jocko went on to his own house with his new suit, that night, but right after breakfast the next morning he took it over to show to Blackie. Dr. Coon and Billie Possum were both there, and they all wanted to see how Jocko would look in Tom's Sunday suit, so he put it on. Then he put on the hat he had worn from Uncle Joe's house that night when he shot the gun out at the well, and he certainly did look a lot like a sure-enough man. "Well, we will have to fix up a party that you can wear these clothes to," Blackie said. And the rest of the day was used in planning the party.

Tolls on 2 Spans Will Be Removed

Leesburg, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Delegate Wilbur C. Hall, Loudoun County's representative in the General Assembly, received a letter today from State Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley that Shirley expected the toll charges on bridges over the Potomac River at Point of Rocks and Brunswick, Md., would be removed on October 15.

Commissioner Shirley pointed out his records indicated taxes collected for travel over the spans, less the cost of collections, should warrant having sufficient funds by October to satisfy the Maryland and Virginia highway commission' obligation tax on the purchase price of the Brunswick Bridge.

With the tolls removed, it is expected the business interests in Loudoun County and sections of Maryland near the bridges will increase greatly. The Point of Rocks Bridge connects Maryland with the highway which passes through Leesburg.

The world's best seller, second only to the Bible, from whence it gets its theme, was written by Dr. Charles M. Sheldon in 1897, when he wrote "In His Steps." The story concerns a modern preacher who set out to solve daily problems by acting as he believed Christ would have acted. The hero, Henry Maxwell, also started a laymen's movement whose members were pledged to the same practice.

The author was a Congregational minister at Topeka, Kans., when he wrote the story as an inspirational piece to be read first to his Sunday school class and later published serially in the Advance, a church paper.

It was published in book form as a cheap edition and soon sold out, but it was soon discovered that the copyright was imperfect—the church paper had sent only one copy to the copyright office instead of two. Then the story was the property of anyone who wanted to publish it.

"In His Steps" was translated into 21 foreign languages and printed abroad in 47 different editions. In this country scores of editions were printed until the total sale of the story ran to 25,000,000 copies.

For all his book rights Dr. Sheldon was paid nothing except an occasional check in the form of a donation. Generally he got nothing—often not even a note of thanks. He did realize $275 for the manuscript for serial publication in the Advance.

Binnie Barnes Starred With Frank Morgan

Bing Crosby, Half Stork and Half Crooner; Miscellany.

Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Gerald G. Gross

(Batting for Nelson B. Bell).

"There's Always Tomorrow," Universal's picturization of a story by Ursula Parrott, adapted to the screen by William Hurlburt, starring Frank Morgan and Binnie Barnes. Directed by Edward Sloman. Reviewed Thursday afternoon.

We have always had a fondness for the Rialto Theater, as a picture house, so it is a pleasure to report it has opened for the season with a thoroughly entertaining and artistic movie called "There's Always Tomorrow."

Here is a film which is as restful as a sleeping babe and as disquieting as a hurricane. In places it is the epitome of comedy and yet throughout runs the thread of tragedy, tragedy of the most poignant sort—unfulfilled love. All this must sound like so much raving in paradoxes, so, to prevent confusion, we shall try to continue with a more calm appraisal of "There's Always Tomorrow."

Dramas based on domestic life are not rare. Many a play and film has been based on the complications which arise when an unmarried woman is genuinely in love with a married man. Too, dramatic treatment has been give the case of the wife who places too much emphasis on household and too little on husband. (In the latter connection we have particularly in mind "Craig's Wife," George Kelly's play that won the Pulitzer prize nine or ten years ago.) The picture at hand combines these two ideas to such successful effect as to make "There's Always Tomorrow" notable, not simply as Binnie Barnes' first American-made starring vehicle but as a believable transcript of life in some homes.

Binnie Barnes Impresses.

Joseph White (Frank Morgan) is a fine-looking, middle-aged husband who lives and has his office in New York or Evansville or Paducah or Washington or anyhere. He remembers wedding anniversaries where his wife doesn't. There are seven in the household—the missus (Lois Wilson), five children and Ella, the cook. Eight, if you wish to count father. That sort of thing.

Concerned only with parties for the children and that danged furnace ("Joseph, fire up before you come to bed"), Mrs. White gets away with her criminal negligence until Alice Vaile enters the scene. In fact, she gets away with it even afterward, for the wife is never to know what the extraordinarily gallant Miss Vaile has meant to her attention-starved husband.

Binnie Barnes, who is warm, handsome and plausible as Alice Vaile, makes an auspicious American beginning in "There's Always Tomorrow." Now and then she may utter an odd pronunciation but even to mention such a trifle is like using a straw for a battering ram against a bronze door.

The door may be a not unappropriate figure, at that, for it suggests the ending of a romance which is as futile as it is noble. Therein lies the tragedy.

Lest there be any misunderstanding, it should be added that never once does so much as a kiss seen or unseen, pass between the neglected husband and the young woman who loves him in vain. Indeed, the only kiss in the entire picture, if we remember correctly, is a hasty good night peck planted on Arthur's lips by his fiancee, Helen.

Credit to Ursula Parrott.

Frank Morgan is excellent as Joseph White, if that is news. Lois Wilson, a Hollywood spinster who is becoming a favorite in mother roles, leaves little to be desired in her characterization of Mrs. White. The five children are splendidly done by Robert Taylor (Arthur), Louise Latimer, Maurice Murphy, Dick Winslow and Helen Parrish. The 11-year-old Miss Parrish, who is responsible for most of that comedy referred to previously, appears to be an important screen find. The sympathetic role of Helen, Arthur's fiancee, is ably handled by Elizabeth Young. Margaret Hamilton (Ella, the cook) rounds out a stanch if little known cast, remembering also that Alan Hale is seen in a brief street car interlude.

Ursula Parrott has, in this, contributed a human, moving story for filmization, something much more fundamental than "Ex-Wife" and other of her works.

As a postscript, just to keep the records straight, may we add that it was Miss Latimer, who appeared with Frank Morgan in that photograph printed on this page last Wednesday, and not Miss Barnes, as the underlines erroneously stated.

"There's Always Tomorrow" is supplemented by an interesting Universal newsreel, an Oswald cartoon comedy and "Stranger Than Fiction," a mediocre short subject.

Jimmy Lake Writes to Say:

"Eighteen years ago, while playing Hurtig and Seamon's Theater, on West 125th street, New York, I bumped into Jean Bedini, playing at that time at the Alhambra Theater, who mentioned that he had inserted into his specialty a youth whom he thought possessed some ability. Our stage doors were about 100 feet apart and his act went on about our intermission time, as he was playing what was termed advance vaudeville. . . . I was playing burlesk and, sneaking into the theater for a quick perusal, I was convinced that the youth was funny. Bedini said he was playing a spot on the program that needed the quick removal of his broken dishes that he used in the act and as the youth only cost him $20 weekly, and expenses, he was anxious for criticism, so I said I thought the kid was really funny and in substance the kid was Eddie Cantor. Love and kisses.

(Signed) Jimmy Lake."

Affectionate Jimmy!

Look Out for Crosby.

What is this fellow Crosby, a crooner or a stork?

While Bing was working in "The Big Broadcast" some time ago Stuart Erwin, a member of the cast, became a father. During the making of "College Humor," another of his early successes, Player Richard Arlen, Director Wesley Ruggles and Crooner Bing Crosby himself were similarly blessed.

Skeets Gallagher, associated with Crosby in "Too Much Harmony," had the same thing happen to him during the making of that film, and so did an electrician on the "We're Not Dressing" set. Scarcely was "She Loves Me Not" finished than Mrs. Crosby (Dixie Lee) had twins. Now Bing is half through with "Here Is My Heart" and what do you suppose has happened? No, not just yet. But Ralph Rainger, who wrote the songs, says he expects the heir's arrival some time in November.

Highlights of the New Week.

The "Eyes for You" number in "Dames" is a Busby Berkeley stew whose ingredients are 300 girls, a catchy rhythm, 30 tons of revolving steel, half a dozen telescoping stairways and 5,000 yards of black velvet . . . Binnie Barnes, who has just arrived in her native England for a vacation, possesses red-gold hair and reddish eyes, is more beautiful in person than she is on the screen and has yet to see "There's Always Tomorrow" unreeled before a regular audience . . . Constance Bennett, the haughty duchess in "Affairs of Cellini," left a society career at the age of 18 to enter pictures, her first being "Cytherea" . . . "The Count of Monte Cristo" was in preparation for nearly a year before a single scene was filmed and Rowland V. Lee is the first Hollywood director ever to work with Robert Donat . . . Edward Sedgwick, who directed "Death on the Diamond," was attached to the Department of Justice here during the war.

Among Local Thespians.

"Our Nell; or, She's More to Be Pitied Than Censured" will be staged at Pythian Temple the week of October 8 under auspices of Kallipolis Grotto, M. O. V. P. E. R. John Humbird Duffey, who directed and staged "Yeomen of the Guard" last year, will have charge. Only local talent will be used, it is announced.

Traveling in two automobiles and with their set and properties stowed in a trailer, the WJSV Players will take to the nearby road with their three-act "Querida," opening next Tuesday in Remington, Va. So far they have bookings in Manassas, Orange, Cabin John, Marlboro and other towns in this area. In the cast are Charles C. Gilman, Paul Alexander, Yerby Pannill, Clare Sargent and Harry Westcott. Ronald Dawson is director.

Prison bars, country lanes, simple cottages, fashionable drawing rooms, English woods, Louisiana swamps, a garret, a country fair, a wharf and a barroom have passed in review on the stage of the Roadside Theater this summer. At one time or another, a canoe and a rowboat crossed the stage and a steamboat and a farmhouse were aflame. This week the mechanical masterpiece is a home-made storm which rages without and throughout "The Tavern," concluding production of the season which will be presented for the last time tomorrow night.

John Lloyd Sikken returns to the title role in "The Drunkard" and Maurice Jarvis resumes his part as Arden Rencelaw starting next Tuesday night. These two performers in the melodrama still running in the Willard Hotel ballroom left the cast this week to participate in "The Forty Thieves."

Constance Connor Brown, for the past three years associate in public speaking and a director of dramatics at George Washington University, will open her own studio this winter, offering instruction in acting, directing and stagecraft and giving "laboratory" work through the production of three or four full length plays.

Reminiscences.

Who remembers Wallace Reid and Elsie Ferguson in "Peter Ibbetson?"

Here's to Miriam and Otto

Otto Kruger, who is Henry in "Springtime for Henry," the effervescent comedy at the Columbia, would seem to be drinking to the success of Miriam Hopkins on the occasion of her signing a Goldwyn contract. Miss Hopkins is the ebullient vixen in "She Loves Me Not," at the Metropolitan for a repeat engagement.

Straight From the Studios

Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, Sept. 13.—From what I hear, that plum role of Jenny Lind in "The Mighty Barnum" will go to Virginia Bruce (Mrs. Jack Gilbert), and that means a new increase of glamour for this screen beauty. Also it signifies that Miss Bruce's voice must impress. Information is that Miss Bruce had a test for the part yesterday, and that it is practically decided that she will play in the picture with Wallace Beery, Janet Beecher and others.

MARLENE DIETRICH

Rumors at one time were that Grace Moore and Jeanette MacDonald were being sought for the part. Also the unsual wire to Lilly Pons, who so far has not been lured to the films, was sent.

Vacation for Eddie Cantor.

Eddie Cantor will have his first vacation in many days when he leaves here. He must stop over in New York first for a period of radio broadcasts and then he is going to England. During the ten weeks that he will spend there, he will do nothing other than taking parts possibly in some benefit performances and a broadcast or two. Between picture work, radio engagements and stage tours, Cantor keeps busy most of the year. This will constitute the first real break in his schedule in several years. Meantime, preparations have already started on his next picture for Samuel Goldwyn. The writing team of Arthur Skeekman and Nat Perrin, are busy digging up ideas for this production. It will probably be made a little later than usual next year, but an early start is regarded as just the thing for a Cantor production.

Prospectus of James Cagney.

It looks as if James Cagney will continue to portray hard-working chaps. A story called "Slim," which has to do with a power company lineman, has been purchased by Warner Bros., and is probably designed for the hard-boiled young star. Ahead of that, of course, will be the picture "Flying Leathernecks," in which Cagney is to star with Pat O'Brien, and which will be a sort of follow-up for "Here Comes the Navy."

That very facile comic, Sid Silvers, has been signed up by M-G-M. He scored a hot in "Bottoms Up," and is appearing in "Translantic Merry-go-Round." Silvers will contribute comedy to various pictures as he is now under long-term contract. Incidentally, M-G-M has ideas for teaming Ted Healy and Edward Brophy. They are using them in this particular capacity in "Forsaking All Others," which feature Clark Gable and Joan Crawford.

Vampish Role In "Cat's Paw."

Grace Bradley has been attracting attention as the result of her vampish performance in Harold Lloyd's "The Cat's Paw," and so she is to have a chance at another comedy lead, this time with Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe in the film, "East River." Added to the cast of this production are Ruth Peterson, Gwyn (Big Boy) Williams and George Riegan, while Marjorie Rambeau also prominently appears. Raol Walsh is directing, and production started yesterday.

In all, Irene Dunne will sing six songs in the picture "Sweet Adeline." Two of these will be new and the others will be numbers made famous by Helen Morgan on the stage.

Reinhardt Party.

A brilliant gathering for Max Reinhardt was held Sunday at the home of Rouben Mamoulian, the motion-picture director. The celebrated German producer was feted with members of his staff, and a most cosmopolitan assemblage was in attendance. Also the party was one of the largest of recent months. Many former friends and associates of Reinhardt were glimpsed. Guests included in part Marlene Dietrica and Josef von Sternberg, Anna Sten and Dr. Eugene Frenke, Ernst Lubitsch, Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Robinson, David C. Selznick, Myron Selznick, Jesse L. Lasky, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lachman, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wanger, Virginia Bruce, Arthur Edmund Carew, Adolph Zukor, Boris Lovett-Lorski, Jeanette MacDonald, Robert Ritchie, Gottfried Reinhardt, Einar Nilson, Loretta Young, B. P. Schulberg, Jose Iturbi, Carl Laemmle, jr., Ivan Lededoff, Wera Engels, Brian Aherne, Lewis Milestone, Alfred Newman, Edwin Knopf, Gary Cooper, William K. Howard, Mervyn Leroy, Berthold Viertel, Salka Viertel, Kenneth MacGowan, Abraham Lehr and many others. The party was held in the garden of Mamoulian's house.

Skyline Drive Opening Today; Still Unfinished

Motorists Will Be Urged to Drive Slowly on Scenic Highway.

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.). The long awaited opening of the Skyline drive, which has been the subject of considerable controversy between the Government agents and Shenandoah Valley citizens, will take place tomorrow.

This 33-mile stretch of scenic highway along the crest of the Blue Ridge Mountains promises to be one of the features of the Shenandoah National Park.

Rainy weather this week delayed the day-and-night work of placing the asphalt surface on the mountain road, and only 15 miles of this work, it was stated tonight, were completed.

On the remaining section, however, the loose rock has been bound together by limestone chip dust and will be safe for motor traffic at not more than 30 miles an hour.

Guards at the gates of the Panorama entrance on the Lee highway, east of Luray, and on the Swift Run Gap entrance on the Spotswood trail, east of Elkton, were removed tonight. The National Park Service, in charge of traffic over the drive, requests that motorists enter the mountain at Panorama and leave at Swift Run Gap if they wish to make the complete trip. A speed of 30 miles an hour also is recommended.

The heaviest traffic is expected on Sunday. Guards from the three Civilian Conservation Camps along the Skyline drive will be placed on the mountain road to advise motorists and urge low rate speed.

There will be no formal ceremonies in connection with the opening of the Skyline drive tomorrow. It had been planned to hold a celebration and have President Roosevelt present the dedication speech. The President, however, could not leave Hyde Park, and this feature of the opening was abandoned for a later date. Consequently, at daylight tomorrow morning the guards on the Panorama and Swift Run Gap entrances will be removed and motorists will be allowed to make the trip over the highway.

Extra Police on Guard.

Luray, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Extra policemen have been placed on duty at all roads leading from Luray to Big Meadows CCC camp in order to avert accidents in congested traffic incident to the opening of the Skyline drive tomorrow.

All roads in rural sections will be patrolled by policemen and State officers. The official opening of the Skyline drive will be celebrated at Big Meadows CCC camp when a number of members of the official family of President Roosevelt will be present.

Work Begins Monday On Monticello Road

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Work on the new $30,000 road to Monticello, home of Thomas Jefferson, will begin Monday, according to G. Y. Carpenter, engineer in charge, who reached Charlottesville yesterday.

As all bids for the highway exceeded the amount appropriated by Congress for the project, they were rejected by the United States Bureau of Public Roads, and the work will be done by the Federal Government.

Local labor will be employed in the project. With the exception of three or four supervisory employes, the workmen will be drawn through the local office of the National Reemployment Service. The force will consist of approximately 70 men.

Mr. Carpenter, engineer in charge, has established a temporary office in Honeymoon Lodge, on the lawn at Monticello. The chief engineer for the road will be William M. Austin, highway engineer in charge of the Skyline drive.

The new road will replace the present narrow drive from the gateway to the mansion and will eliminate its objectionable features. The curves will be straightened as much as possible and the parking places adjoining the cemetery where Jefferson is buried, and the original stone barn adjacent to the home will be enlarged to handle more traffic to the shrine.

The steep grades will be cut down so as not to exceed 7½ per cent. Specifications call for a standard macadam all-weather surface.

Ship Lines Seek Freight-Rate Rise

14 Companies Unite With Railroads in Petition.

Fourteen steamship companies joined yesterday with the railroads in asking the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to increase freight rates, the Associated Press reported.

The companies operate from ports on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts and Chesapeake Bay and participate in joint rail-water and rail-water-rail rates.

The Federal Diary

Portrait studies of two new Federal executives. Left, F. C. Stratt, of New York, who has just assumed his new duties as chief of service at Federal Housing Administration. Prior to his appointment, Mr. Stratt was engaged in banking. Right, Lloyd Garrison, chairman, National Labor Relations Board, is a man with a record for achievement. A Harvard Law School graduate, he was counsel for the New York City Bar Association and was for two years dean of the Wisconsin Law School. Mr. Garrison served in the Navy during the World War.

GOVERNMENT employes are keenly interested in the program advanced by the District department of the American Federation of Government Employes for replacing all street car lines in Washington with bus lines, inside a 5-year period. The plan was outlined to the Public Utilities Commission for Michael D. Schaefer, president of the District department, by Lee Somers, of National headquarters. It contemplates progressive substitution of bus lines for car lines, and the immediate purchase of a fleet of 200 buses with $2,400,000 of the $2,500,000, which, it has been estimated, would be needed to make proposed trackage changes, and to use the remainder for a few vitally needed changes.

BAKER

Mr. Somers explained that Mr. Schaefer had expected to make the presentation, but was out of town and could not do so.

A large attendance is expected at the first annual track and field meet of Federal and District employes at Central High School Stadium, beginning at 2 p. m. today. Featuring the program, which is under auspices of the Community Center, will be a soft ball game between teams from Corn-Hog Section, AAA, and Nitrogen Fixation Unit, Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, at 4:30 o'clock.

Diary Guest Tickets.

IF your name is followed by (*), call in person on the Federal Diary editor. You will receive tickets to Loew's Columbia (Nancy Carroll in "Springtime for Henry"); or to Loew's Palace (Frederic March and Constance Bennett in "The Affairs of Cellini"); or to Loew's Fox (stage, Ted Lewis and his "Happiness Follies of 1934;" screen, "Death on the Diamond").

Diary office hours are: Daily, except Sunday, 12 noon to 1 p. m. and from 4:30 to 6 p. m.; Saturday, 12 noon to 2:30 p. m.

Ode to "Handlebar Hank."

(Motorman on Chevy Chase Line)

"Handlebar Hank,"
Of old Chevy Chase,
Handles his car
With perfection and grace.

It's a pleasure to watch him,
Serene at his work,
As he starts and he stops
With nary a jerk.

His strong, handsome features,
His keen waxed mustache,
Will never be marred
By collision or crash.

And when in the future
Age makes him retire,
The tale of his prowess
Young hearts will inspire.

CHARLES CHESTNUT (*).

Right to Enter Austria Is Won By Exiled Zita

Will Return With Otto and Other Children as Ordinary Citizens.

for the return of Zita and her eight children, including Archduke Otto, the Hapsburg pretender to the thrones of Austria and Hungary.

Permission has been granted the family, it was understood, to reside in Austria as plain, ordinary citizens of that present-day republic.

Tonight Zita, her month's stay at Villa Pianore, the Bourbon-Parma estate at Viareggio, Italy, at an end, was hurrying back to Brussels, while Otto, too, was en route to the castle here after his tour of Scandinavia.

At Viareggion, just before her departure, Zita received King Victor Emanuel and Queen Elena of Italy, and after their call the "unofficial" engagement of Otto to Princess Maria of Italy was made known.

But for Zita that triumph of matchmaking must have been surpassed by the knowledge that her 16 years of exile—an exile that has sent her to Madeira, Spain, France, Italy and Belgium—was nearing its end.

Otto Bound by Pledge.

If they go back to Austria, it was stated here, Otto must expressly promise that he will in no way seek to bring about the monarchy's restoration—unless Europe's great powers, their interest focused on Austria by the past year's events, consent.

In exchange for Otto's word, it was explained, part of the Hapsburgs' great estates confiscated after the fall of the dynasty will be returned to them.

An agreement to this effect was reached recently at conferences among the powers, it was said.

(Representatives of Italy, France and Great Britain have been reported in frequent conversation with Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria at Geneva these past few days. A monarchist sympathizer, Schuschnigg recently visited Premier Mussolini at Florence and they discussed, among other issues, the question of the Hapsburg estates.)

It was understood here that the Little Entente, strongly opposed to restoration of the Hapsburgs in Austria or Hungary, would not protest their return to Austria, but would hold the Vienna government entirely responsible for events of the future.

Count Sigray Named Special Aid for Otto

Budapest, Sept. 14 (AP).—Archduke Otto, Hapsburg pretender to the Hungarian throne, today appointed Count Anton Sigray his Hungarian representative in all family and political affairs.

A colorful figure in Hungary's prewar and postwar history, Count Anton Sigray first captured America's attention when he came to the United States in 1908 to attend the wedding of Count Laszlo Szechenyi, Hungarian Minister to the United States, and Miss Gladys Vandervilt, of New York.

Two years later Count Sigray came back to the United States to claim an American bride, Miss Harriet Daly, daughter of Marcus Daly and sister-in-law of the wartime Ambassador to Germany, James W. Gerard.

Press reports at the time said the bride's dowry was $6,000,000.

Fighting with the Hungarian Army during the war—which brought the confiscation of his wife's properties in the United States—Count Sigray was several times reported captured, but he emerged at the war's end to fight vigorously if unsuccessfully to save something from the wreckage of Hungary.

Hapsburg Restoration Zita's Dream in Exile

Through 16 long years of exile the former Empress of Austria, who was the Princess Zita of Parma before she married Archduke Charles Francis of Austria, has patiently pursued her dream of an eventful restoration of the Hapsburg dynasty in Austria and Hungary.

Though she ruled the once mighty empire but briefly—her husband ascended the throne in 1916 with the death of the aged Emperor Francis Josef, to be ousted at the end of the World War—she has centered her thoughts since on regaining the throne for her eldest child, Archduke Otto. The deposed emperor died in 1922.

Of Italian birth, Empress Zita was assailed by Austria's allies during the World War, but nonetheless, she had to leave with the emperor three days after the Armistice was signed.

Little Entente Watchful.

Watchfully waiting any attempt to restore the Hapsburgs was the Little Entente, much of its territory carved out of the former empire, and Zita wandered to Spain, Italy, Belgium and Switzerland, seeking support for her cause.

Rebuffed time and again as she sought the right to reenter her old domain, she finally settled at Brussels.

In 1930 she bade Hapsburgs renew their oath to Otto, it was reported. Meanwhile, she was seeking a proper match for her son and she found it this year in young Princess Maria, of Italy.

But by this time the big powers, watching closely as internal dissension tore the Austrian republic, were reported leaning to the belief that stability might best be insured by eventually restoring the monarchy. In that report Zita's best hope rested.

All this time she had kept close contact with the loyal monarchists still living in Austria and Hungary, and Otto had his personal representatives in both nations.

Arlington Picks Ball to Fight Boundary War

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Former State Senator Frank L. Ball was appointed by the county board last night to represent Arlington County before the Washington-Virginia Boundary Commission. The vote was unanimous.

The effort to have the board reconsider its previous action in failing to appoint special counsel following the request of Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas was the result of an appeal made at the meeting earlier in the day by S. J. Solomon, vice president of the National Airport Corporation, owners of the Washington Airport; R. B. Swope, president of the Southern Oxygen Co., and H. K. Green, commissioner of revenue for Arlington County.

Upon motion of board member, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Magruder, a special committee consisting of Chairman Lyman M. Kelley, Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas, Frank L. Ball, and Commissioner of Revenue H. K. Green will go to Richmond in an effort to have the attorney general's office assist in the fight.

Unless the county is represented before the commission, the defense by private property owners will be greatly weakened, Mr. Solomon stated. He said that practically all the airport property is claimed by the Federal Government, and that even if it only takes a portion of the property the site would be destroyed as an airport.

Pays $7,314 Taxes.

The corporation, Solomon stated, is paying annual taxes to Arlington County amounting to $7,314, while the county has an opportunity to secure able counsel for only $1,500.

Mr. Swope declared that he felt that it ought not be necessary for property owners to appear before the board to ask for aid in such an important matter as is now confronting this county with the possible loss of at least $40,000 in taxes annually.

Commissioner Green stated that the Federal Government now holds land in Arlington County worth possibly $2,500,000, which is 23 per cent of the total assessed land value of the county, and for which the county does not receive a cent in taxes.

Mr. Green substantiated the statements of Mr. Swope, of the Southern Oxygen Co., and Mr. Solomon, of the Washington Airports, that the property contended for by the Government was the greatest revenue producer Arlington County enjoys and that the loss of this property would increase the burden of taxation on the home owners of Arlington County.

Taking up the question of Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas' salary, the board was advised by letter that the State compensation board has set his salary at $5,000 a year. One-half of this shall be paid by the county, with the balance paid by the State. This action is in accordance with the act of the last General Assembly.

A portion of the letter referred to services similar to attorneys of cities which Douglas would be called upon to render and which were not covered by the compensation of $5,000, the board stated. This is left to the discretion of the county board. The matter was deferred to the next meeting.

Dumping Awaits Action.

Despite the fact that the proposed dumping ordinance has been advertised, the board refused to take any action looking to its adoption until the special committee made its report. The committee, consisting of County Manager Roy S. Bradem, Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas and Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, were requested to make a report on the ordinance prior to its adoption.

Charles R. Fenwick, chairman of the legislative and legal action committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation, appeared before the board and offered a number of amendments. These were accepted and will be given consideration.

Total expenditures amounting to $63,963.14, of which $7,378.41 represented the semimonthly pay roll, was approved.

The board voted to make a request to the Public Works Administration for $300,000, to be used in payment for installation of portions of the sewerage system.

Parent-Teacher Chairmen.

Carlton K. Lewis, president of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Washington-Lee High School, announces the appointment of the committee chairmen as follows: Program, Mrs. Gladys Monroe; membership, Mrs. C. K. Lewis; ways and means, Mrs. E. V. Colberg; hospitality, Mrs. Joseph E. Shawhan; publicity, Grover E. Payne; publications, Mrs. James Fuller Hayes.

The annual field day and first-aid contests will be held this afternoon, beginning at 1:30 o'clock, as a feature of the closing day of the carnival, which has been sponsored by the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association. The carnival is being held at Wilson boulevard and Boliver street, in Ballston.

Ira Law, director of first aid and life saving for the American Red Cross, will have charge of the first-aid contests. There will be a concert by the Falls Church Firemen's Band in the evening.

The quarterly convention of the Alexandria-Arlington County Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held Tuesday in the First Baptist Church at Alexandria.

The session will open at 2:30 o'clock with Mrs. Martha N. Brookings, president, presiding. Dr. Izora Scott, of Washington, National legislative chairman of the W. C. T. U., will address the meeting at 4 o'clock. Her topic will be "The World's W. C. T. U. Convention at Stockholm, Sweden."

The Clarendon Woman's Christian Temperance Union has elected the following officers for the year: Mrs. Frances M. Mabry, president; Mrs. J. C. Boss, vice president; Mrs. Catherine Frederick, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. T. Wiltshire, treasurer.

Under the direction of Miss Sara Miller, of the Clarendon Loyal Temperance Legion, a medal contest will be held at the Clarendon Baptist Church tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Two groups between the ages of 10 and 12 and 13 and 15 will participate.

Dern Will Report To Roosevelt Today

Poughkeepsie to go aboard the Nourmahal.

Tomorrow's conference was arranged in the hope that, after today's developments, the strike situation will have cleared sufficiently to enable Mr. Roosevelt to reach a decision about attending the races. Either the President will go ashore at Fort Adams, or the two officials will go aboard the Nourmahal to see him, he said.

In case the need for troops in Rhode Island grows acute, Mr. Roosevelt said he would transfer to a destroyer and direct movements either from that base or proceed to Providence, the capital of Rhode Island. It was apparent that the President thought—and hoped—that contingency to be remote.

Welcomed by tall, bronzed Vincent Astor and his little dachshund "Rabbit," which waddled down the Nourmahal's ramp to renew acquaintance with the President, Mr. Roosevelt said good-by to his mother, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, and walked in the rain to the ship's deck.

There he was greeted by his companions on last winter's cruise off Florida—Kermit Roosevelt, a distant cousin; Judge Frederic Kernochan, George St. George, and William Rhinelander Stewart, all yachting comrades of old. The only one missing from the last trip was Dr. Leslie Heiter, of Mobile, Ala.

The President was clad in gray trousers, blue coat and a slouch panama hat. Standing at the rail with his grandchildren, "Sistie" and "Buzie" Dall, who had enjoyed a romp about the yacht, he posed for pictures as the Nourmahal prepared to swing into the Hudson channel.

Besides Mr. Roosevelt and the other Astor guests, the others aboard were "Gus" Gennerich and other Secret Service men. The customary White House entourage, headed by Assistant Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre, left immediately by automobile to set up headquarters at Newport.

The Nourmahal, brilliant in a new coat of paint, will reach Narragansett Bay early tomorrow morning. Until then the President will maintain touch with developments by radio. If nothing prevents, he will cruise about for the America's Cup races, which begin in the afternoon.

Mr. Roosevelt said he will probably remain off Newport until Tuesday or Wednesday, which indicated a slightly longer voyage than first contemplated. He then plans to return to Hyde Park to be here for his mother's eightieth birthday later this month, before returning to Washington.

Dunn Is Named To Alexandria's Manager Post

Permanent Successor to Lawrence Will Be Chosen Later.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

City Engineer E. C. Dunn was named city manager of Alexandria at a special meeting of the city council last night, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of City Manager Wallace Lawrence, which becomes effective Tuesday. Lawrence submitted his resignation last Tuesday to accept a position with a private concern.

Mayor E. C. Davison declared yesterday that so far as he knew the council had not given any consideration to the selection of a successor to Mr. Lawrence. It is understood that the council desires to get in all of the applications before taking up the work of naming a city manager so they can investigate the qualifications of the applicants.

No formal applications had been received by the council last night, but it is believed that friends of several persons who intend to seek the position are already interviewing members of the council relative to the appointment. At the present time the salary of the city manager is $4,600 a year.

A meeting of the city council is scheduled for Tuesday night for the purpose of taking up some unfinished business.

Book Heads Charities.

The board of directors of the United Charities of Alexandria at its organization meeting named D. C. Book as president with Walter Pierpoint, vice president; F. H. Fannon, treasurer, and Robert Reese, secretary.

It was decided to hold the annual drive during the week of November 4. The goal to be sought was not named. Last year $13,000 was pledged, but so far this year only $9,000 has been collected. An effort will be made to collect the unpaid pledges so as to obtain funds to carry on the charity work until funds from the November drive become available.

Ill, Mother Ends Life.

Despondent over continued ill health, Mrs. Ethel Cooke Nichols, 44, wife of Elmer Nichols, 2 Rosemont Avenue, Alexandria, shot and killed herself yesterday in the kitchen of her home.

According to police, Mrs. Nichols had gone downstairs to prepare breakfast and her husband was shaving when he heard the shot.

Funeral services for Edward F. Dawson, 25, who shot and killed himself Thursday afternoon in a truck parked near the Alexandria police station will be held today at 3:30 p. m. at the residence, 708 North Columbus street, Alexandria, with the Rev. Ryland T. Dodge, pastor of the Temple Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery.

Two D. C. Men Jailed For Drunken Driving

Unable to pay fines for driving while drunk, two Washington men were ordered jailed yesterday at Upper Marlboro, Md., after trial in the local police court.

The men were Joe Wade, 220 H street southwest, and Joseph A. N. Dean, 2021 Douglas street northeast. Both were fined $100 by Judge Waldo Burnside. Wade was arrested at Silver Hill, September 9, by State Police Corporal J. T. Knight. Dean was arrested the same day by Prince Georges County Policeman William Gray, near Marlboro.

The recently formed club was named for the Rev. R. Cotter Fitzgerald, assistant pastor of St. James Church and was organized to promote interest among the men of the church.

Montgomery Women To Meet September 28

The executive board of the Montgomery County Federation of Women's Clubs will have the first meeting of the year on September 28 at the Woman's Club of Bethesda, according to an anouncement made yesterday by the president, Mrs. B. Peyton Whalen, of Bethesda.

The morning session will begin at 10 o'clock and will be followed by luncheon served by the Bethesda Club, with Mrs. W. E. Weigel in charge of reservations. Club chairmen are being invited to the afternoon session, beginning at 2 o'clock.

Town Planning Provincial Ball

Fete to Take Place This Fall in Bladensburg.

Plans for a provincial ball, at which guests will represent characters prominent in old Bladensburg history, will be made when the Bladensburg Historical Society meets Thursday, September 27.

The meeting will be held in the parish hall of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Bladensburg. Arthur P. Owens, the president, will be in charge.

Three men, known for their outstanding interest in the society's effort to restore Bladensburg to its former glory, have been invited. They are George H. Calvert, president of the Maryland Society of Washington; John Clagett Proctor, Washington newspaper man, and C. C. Magruder, chairman of the bicentennial committee for Prince Georges County.

The ball, it is expected, will be held at the Beaver Dam Country Club, Landover, Md., this fall. Old dances, popular in the period 1742-1840, also will be staged.

A meeting of the executive committee of the society will be held Wednesday night in the Hyattsville offices of Walter L. Green, attorney and executive vice president of the society.

Rev. H. K. Pasma, Union Preacher.

The Rev. Henry K. Pasma, pastor of the Rockville Presbyterian Church, will preach at a union service tomorrow night at the Presbyterian Church. The Baptist, Christian, Methodist and Presbyterian Churches' congregations will participate.

Storm Delays Silver Spring's Park Program

Dedication Planned Today Is Put Off Until September 22.

Because of the rainy weather, the formal opening and dedication of Jesup Blair Park, Silver Spring, Md., scheduled for today, has been postponed until Saturday, September 22.

The program, which included a number of playground and athletic activities, will be carried out as planned next Saturday. Presentation of the park to the county will be made by former United States Senator Blair Lee, of Silver Spring, and Frederic P. Lee, of Edgemoor, will accept the park in the name of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

It was announced, however, that the tea marking the formal opening of the Silver Spring Public Library in the community house in Jesup Blair Park will be held tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock as scheduled.

A short program will be held, with talks by Dr. E. W. Broome, who will speak on the value of a public library to the schools of a community, and by Miss Adeline Pratt, chairman of the advisory commission for county libraries. Following the talks the formal presentation of gifts to the library will be made by representatives of the various clubs. Practically all of the furnishings of the four library rooms in the community house and several hundred dollars worth of books and other equipment have been made by local organizations.

Distinguished guests who will attend the tea include Mrs. Marion E. Hawes, president of the Maryland Library Association; Miss Pratt, Miss Ethel Bubb, assistant director of the children's department of the District of Columbia public libraries; Dr. Edwin Brooms, superintendent of public schools in Montgomery County; Bruce Horsfall, art editor of the Nature Magazine, and Mrs. Horsfall; Mrs. Peyton Whalen, president of the Montgomery County Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. A. B. Foster of the Newcomb Club Library of Bethesda; Miss Naomi Johnson and Miss Sterne, of the Maryland Library Association staff.

Extra Week Ahead For Fire Carnival

Mt. Rainier Department to Keep Affair Going.

The first annual carnival under auspices of the Mount Rainier Volunteer Fire Department, scheduled to close tonight, will continue through next week, it was announced yesterday by Deputy Chief A. J. Bates, chairman of the carnival committee.

Among the features offered are a ferris wheel, a merry-go-round and street dancing. There are also games of skill and stands where groceries, candy, house furnishings and tea and coffee are offered. Bingo and "hoopla" also are listed among the attractions.

ACME
Presents
TIMELY RECIPES
For your favorite drinks, both old and new. Forget your troubles and cares with these guaranteed cures for the blues.

ABSINTHE BRACER
If you want quick action, this is the baby that caresses your throat and dynamites your stomach at one and the same time. Two sips and a sniff will rock you in a cradle of the deep.
Fill mixing glass half full of fine ice.
One part Absinthe Bec.
A dash of Angostura Bitters. 40c a bottle at Acme.
Twist of lemon peel.
Mix and strain into cocktail glass, then sell 'em the Statue of Liberty or the Brooklyn Bridge.

BACARDI COCKTAIL
In Havana this one ranks with the best. Under a southern—well, have it your own way then—under a Harlem moon, it brings gladness to your heart, a tingle to your nerves and a sparkle to your eyes.
A small wine glass of White Label Bacardi. $2.55 a bottle at Acme.
Juice of half a lime.
One or two teaspoonfuls of sugar.
In a glass filled with ice.
Shake well, strain and serve.
Ask a Cuban what he thinks of a Bacardi Cocktail, and watch him jump to indorse it.

CHARLIE HORSE
This used to be the athlete's delight. Made him forget all his aches and pains—and, it is said, was particularly effective on Charlie Horses.
Place in mixing glass.
One part Canada Dry Gin. $1.23 a bottle at Acme.
One part lemon juice.
Shake well with fine ice. It will be "hoos'apiece." Giddayap!

CLOVER CLUB
A favorite with the ladies everywhere. It looks so innocent and tastes so good! We suggest it for the Tuesday afternoon sewing club, and if you can thread a needle after two rounds of Clover Clubs you win the grand prize.
One part Beacon Hill Gin. $1.09 a quart at Acme.
Juice of half a lime.
White of one egg.
Frappe and strain into cocktail glass into which has been dropped a maraschino cherry. This cocktail is equally good for crazy quilting parties.

FIFTY-FIFTY
This one is named after any pair of newly-weds, because they both swear that they are going through life on a fifty-fifty basis.
One-half cocktail glass Noilly Pratt French Vermouth. $1.49 a bottle at Acme.
One-half cocktail glass White Swan Gin. 89c a bottle at Acme.
Shake well until cold then serve.
Try this at your next wedding but be careful about mentioning it after the honeymoon.

HORSE'S NECK
We've been playing with this one for years, but we never have found out why it is called a Horse's Neck.
Use large bar glass.
Peel lemon in one continuous piece.
Place in glass with one end hanging over rim and the balance spiraling to the bottom.
Add a few lumps of ice.
One teaspoonful powdered sugar.
One pony Willow Spring, 87c a bottle at Acme.
Fill glass with ginger ale.
All in favor of changing the name to a Pix's Neck yell "aye!"

MULE'S HOOF
You have been playing around with Charlie Horse and Horse's Neck and now it is time to give attention to their stupid brother. When you find that you have run out of ginger ale or that you are so tired of the usual drinks you are in search of a decided variety, try this one on your larynx.
Use large bar glass.
Juice of one orange.
Tablespoon lemon juice.
2 ounces water.
2 teaspoons sugar.
2 ounces Rewco Rye. 85c a bottle at Acme.
2 ounces Coco-Cola.
If you prefer a tarter drink use less sugar and stir. The faster you drink this the quicker you feel the Mule's Hoof.

Texas Estate Pretty Scene For Marriage

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The garden of Azleway, the picturesque estate of the Sansoms near Fort Worth, Tex., was the scene Wednesday of a wedding of much interest to Washington when Miss Vera Connell, daughter of Mrs. Ninette Sansom Connell, became the bride of Mr. Frederick Korth, of Washington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Korth, of Runge, Tex.

Just at twilight the groomsmen, Mr. Romeo Korth, brother of the bridegroom; Mr. Neil Huff, Mr. Enloe Wilkinson, jr., Mr. John Kerkam, of Washington; Mr. John Edgar Wallace and Mr. Forest Lee Andrews, entered the lovely old garden and proceeded to the improvised altar. The bridesmaids, Miss Jane Byars, Miss Hattie Wallace, cousin of the bride; Miss Virginia Sansom, another cousin of the bride, and Miss Carol Anderson, wore gowns of pale blue lace, traced with gold, and blue velvet hats. They carried arm bouquets of yellow autumn blossoms.

Matrons of Honor.

The two matrons of honor were Mrs. Howard Chilton and Mrs. Forest Lee Andrews, who, before her recent marriage, was Miss Mary Etta Kleberg, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Richard M. Kleberg. They also wore gowns of blue lace with tracings of gold, blue velvet hats and carried yellow flowers. Little Miss Ellen Ann Korth, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl. She wore a dainty yellow frock trimmed with blue velvet ribbon and carried blue flowers.

The bride, a tall, striking brunette, was unescorted. She was costumed in white Chantilly lace.

Mr. Joseph Greenwood, of Washington, served Mr. Korth as best man. Following the ceremony there was a large reception, after which the young couple left on their wedding trip, the bride wearing a smart navy blue Hattie Carnegie ensemble.

The bride is a graduate of Scoville School in New York, and attended the University of Texas, where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority. She also attended the University of Hawaii. She stayed with the Klebergs in Washington last year until joined by her mother later in the season, and took a special course at the Fairmont School.

Attending Law School.

Mr. Korth is a graduate of the University of Texas, where he was a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity. He has attended the George Washington Law School for the last two years and with his bride will make his home in Washington while continuing his law studies at the university.

The engagement was announced on August 14, at an attractively appointed luncheon given by Mrs. John Sparks and her daughter, Miss Helen Gertrude Sparks, at the River Crest Country Club.

A mound of gayly colored balloons illuminated from beneath by electric lights formed a colorful centerpiece for the luncheon table. At each cover there floated a balloon suspended from a streamer, and when the guests burst the brilliant hued bubbles they found inside slips on which the names of the engaged couple and the date for the wedding had been written.

Mrs. Moller, Of D. C., Weds New York Man

Bride of Delancey Nicoll; Ceremony Performed in Oyster Bay.

The marriage of Mrs. Mary E. White Moller, daughter of Mrs. George W. White, of Washington, to Mr. Delancey Nicoll, noted New York attorney, took place at the town hall in Oyster Bay, Long Island, Thursday. Miss Helen Francke, town clerk of Oyster Bay, was aroused from her sleep and asked to issue the license. The justice of peace, Mr. Augustus Morey, also was awakened to perform the ceremony. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Lowden Wainwright, of New York. Mr. Wainwright is Mr. Nicoll's law partner.

Mrs. Nicoll, the former Mary E. White, is a granddaughter of the late Donald MacDonald, of Edinburg, Scotland, and the late George T. G. White, who was associated with James Hazen Hyde in management of Equitable Life Assurance Society. Her marriage to Mr. Charles G. Moller, New York clubman, terminated in a divorce at Reno last year.

Mr. Nicoll, a member of an old New York family, is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Delancey Nicoll. His father was one time district attorney of New York. An English ancestor was Matthias Nicoll, who accompanied the expedition sent out in 1664 by the Duke of York to wrest the Netherlands from the Dutch. Another kinsman, Col Richard Nicoll, was in command.

Mr. Nicoll's marriage to the former Miss Alma C. Hyde was dissolved by divorce several days ago in Reno. Mr. and Mrs. Nicoll will go to Warrenton, Va., where they have bought a residence and will make their home.

Clifford-Ames Rites Seen by Miss Perkins

Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, was a guest at the marriage yesterday of Miss Adelaide Warren Clifford, daughter of Mrs. Bernard Graham, of Newcastle, Me., and Morristown, N. J., and of the late Mr. Henry W. Clifford, of Newcastle, to Mr. John Lincoln Ames, jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. John L. Ames, of Boston, which took place at noon in St. Andrew's Church, Newcastle. The rector, the Rev. Robert Sweetser, officiated.

A small reception for the families and a few intimate friends took place at Gladisfen, the residence of the bride's uncle, Mr. Joseph Warren Glidden, who gave her in marriage.

The bride wore a gown of white satin and a long veil of rose point lace. Miss Anna Warren Winslow, of Boston, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Mr. Edmund H. Booth, of Hanover, N. H., was best man. The ushers were Mr. William L. Orr, of Montclair, N. J.; Mr. Spencer W. Graham, of Newcastle; Mr. James E. Butts, of New York City, and Mr. Fuller Ingraham, of Augusta, Me.

Among those present were Mrs. James S. Parker, of Washington, aunt of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sewall 2d, of New York City, and Mr. Chester Ingersoll Warren, of Troy, N. Y.

The bride attended the Todhunter School in New York City. Mr. Ames was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1916.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Ames will reside in Morristown, N. J.

Miss Macatee Will Be Bride

Engagement to Lieut. Emery E. Hackman Announced by Mother.

Mrs. Martha Macatee, of Chevy Chase, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mary Cook Macatee, and Lieut. Emery Edwin Hackman, U. S. A., now stationed at Fort Scott, San Francisco, with the Coast Artillery. Lieut. Hackman is the son of Mr. Turner Hackman, of Twin Falls, Idaho. The wedding will take place in Washington on November 29.

Miss Lila Macatee, sister of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Charles Macatee 3d, a sister-in-law, will entertain today at a luncheon in honor of Miss Macatee at the Shoreham. The guests will include Miss Patricia Bent, Miss Helen Temple, Miss Helen Hopkins, Miss Margaret Kelley, Miss Mary Paxton Macatee, Mrs. Ralph Grant Kennedy, of Cleveland; Mrs. Theodore Repplier, of New York; Mrs. Lawrence Leeby, and Miss Mildred O'Leary.

Mrs. Owens to Pay White House Visit

Minister to Denmark Will Reach Halifax Tuesday.

The United States Minister to Denmark, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, is due to arrive in Halifax, N. S., on Tuesday aboard the Coast Guard cutter Champlain en route to New York. Mrs. Owen sailed on September 1 from Greenland, where she had made a tour of the island.

Upon her arrival Mrs. Owen will confer with the President before embarking on a two-months lecture tour under the auspices of the Lyceum Bureau, which will present her to the clubs and civic bodies in the Middle West.

Mrs. Owen plans to come to Washington early in December for conferences at the State Department, and has been invited to stay at the White House for several days during her visit here.

Mrs. Owen will return to Copenhagen for Christmas to enjoy the celebration, of which Denmark makes a great occasion.

Mr., Mrs. Scott, Jr., Entertain Tonight

To Honor Miss Mehlhop and Mr. Powell, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy T. Scott, jr., will entertain at dinner dance at the Shoreham this evening in honor of Miss Eulalie Mehlhop and Mr. Henry Spencer Powell, jr., whose marriage will take place at St. Matthews' next Thursday.

The guests will include Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Howell, Miss Marguerite Prescott, Miss Ida E. Parker, Mr. Ross Barrett, jr., Mr. Peter Grogan, Mr. Herbert Miles and Mr. Edward Northrop.

Miss Mehlhop is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Mehlhop, formerly of Dubuque, Iowa. She attended Simmons School for Girls in Boston and George Washington University. Mr. Powell attended Notre Dame and George Washington University, and is the son of the late Henry Spencer Powell and Mrs. Powell.

Vice Consul on Way To Take Cuban Post

Mr. Fox returned to this country with Mrs. Fox from his post in Berlin early in the summer. With their young daughter, Shirley Jean, they have been the guests of Mrs. Fox's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Bowman, in their home in Germantown, Md., since June. Mrs. Fox and her daughter are visiting Mrs. S. B. Wetherald, of Sandy Spring. They will visit in Baltimore and New York before joining Mr. Fox in Havana in the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Clum Visiting in Capital

Mr. Harold D. Clum, United States Consul General at Bucharest, has arrived from Europe with Mrs. Clum and they are guests at Hotel Lincoln before going to Saugerties, N. Y., for a two months' visit.

Mr. Clum, who has been stationed in Rumania for a year and a half, will be in this country until November and will visit Washington before the expiration of his leave. He has been in the consular service for 25 years.

Crittenton Post Will Be Filled By Mrs. Price

Elmer Swaim Weds Mrs. Mary Causey

North Carolina Couple Go on Wedding Trip.

The wedding of Mrs. Mary E. Causey, of High Point, N. C., and Mr. Elmer Swaim, of Salisbury, N. C., took place Monday at 12:30 o'clock at the home of the Rev. Freeley Rohrer, who performed the ceremony. The bride and bridegroom were attended by Dr. and Mrs. Walter H. Jenkins, of Washington, and Mrs. Charles W. Jenkins.

Following the ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. Jenkins, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, entertained at a luncheon for the newly married couple, after which Mr. and Mrs. Swaim started on a wedding trip to Chicago. They will be at home after September 17 in Salisbury, N. C.

Mr. Oscar T. Crosby Visiting in New York

Mr. Oscar T. Crosby is in New York, where he went Thursday accompanied by his eldest daughter, Countess Caracciolo di Melito, who sailed yesterday for Italy aboard the Rex, for her home in Rome.

In New York Mr. Crosby was joined by another daughter, Mrs. Arthur Hornblow, with whom he will remain several days, rejoining his youngest daughter, Mrs. Celeste Crosby Miller, in their apartment at the Fairfax on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ellis Returning From England

Mr. and Mrs. Wade Hampton Ellis sailed on Thursday for this country after spending several weeks in England. They spent some time at Rippon, the ancestral home of Mr. Ellis' family. Their country home in Virginia, Rippon Lodge, was built by Col. Blackburn when he came to this country to make his home, and named for his home in England.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis were accompanied by the latter's sister, Miss Luella Chase, who will return to Washington with them.

Polo Contest Today at Old Point Comfort

Fort Monroe and Langley Field Teams Play Second Match.

Crack polo'sts of the Fort Monroe and Langley Feld teams will swing their mallets today on the boarded arena near Old Point College, at Old Point Comfort, Va., in the second in a series of games being played by the hard-riding officers of the fort against the aviators from the Army airpost, before a distinguished assemblage of Army officials and a number of visitors to this area.

The teams will clash in the final contest at 2:30 o'clock next Saturday afternoon. After the last chukker the players and their guests will go to the New Chamberlin Hotel, where they will be honored on the roof garden at a polo ball, originally scheduled for tonight.

Col. Charles H. Danforth, commander at Landgley Field, and Brig. Gen. Joseph P. Tracy, commanding the Third Coast Artillery district, are expected to witness the game today.

The committee for the polo ball includes Maj. James N. Caperton, captain of the Fort Monroe team, who has the distinction of being the first cadet to play polo during his initial year at the U. S. Military Academy; Capt. Harold H. George, captain of the Langley Field squad, formerly in charge of polo activities at Kelly Field, Tex., and Mr. Don L. Henderson, of Hampton, Va., former major of Cavalry, U. S. Army, Fort Monroe's veteran star, who has played with the 14th Cavalry team in San Francisco, at the World's Fair of 1915, in the Argentine, Mexico, France, Germany, and two years ago on the big Detroit team.

Two Give Shower For Recent Bride

Mrs. Millard V. Crouch and Miss Dorothy Margaret Rodier entertained at the latter's home in Georgetown last evening at a linen shower in honor of Mrs. Lloyd J. Hunnicutt, who before her marriage recently was Miss Mary Louise Luskey.

The house was decorated with pink and white gladioli, white snowballs and pink roses. The table also was decorated with flowers and a huge white bell.

Those present were Mrs. J. J. Luskey, Mrs. Clarence Hunnicutt, Mrs. Charles Rodier, Mrs. James G. Boyle, Mrs. James Reed, Mrs. George A. Crouch, Mrs. James Currans, Mrs. Harold Mulcahy, Mrs. John Brazerol, Mrs. Charles Welch, Mrs. Jack Cummings, Mrs. H. Henderson, Mrs. N. Walker and Miss Bettie Mills.

Men's Wear for Smart Lounging Features Double-Breasted Models

Fall's Selection of Blues Gives Wide Variety in Patterns.

SWINGING to the opposite style pitch of last Saturday's discussion on rough wear for active and spectator sports, we take up business, cocktail and general lounge clothing as shown this fall.

Double-breasted models are quite the thing. Make sure yours has a flat set to the collar and widish lapels. This gives the jacket a flattering trimness of line. Details are important; the sleeves should taper slightly from sleevehead to cuff, and the middle button should be slightly above the normal waistline. This button placement gives the coat the proper break. The set of the trousers is a happy departure from the extreme. They are high waisted, with just enough fullness in width to balance this.

Blue seems to strike the fancy of most men. Today's market affords not only solid colors but cluster checks, subdued plaids, herringbones, chalk stripes and other variations. Incidentally, the wide-spaced chalk stripe on navy ground is one of the smartest fabric styles you'll see this fall.

Be Careful of Brown.

Brown, this season's color for men, should be encountered warily. Make sure you've got the right complexion before you let your enthusiasm lead you into buying the many good-looking brown worsteds seen around town. And, above all, don't try to match the suit with accessories. There is nothing under the sun so monotonous as an all-brown ensemble unrelieved by touches of color. But here again is a difficulty. You can't lay down laws for the selection of accessories. The individual's complexion and the color of his suit are the deciding factor. However, red, green and yellow are perhaps the all-around colors that get most out of certain shades of dark brown clothes. Navy blue sometimes is distinguished. Dark green brings out the red casts in brown, but avoid it if your complexion is florid. A white linen handkerchief in the breast pocket is smart and so are matched tie and handkerchief sets.

Grays come back to the fore this year, in everything from the dark oxford, that is close to black, to the gayer steel tones and lovats. Gray is good in every pattern from herringbones to checks, from overplaids to diagonals.

Padless jackets in these suits will be correct.

The dignified lounge suit, whether single or double-breasted, two-button or three-button, will drape casually from the shoulders, "break" at the waistline and hang from the hips. In this type of suit, avoid pleats as you'd shun a leper (except in the trousers, of course). No fancy backs, if you please, unless you're going Hollywood. No fancy buttons either.

Smooth Fabrics.

Smoother fabrics such as worsteds, both finished and unfinished, cassimeres and flannels are in the fore. Their soft "hand" and easy drape fit them in the new "art of living" picture. Just a word or two of the weskit—single or double breasted is correct but the double breasted weskit is coming back stronger than ever. These may be of the tattersall type, of doeskins in gray, buff or brown or of self-materials. But never wear a double breasted vest with a double breasted coat!

Just a few more things to remember. If you're shortish, avoid overplaids and horizontal stripes and checks. Yours are plain colors, diagonals or vertical stripes.

If you're stout, steer clear of checks and plaids. Wear any pattern that runs from head to foot and it will create an illusion of slimness. If you're thin, reverse the procedure. Checks and plaids, particularly overplaids, will give you bulk.

If you are in doubt as to the type of clothes necessary to make you look your best, send your description to the Men's Fashion Editor, The Washington Post. He will advise you.

The new evening waistcoats are backless, with suspenders (of all things) attached to form a one-piece garment that can not get out of place.

Speaking of formal things, there's a new shirt on the market for dress wear that boasts an adjustable tab back just like on your French-back shorts. You can adjust the tab to your individual girth and avoid the popping, bulging shirt front.

Peasant string gloves are going places with tweedy coats. When the snow flies you'll see lots of them in white, gray and canary. Some of the most attractive have Norwegian peasant designs (reminiscent of your Fair Isle sweater) woven into the back and palms.

There's a new modified Homburg on the market that solves all head-shape problems. This hat, emphatically correct in detail, has semielastic insets in the sweatband—there go your problems of "breaking in" a new fall hat. Incidentally, it's quite inexpensive.

If you are interested in the above articles, address a letter to the Men's Fashion Editor, The Washington Post, he will advise you as to where they may be obtained.

This week's nominees for best-dressed men in Washington include Dr. J. D. S., a surgeon dentist. We saw him walking on Constitution avenue. His brown, three-button jacket lounge suit was well set off by a lovat felt hat with snap brim, undented except for center crease and a tiny pheasant feather in the band. The doctor wore a clipped figure shirt of tan ground with tiny red and blue figures. It had a round pointed, stiff, self collar. A navy Spittalsfield tie, Cordovan blucher shoes, a blue cornflower in his buttonhole above a white handkerchief, buff gloves and a crooked hand malacca stick completed the outfit.

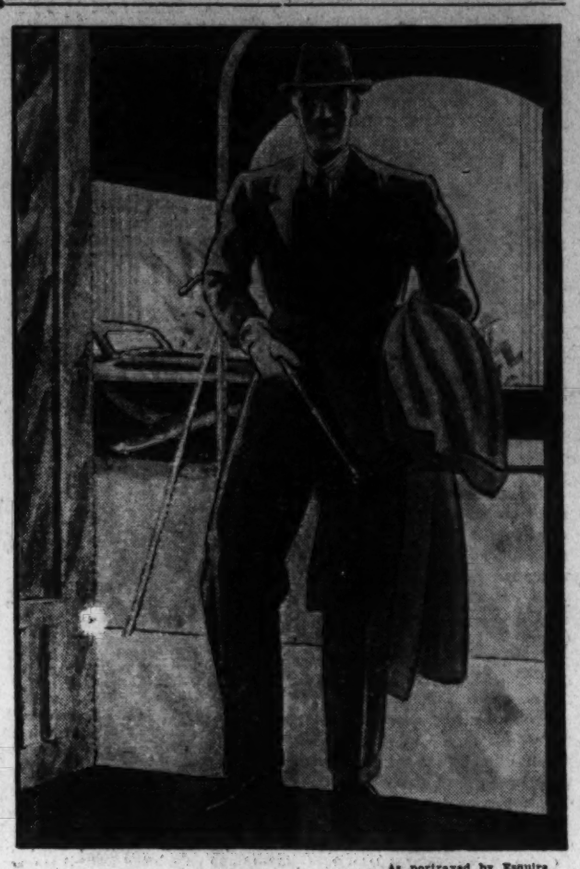
Watching the practice skirmishes of the international polo matches at Potomac Park we saw a chap who, an officer told us, is an important member of the Mexican Embassy. This diplomat was dressed for spectator sports.

He wore a greenish stitched fabric hat turned down all around, a gray glen suit with a blue overplaid, a round collar, pinned shirt of a rich oxblood shade set off by a solid black knitted tie and white ground tattersall weskit. He wore Scotch grain brogues, heavy-soled, and as he sat on a car fender one got a glimpse of gray, blue and black Argyle hose. His stick was blackthorne. He looked genuinely nonchalant and smartly "horsey."

• • • •

One Washington department store executive is outstanding for the taste he shows in choosing his accessories. His necktie is usually a dark shade of the color of the shirt. But it has either stripes or figures that complement the base color. At the Willard one day he wore a pale blue shirt and a navy tie with red polka dots. Last evening he wore a British stripe shirt in which reddish tints predominated. His tie was deep wine tone rep with a thinnish blue stripe.

Do you know them?



As portrayed by Esquire.

What's Puzzling You?

TO BE correctly dressed for the occasion, without being foppish, is the mark of the gentleman. There is a modern etiquette in dress as important as the etiquette governing conduct. The men's fashion editor of The Post is prepared to answer queries on the what, when and why of sartorial good taste. Put your questions to him.

Professional Liberty.

MEN'S FASHION EDITOR: Is it correct to wear a double-breasted dinner jacket as master-of-ceremonies at a night club. What else may be worn? J. K.

• • • •

SIR: Your profession allows you liberties not granted the average man. By all means wear your double-breasted dinner jacket. It is smart not to dress Sunday nights . . . a black or oxford or navy jacket, with striped or shepherd check trousers, a double-breasted weskit, starched collar, shirt and dark patterned tie, is decidedly in good taste at that time.

Where to Get Shoes.

MEN'S FASHION EDITOR: Where can I get the crepe soled brown buck shoe you mentioned in last Saturday's column? J. M. McC.

• • • •

SIR: If you will forward me a self-addressed stamped envelope, I will be happy to advise you.

Proper Accessories.

MEN'S FASHION EDITOR: I've just bought an oxford gray, fly-front Chesterfield. Since I'm attending college in Washington (my first year) I'd be obliged if you'd tell me the proper accessories. STUDENT.

• • • •

Culbertson on Bridge

Expensive Bargains.

Like other valuable things in life, entries are often obtained only by some sacrifice. At times, it is necessary to give up a winning trick, overtaking it in order to create an entry. At other times high cards must be thrown away. At still other times an important stopper must be dispensed with. It is typical of the finished player that he willingly makes the sacrifices when he needs entries, whereas the novice is likely to win every trick with the lowest possible card and as a consequence find himself stuck in one hand or the other and forced to lead from a tenace, or even to lose established cards which are helplessly locked in the other hand.

In the deal below, failure to hold an entry or two in reserve caused a player to go down two tricks at a game contract when proper play would have yielded him not only his contract but three-over-tricks as well. Thus, a bit of senseless avarice made the difference between six-odd and one-odd.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
2◇	Pass	2♠	Pass
2NT	Pass	3NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

With South the Declarer at three no-trump, West opened the heart six. South played a low card from Dummy, and won East's Jack with the King. (Why win a trick with an Ace when the King is just as good?)

South now found it desirable to finesse in diamonds, but the lead was in the wrong hand. Of course, with the wealth of entries in Dummy, this did not worry him; he led the nine of clubs and won the trick with Dummy's Jack. (What, play the King when the Jack will win the trick?)

Now the Queen of diamonds was led, and East, being a bridge player of parts, promptly covered with the King in order to block the suit. Even at this late point South could have saved at least his contract by allowing East to hold the trick so that on the next round the Ace would overtake Dummy's Queen and the diamond suit could be run. But you wouldn't catch South giving up a trick when he held a solid suit, so South proceeded to play the diamond Ace and then another diamond back to the Jack. At this point, South's hand was dead. Premeditated murder in the first degree could not have been more effective. North could cash three more tricks—two clubs and a heart—but that would establish long suits for both East and West and, particularly since a lead would then have to be made from the spade King, North and South would not take another trick. As it actually was played, North led a spade immediately and West won with the Jack. West then established the heart suit with one more lead and Declarer was forced to cash Dummy's high cards lest he lose even them. The result was that South, playing for nine tricks, took only seven.

If South had realized the value of entries not only would his contract have been assured, but he would have fallen without any effort into a squeeze position whereby he could have held East and West to one trick. The opening heart lead should have been won with Dummy's Ace and the diamond Queen led. If East covered, South could win with the Ace, take Dummy's Jack and return to his hand with the King of hearts. Now on four more rounds of diamonds Dummy would discard four spades, and West would have to strip his hand down to the Queen-Jack of spades and three hearts. East meanwhile could hold only three clubs, since otherwise he would have to blank his spade Ace and South could develop his twelfth trick by merely ducking a round of spades.

On the next three tricks South would take Dummy's Ace and King of clubs and then lead the Jack of clubs, overtaking it with the Queen. At this point West would be forced to reduce his hand to two cards. Throwing his last heart would make South's nine high. Throwing a spade, and retaining only the lone Queen, would enable South to lead a spade, cover the Queen with Dummy's King, and, after losing this trick to East's Ace, win the last trick with Dummy's spade ten, for East would have nothing but a spade to lead back.

Refusing to accept the gifts of good cards and favorable division with which the gods had blessed him, South succeeded in blocking himself so entirely that he attained little more than 50 per cent of what intelligent planning would have given him.

Buyers Are Reassuring; High Crowns Becoming

Fear that the new high-crowned hats launched in Paris will mean dowager effects has been dissipated by returning buyers, who declare the high hats are extremely youthful. The high crowns are neither stiff nor hard, but of soft material that lends itself to draping. Suppleness and irregularity characterize most of the crowns.

Favorite materials for the high hats are velvets, woolens and chiffon felt. With these mediums nonchalant effects may be achieved. The hats are worn posed a little to one side.

Child Chats

By Alice Fox Pitts.

"WHILE my daughter was away at camp," a mother complained to me recently, "I did her entire room over, repainting the furniture and making new draperies, because she complained all last winter that it was not as attractive as her friends' bedrooms. Outside of saying casually, on first seeing it, that it was pretty, she has shown no interest in the room and I feel as if all my effort was wasted."

It probably was.

The girl in question is nearly 16, and perfectly capable of wielding a brush herself. If she had been allowed to do so—undertaking the job from selecting the color scheme through the actual work—she would have felt a genuine interest in the room.

Redecorating is a fine indoor sport for children. They may botch the job but it occupies their time and increases their manual skill. Nor need it be confined to older children. Little ones who can not paint can decorate by pasting colored pictures on walls and furniture; slightly older ones can apply stencils.

If the wallpaper is faded and you are not ready to re-paper, let the child cut pictures from magazines and paste them on the wall in a border. An old bureau or desk can be brightened by decorating with cut-outs pasted on in appropriate places. These decorations can be removed easily with soap and water when you are ready to repaint the furniture.

(Tuesday: Clothespin Dolls.)

Mrs. Pitts' advice on managing the normal child is available to Post readers. Write Alice Fox Pitts in care of The Washington Post.

Those Martyrs to Middle Age Need Make-up and New Hats

By Frances Mangum.

EVEN in 1934 when martyrs are definitely declasse, a martyr or two to a good cause might be press-agented to popularity. But a martyr to a bad cause, never!

And yet look around you. See the lady with the Queen Mary hat? See the one with the funny pompadour? And there, the one with the drawn, white face? They're martyrs—martyrs to middle age.

Look closely at their faces. A few lines, yes. Contours not so good perhaps. Eyes a trifle dull. But all in all, not so bad, do you think? The one with the pompadour—her hair has a sprinkling of gray, but it would be a lovely color for a soft blue or silvery green outfit.

Think of the Husband.

These women are letting their middle-age complexion crucify them on a cross of old styles with nails of narrow-mindedness. Without meaning to, they are being unjust to their husbands. What man likes to return in the evening to a stodgy, dowdy looking woman? Or more realistically, what man does unfailingly return?

Countless hundreds of wives are sadder if not wiser when they discover what an eye their middle-aged husbands have for youthful feminine beauty. The moral is this: If wives can not make themselves younger, they must make themselves younger looking.

Find out if you are one of the women who should busy herself with brushing off the years. Check on yourself with the following questions:

Yes or No.

1. Do you wear an old-style hat?
2. Do you wear the same hairdress you did five years ago?
3. Do you scorn make-up?
4. Do you wear a "corset cover?"
5. Does a Mae West movie shock you?
6. If you think "damn," do you feel wicked?

If you say "yes" to a single question the warning signal is sounded. Beware of an antiquated outlook! One "yes" means you're pretty close. Two to four "yeses" mean you are on the verge. And five or six "yeses" mean you've not a moment to waste or the middle-age doldrums will get you!

The self-appointed martyrs may ward these off by discarding old hats for new, replacing puffs and pompadours with modern coiffures and giving color and life to pale faces with a little rouge and powder.

U. S. Girls Declared Too Party-Minded

But French Boys Decide They're "Stunning."

American girls, according to French girls arriving on the liner Lafayette to study in American colleges, are too much interested in dress and having parties.

"That is, from what we see of them in France," said one of them. But the French boys had a different story to tell.

"American girls," they said, "are absolutely stunning."

American boys are liked by both the girls and boys.

"American boys are so much more alive than French boys," said the spokesman for the girls. "Boys in our country are generally lazy, too soft and given to smiling and joking all the time."

The French boys, too, like the American boys, but think they are "rather childish."

Children Demand Fairy Tale Wolf Be Big and Bad

Children are more hardboiled than educators have thought them. Fairy tales, which have been out of favor for some time as being too horrifying for young tastes, are returning to their former place in the sun, according to Miss Josette Frank, of the Child Study Association staff.

Young readers can take murder and sudden death in their literary stride, Miss Frank said in a recent address. She spoke of one 4-year old who had heard the real story of Red Ridinghood and who turned up her nose at the modern gentle version in which the wolf did not eat the grandmother.

The old slow-moving tales that used to fill long reading hours for children are passing out of favor now, according to Miss Frank. "Black Beauty," "Deerslayer" and "Pathfinder" have too many words and too little action. Stories such as the pernnial "Alice in Wonderland" and "Treasure Island" delight children most of all.

New Deal's Culture Standard Praised

Artistic Appreciation Held More Prevalent Now.

The highest standard of culture and artistic appreciation the American people nave ever experienced has been developed under President Roosevelt's New Deal, educators participating in a symposium on "Art in the New Deal," in New York, said recently.

President Roosevelt's program has given the people new opportunity for mental and spiritual development, for self-expression and for the promotion of happiness, the educators said.

Dr. Ira S. Wile, former commissioner of education in New York, pointed out that this opportunity, fostered by increasing facilities for education, music and art appreciation, Government sponsored drama and similar cultural activities, has been "eagerly grasped" by the public with "vastly beneficial results."

"We must crystallize these advantages for their permanent value to the Nation," he said.

Square rings of polished gold or silver metal are among the jewelry novelties being sported by Hollywood players. Irene Dunne has an attractive one in gold with square-cut initials.

Paris to Install Women as Police

A FORCE of policewomen will be organized in Paris in the near future, according to recent reports.

So long as Jean Chiappe was prefect of the Paris police he would never support the bill before the municipal council calling for the employment of policewomen. His objections were:

"It is not work for women, and whatever they did a policeman could do it better."

But the other day the bill was taken from the archives where it had reposed since 1925, and presented to the new prefect, who promptly announced he would support it. Said M. Langeron, the new prefect:

"Have you ever noticed, gentlemen, how buses are often delayed and guards at the railway station rendered uneasy by the prolonged embraces of lovers bidding each other au revoir, yes? Policewomen would be most useful in the ending of such embraces, particularly if he man remained behind. I have seen pictures of Miss Allen, the commandant of London policewomen. The bill shall have my enthusiastic support."

Candy Recipe With History Comes Here

"Macaroon Bark" Traveled From England—Almost With Mayflower.

Ruth Anne Davis.

OMAR KHAYYAM, who waxed so eloquent in his Rubaiyat over a loaf of bread and a jug of wine, would have something to coin adjectives about today if he tasted the "macaroon bark" in a local food shop. It's a candy new in Washington, made in Boston from a very old recipe.

The story goes that way back in colonial times a young bride came over to New England with her husband. Among the things she brought with her was this recipe, which, for various reasons, she never got around to using. Finally a puritanical influence overcame her love of luxurious things and, with a lace handkerchief, a joke book and a few other odds and ends, she tied up the recipe in a package and put it away. Several generations later one of her great-great-grandchildren found the mysterious bundle labeled "Devices of the Devil" and opened it with curiosity.

Being of experimental nature, she tried the recipe and found its results were delicious. So many people felt the same way that before long she was turning out this candy in wholesale quantities. Fame of a delicacy travels as fast as bad news, so before long it reached Washington or, more specifically, the manager of this food shop. She, being experimentally minded, too, ordered some and placed it on her counters.

Differing but slightly from this is the chocolate plus toasted pecans variation. Both are specially priced today.

Double-Egg Poacher.

Beginner's luck holds true for many things, but seldom for poaching eggs. For that matter, even an experienced cook finds the yellows and the whites have a perturbing way of mixing. So, a thing to be desired and relied on, for beginners and old-timers is a double-egg poacher.

It consists of two little metal squares joined with a handle. The eggs are broken, one in each square, and the whole contraption is lowered into the hot water. When the dainty morsels are thoroughly poached, they're lifted out by the high handle, taken from their separate receptacles and placed on a piece of toast.

Very simple and very sure. And only 10 cents.

News of Rice.

Here's news from the South. The Southern rice industry has decided "No-theners" have far too little appreciation of rice, a favorite below the Mason and Dixon line. In order to boost its popularity and teach the Nation's cooks what a dainty dish it is, they are launching a campaign which has as its slogan, "rice," its byword, "rice," and its purpose, "rice."

It seems hotels and restaurants are going to feature it on their menus, and even manufacturers of kitchen equipment are interested in the movement to promote "American rice for American people." In fact it seems even wedding guests are being urged to throw more rice, and the bride and bridegroom cajoled into not minding.

Makes Good Cooks Better.

It takes a master in the art of cooking to brown foods evenly, top and bottom. There being so few masters, a manufacturing concern has come to the aid of the less-gifted ones with a certain small ovenette which bakes biscuits, pies, muffins, cakes, custard, puddings, beans, macaroni and cheese, potatoes, chicken, roasts, custard pies and many other things besides.

Their little cooking wonder consists of aluminumized steel base with heat deflecter lined with heavy asbestos, tinned wire stand and polished aluminum hood. It is 10⅝ inches in diameter, 6¼ inches in height.

"Bye Bye Buttons."

Today parents can gather their brood in hand and take them down to a local shop to see a talkie called "Bye Bye Buttons."

Children will love it because there are honest to goodness children acting in it, having such a glorious time dressing and undressing themselves without the slightest help from mother.

Parents will like it because they can see an actual demonstration of just what a time saver and convenience these self-help children's clothes are. And they can say to themselves, "well, look at her, or look at him, not half so smart as my little Johnny or Mary, and heaveng, how well they are managing!"

Ask Us, or the Lady.

This is the last day a certain attractive young lady who represents a nationally known beauty line will be at a downtown store. If you've time you should stop by and have a word with her. Ask her about a lotion, antiseptic and healing, for eradicating pimples. It's a grand camouflage. Apply it over a blemish and the blemish is altogether hidden. In the meantime, while it acts as a cover-up, it heals the affected area. A fine thing to keep on your dressing table!

PILLAR S S TO POST

BAITING Alabamans is the latest diversion at parties. All that is necessary in this sport is to mention the book, "Stars Fell on Alabama," and the faces of the natives of that State are sure to get red if not apoplectic purple. When the book is waved in their faces they are apt to turn on the author and rend him like this:

"He is just a damyankee professor who ingratiated himself into the best homes in Alabama and then committed the unpardonable breach of etiquette in quoting his hosts without even giving them the protection of anonymity. Some of the characters in the book are given their actual names and others are so thinly disguised that anybody acquainted in the State could easily recognize them."

• • • •

For instance, the author, Carl Carmer, quotes a fellow professor at the University of Alabama as saying, "For God's sake get out of here before it is too late." Tuscaloosa, the site of the university, receives the brunt of his criticism of the State. He thus describes it:

"Gossip, dancing, swimming, drinking, love-making, even religious observance, each has its niche in the structure of the day. But not reading and contemplation. Gradually life in Tuscaloosa comes to follow a formula that anesthetizes."

The main diversions, he says, are love making and gossip.

• • • •

"The constant social chatter dealing in personalities at first annoys and bores the stranger. Gradually, however, as he picks up the threads of relationships through which it seems that the entire State is bound into one family, he becomes not only a tolerant, but an eager participant."

Certainly the author himself proved an apt convert to gossip, for he drags out the family skeletons of the best families in the State and rattles them in his book whose sale is growing by leaps and bounds. He talks of the illiteracy of the Alabamans, but now they are all book-conscious to the extent of buying or renting for themselves at least one book, "Stars Fell on Alabama."

Writer Objects.

Lewis Lofton Moneyway, the Washington short story writer who came from Alabama, objects to the passage in the book which criticizes the dancing, which the author says is "violent and full of strange variations." The book goes on:

"An Eastern collegian, sedately accustomed to dignified stepping to the music of New York hotel orchestras, is completely baffled here. I said something like that to a Tuscaloosa girl once. She replied that Alabama stepping was tame compared to that of Mississippi and offered to pick out by their dancing from the mass of whirling, strutting couples the girls who came from the neighboring State. She was right in every instance."

• • • •

Mr. Moneyway objects also to the isolated incidents which the author relates as typical of the State, but he says that on the whole the book is very well written, and he was well pleased with the chapter describing his home town, Mobile.

"That is just the trouble, it is too well written," wails Mrs. Harry Fulton, of Washington, whose ancestral home and grandfather Cribbs are mentioned in the book. "It doesn't matter what people say about you if they don't know how to say it, but when the critic is an artist with words, like Carl Carmer, it matters a great deal what he says."

• • • •

Mrs. Edgar Kay's home is Myrtle Hill in Tuscaloosa and she thinks that the descriptive passages dealing with the old manor houses of the South are very beautiful, but she objects to the writer's use of material gained by worming himself into the confidence of worthy Alabamans and then betraying it in his book. "How far can writers go?" she asks.

Mrs. Numa Montet, wife of the Representative from Louisiana, was born and reared in Tuscaloosa. She has just returned from a trip to Louisiana and heard about the book at the first party she attended upon her return. She is going to get it and read it immediately, she says.

The new threads-of-gold fad which is sweeping through fall clothes, adding to their glitter and general effectiveness, is bringing an influx of gold metal buttons and buckles to match.

Pickle Recipes From Contest Are Excellent

Mrs. Cleo Busler Wins First for Formula on Crabapples.

By Susan Mills.

JARS on the pantry shelf put the housewife's mind at ease. Pickles, jams, jellies and preserves do a lot to dress up winter meals.

This week's contest brought many excellent recipes. First prize, $5, goes to Mrs. Cleo Busler, 11 Second street northeast. To Miss Elizabeth Owens, 82 Shepherd street, Hyattsville, Md., second prize, $2, is awarded. Miss S. C. Morgan, Laclede Apartments, apartment 42, receives third prize.

Their recipes appear in order:

Grandmother's Crabapple Pickles.

Five pounds perfect crabapples, 2 cups vinegar, 2 cups water, 4 cups brown sugar, 1 ounce stick cinnamon, one-half teaspoon salt, small piece ginger root.

Pick over crabapples to see there are no wormy ones. They should be uniform size. Combine sugar, water, vinegar, and spices and boil about ten minutes. Add enough crabapples to fill 1 jar; boil them gently about 10 to 12 minutes. Pack, and continue this process until all fruit is used. Boil syrup until thick, fill up jars and seal.

Original Dill Pickles.

One peck medium sized cucumbers, 1 bunch dill, grape leaves, cherry leaves, 2 cups boiling water, ½ cup sugar, ¼ cup vinegar, salt.

Use a large crock. Cover bottom with grape leaves, then a layer of cucumbers. Sprinkle with salt and some of the dill. Cover with cherry and grape leaves (a single layer) and repeat process until all cucumbers are used. Add sugar and vinegar to boiling water, stir and pour over pickels. Cover top layer with double layer of grape leaves then a large plate; weight it down and allow pickles to stand in a warm place about ten days before using.

Sweet Pickled Prunes.

Wash prunes well, soak in cold water for 24 hours, then bring to boiling point in same water. Boil together sugar, vinegar and spices for 10 minutes; add prunes, drained from water and simmer gently until tender. When cold, put in jars and seal closely.

Honorable mentions this week were Miss M. Talbert, Mrs. I. W. Guthman, Mrs. Charles C. Kennon and Mrs. F. B. Crowther.

Just a reminder: Household hints will appear on this page next Tuesday. They are contributions of Washington housewives, and splendid ones. If you haven't sent yours, please use this opportunity to help other homemakers. Address the hints to Susan Mills, The Washington Post.

Apple Season Makes Contest On This Fruit

Apples will be coming in soon, and this versatile fruit will be a good subject for next week's contest. Let us have your apple recipes. Address contributions to Susan Mills, The Washington Post. They should be received on or before Thursday of next week. Be sure your name and address appears on each sheet. Type recipes, if possible. If not, write as clearly as you can.

Prizes will be the same, $3, $2 and $1.

Creamed Dried Beef and Eggs In Toast Boxes.

8-10 slices mild flavored dried beef
4 hard cooked eggs
2 cups milk
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour

Cut day-old bread in slices 2 inches thick. Cut off crusts and hollow the inside to form a cup. Spread lightly with butter and set in the oven to brown. Cook eggs by simmering them for 15-to-18 minutes, then put in cold water, peel and cut in quarters. Melt the butter in a double boiler, stir in the flour, then the milk. When the sauce thickens add the eggs, and the beef broken into small pieces. Serve over the toast boxes.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter, Hereditary Blindness.

A LARGE number of persons are blind because of hereditary defects. These may occur before birth, so that the child comes into the world with complete cataracts, with small undeveloped eyes, or even without any eyes at all. Other defects do not become apparent until some years after birth, when a child who previously has been able to see becomes blind. Such purely hereditary conditions account for almost one-fourth of all cases of blindness, according to a recent survey by Bickerton.

It is recognized by most authorities that refractive errors, especially extreme degrees of myopia, or nearsightedness, are inherited. This condition, if unusually severe, accounts for a certain number of blind persons and for many more with defective vision. Cataract, while usually considered a disease of old people, also affects infants, and here it is nearly always heridtary. While ordinary cataract may be operated upon successfully, the hereditary form is often associated with other defects in the eye and accounts for about 13 per cent of cases in schools for the blind.

Retinitis pigmentosa, a degenerative disease of the retina, first causes the symptoms of night blindness. Patients see well in daylight, but are unable to walk alone in the twilight. Most cases of this disease are due to hereditary causes.

A peculiarly horrible form of hereditary disease is known as family amaurotic idiocy. Infants appear normal at birth, but within a few months to a year it becomes evident that they are blind. Signs of idiocy and physical deterioration soon follows and death usually closes the picture in from two to five years. In other cases the disease comes on later and runs a slower course. It is unaffected by any form of treatment.

The tremendous economic loss to society resulting from such hereditary diseases may be understood by glancing at the pedigree of one family reported by Risley in which one blind man had 13 blind children, 61 blind grandchildren and 39 blind great-grandchildren.

It may not be a pleasant subject to consider when one is contemplating marriage, but inheritable tendencies must not be overlooked by either party. Love may be blind, but why not compensate with a common sense understanding of the elementary principles of eugenics?

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: A boy I went with for two years, but had a fuss with two weeks ago and haven't spoken to since, gave me a number of nice presents while I was going with him. These include a wrist watch, a cameo ring, a tennis racket, and a little radio for my own room. There were other things, too, like handkerchiefs, perfume, and so on.

• • • •

Do you think, now that we have quit going together for good, I should return the more important things to him. I don't know what he would do with them, since he couldn't take them back and get his money. And yet I feel kind of guilty, having them around now that we don't speak. I have started going with another fellow.

• • • •

What do you advise me to do? My mother tells me to suit myself about it.

JO JEAN.

DEAR JO JEAN: I would do the thing that seemed most tactful, sensible and fair. And I would be careful not to dramatize the situation unnecessarily. If the boy is the kind who might go about lamenting the fact that you quit him and didn't return his gifts, send them back, every one, by all means. Of course, that needn't include half-emptied bottles of perfume or handkerchiefs worn thin with laundering. To return such items would indicate a desire to hurt, rather than to be fair.

The return of such sizeable or relatively expensive articles as the radio, the tennis racket, the watch and the ring, should show clearly enough that you had no wish to cling to the material profits of the discontinued friendship.

• • • •

On the other hand, if the boy is well bred and sensitive, and still cares for you, it might be adding insult to injury to confront him with a parcel post confirmation of the fact that you are done with him. He might be happier thinking you are enjoying his little gifts, though he sees you no more, than in disposing of second-hand merchandise.

If you aren't sure of his attitude, drop him a note and ask him if he wouldn't like to reclaim the gifts he gave you. What about the things you must have given him? Surely it wasn't all a matter of receiving. Would you like to have them back? I imagine he feels pretty much the same about the things he gave you as you do about what you've given him.

• • • •

It doesn't matter greatly which you do, so long as it is the thing best calculated to pour oil on troubled waters; least likely to further hurt his pride and his feelings.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

What Today Means

"Virgo."

IF September 15 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 12 noon, from 3 to 5 p. m. and from 8 to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 to 10 a. m., from 1 to 3 p. m. and from 6 to 8 p. m.

It might be advisable to be cautious regarding your tone of voice on this date. Conditions are apt to exist that may have a tendency to cause high-pitched speech to be regarded as indicating anger or passion, and this might cause the listener to display considerable irritation. It possibly will be well to remember it is not always what you say, but the manner in which you say it, is the thing that counts. A disregard for time, especially where it relates to business or social engagements, should be carefully avoided, as tardiness in keeping appointments might be the cause of unpleasantness. In getting on or off of moving conveyances on this date care should be exercised that no attempt to mount or dismount is made until they have come to a complete stop, otherwise there is danger of an accident resulting. Precaution not to offend a friend acting as host or hostess by refusing to comply with a request they may make will not be amiss. There may be a tendency to misplace or lose things on this date, so it will pay to be careful. Married and engaged couples, as well as those engaged in courting, will display good judgment as well as taste if they avoid attracting undue attention in public places by any ostentious display of affectionate pose.

If a woman and September 15 is your birthday, you may find a vivid imagination, such as you probably possess, is not only at times a blessing but also a hindrance to your peace of mind. It gives you a marvelous creative power and the ability to build wondrous mental pictures. It may also cause imaginary aches and pains and fancied wrongs. These latter, possibly purely mental apprehensions, can be rectified by forcing yourself to contract the habit of thinking clearly and occupying your thoughts with worthwhile subjects. Music, art, literature and educational work are lines of work worthy of your consideration. Matrimonial life should prove an ideal one for you.

The child born on September 15, when it reaches its teens, may prove to be rather a dreamer, with an unusual sense of appreciation for all that is beautiful.

If a man and September 15 is your birth anniversary, you have the ability to visualize with remarkable clarity. This should enable you to accomplish things in a big way and become financially independent. Married life should prove to be the logical one for you.

HUNDRED GRAND

By Erle Stanley Gardner

Annette Morton, adopted daughter of C. Harvey Morton, and Sylvia Galen, his wife's social secretary, have been kidnaped. Carlton Lanlic has a dual interest in the affair. He is in love with Sylvia. Besides, he is a criminal attorney, and one of his clients, Jimmy Cordell, gangster, recently has sent Minnie Duggan to him to have him trace the whereabouts of the child she deserted at birth. Lanlic has his own theories of the kidnaping, and summoning Minnie, he tells her that Annette very probably is her child.

MINNIE'S eyes stared steadily and unseeingly at him. She seemed to be looking past him, down the years, far beyond the walls of the office in which she sat huddled.

"God!" she said in a hushed whisper.

Lanlic's voice, which he could control as a skillful organist controls the instrument by a delicate touch of the keyboard, was vibrant with sympathy.

"Of course," he said, "it's awful to know that your child may be subjected to this danger. The newspapers published the ransom notes claiming that Sylvia Galen is dead. If that is the case, almost anything may happen to the child."

"No," Minnie said almost unconsciously, "she's not dead." Then she added hastily, "That is, I don't think she is."

"What I was going to suggest," Lanlic said, "is that you get in touch with Mr. and Mrs. Morton. At a time like this they'll recognize something of your rights as a possible natural mother, and . . ."

"No, no, no! I can't go near that place. Don't you understand? Don't you know what it would mean? They'd kill me."

"Who would kill you?"

Minnie Leaves.

"Why," she said; "why . . . the police, perhaps. They're guarding the place. You know my record. I've been trailing around with a bunch of criminals. They'd suspect me immediately."

"There is, of course," he said gravely, "that possibility. However, I'll make some further investigations. I wanted you to be prepared for the shock. Understand, it's nothing except a possibilty at the present moment. By tomorrow I may know."

She nodded, and Lanlic moved toward the door, smiling at her and signifying that the interview was over.

She stared sharply at him, her eyes no longer startled, but keen, with the shrewd observation of an animal that has long been hunted.

"Okay," she said. "Thanks, Lanlic."

He held the door open for her and watched until she went to the elevators. Then he returned to his offices, opened the drawer of his desk and took out a flat, blue-steel automatic, which he slipped into his hip pocket.

Scene Shifts.

Jimmy Cordell whipped out of his light topcoat, flung it to a chair, and started to walk past the two men on guard in the gift shop.

One of them stopped him.

Cordell stared frowningly and said, "Well, go ahead and spill it. What the hell are you staring at me that way for?"

The guard said slowly, "Minnie Duggan went out. She just got back a second ago."

"What did he want of her?"

"I don't know."

"She went up?"

"Yes. I thought it was something that you wanted. I gave her the message when she came in."

Cordell's lips were tight. his eyes cold.

"Lanlic, eh?" he said, musingly.

"Seen the papers?" asked the guard.

"No. Not the latest ones. What's happened?"

Another Note.

"They put out an extra that would catch the after-theater crowd. It gave the contents of a second note."

"A second note?" Cordell exclaimed.

The guard nodded. Cordell pushed purposefully past the guard, through the door in the back of the gift shop and into the big room.

There was no longer any atmosphere of hilarity in that room. One-Thumb Loretto and Manley Sarcon sat at a table; spread before them was a newspaper containing a facsimile of the second ransom note, which had been composed by Barclay Temple.

"Hello, Chief," Loretto said. "Did you get a load of this?"

"I'm getting a load of it," said Cordell, and stood with his fists on the table, his arms straight and rigid. He stared down at the newspaper, which had printed side by side facsimilies of the two notes.

"The dirty chiselers!" said Cordell.

"Do you suppose it's the Gillig bunch that's trying to chisel in on this thing?" asked Sarcon.

Lane Suspected.

"It may be," said Cordell slowly. "It may be Gillig. It may be anyone. It don't make a damn bit of difference who it is. It's the note itself that counts." He flung back from the table and started pacing the floor. The other two watched him anxiously.

One-Thumb Loretto usually bubbled over with good humor, save when he was engaged in some of the more sinister of the gang's activities. Even then he had been known to solace the last moments of some victim of a one-way ride by keeping up a monologue that would have done credit to a second-rate vaudeville show.

Sarcon was moody, dark, and, for the most part, silent. He was a cold-blooded, efficient thinker. But, as is so frequently the case with efficient thinkers, he was better able to invent schemes than to carry them out. In periods of emergency, Cordell relied upon Sarcon's brains to think up schemes, then Cordell issued the orders which carried these schemes into execution.

"Where do we come in on this?" Loretto asked.

Cordell said softly and ominously, "I'll tell you where we come in on this: We're going to put through a direct contact with Judge Karpin, and Karpin is going to tell the cops to get to hell away from that house."

"They won't do it," Loretta objected.

Sarcon nodded slowly and thoughtfully.

"Good idea," he said. "They'll get out. They'll have to."

Cordell turned to Loretto and said, "Go get that two-timing broad."

"Which one?"

"Minnie."

Loretto scraped back from the table, but before he could get to his feet a door opened and Minnie, her eyes staring with a look of dazed incredulity, came walking slowly into the big room.

Cordell moved toward her.

"Well?" he asked.

"Well, what?" she said.

"What's new?"

"Nothing."

"You liar!" Cordell said, and swung his right in a stinging slap which impacted her cheek and sent her staggering backward. He moved slowly toward her.

"Spill it," he said.

"I haven't anything to spill."

"Lanlic telephoned to you. He told you to come up."

"Yes."

"Did you go?"

"You know I did."

"What did he want?"

"He wanted to ask me some more questions about the thing you sent me to see him about."

Cordell laughed, and the laugh was without mirth.

Cordell Knew.

"What a two-timing little liar you are!" he said. "I'll tell you what Lanlic wanted. Lanlic wanted to tell you that he'd made some investigations and found that the Morton girl was your kid."

"What if he did?" she asked.

Cordell laughed again.

"It just goes to show what a two-timing chiseler he is," he said. "He hadn't found out anything of the sort. I'd been the one that tipped him off. It was all part of a frame-up. The Morton kid isn't your kid at all, but I'd planted some stuff that I thought would make it look as though she really was. I didn't figure on fooling you, but I did figure on fooling C. Harvey Morton and his wife. I was going to shake them down. I'd forged a few documents and planted them where they'd do the most good. I wanted you to start Lanlic making an investigation. I knew Lanlic wouldn't go through with it if he knew he was coming in on a shake-down, but I figured he would do it if he thought that he was simply making an investigation for you. I intended to make it easy for him to find the things that I wanted him to find.

Hysterical Scene.

"Then this snatching proposition came along and—"

"You lie, you dirty crook!" she screamed. "She is my daughter. She is, she is, she is. You know she is! You can't argue against a mother's instinct. You can't convince me that—"

Cordell's fist traveled in a swift jab, which caught Minnie flush on the point of the jaw. Her head snapped back. Her heels flew up in the air. She hit the floor with a thud that jarred the building, and lay still.

"When she wakes up," he said, "keep an eye on her. She may be dangerous. You fellows sit tight. I'm going out and contact Judge Karpin."

He strode from the room, grabbing up his topcoat and struggling into it as he pushed his way out into the night.

KASHMIR CORONATION

Rainbow and Endeavour Awaiting Race; Little-Goldman Golf Finalists

Yacht Fleets Jam Harbor At Newport

Both Boats Are Given Final Trial; Best 4 of 7 Decides.

Sopwith and Vanderbilt Praise Each Other Before Sailing.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 14 (AP).—Barnacles were given no opportunity today to take up abode on the bottom of Rainbow, the defender, or Endeavour, the British challenger for the America's cup; they awaited tomorrow's starting gun to send them away in the opening race of the international series.

Both yachts, now tuned to their greatest point of sailing efficiency, were out under sail, sporting about the cup course, 9 miles southeast of Brenton's Reef Lightship, with Weetamoe, unsuccessful contender for defense nomination, and Vanitie, old and ineligible cup boat. Little could be learned in advance of the potential speed of the rivals through observing their performance today, for close contests were avoided.

Sopwith at a Distance.

Harold S. Vanderbilt, her skipper, was at Rainbow's wheel, but T. O. M. Sopwith, the British challenger, entrusted the big blue invader to other hands among his after guard. Sopwith, probably for the first time, observed Endeavour's behavior from a vantage point other than her deck. He followed her aboard his big private Yacht, the Vita.

Sopwith's bid for the America's Cup, emblematic since 1851 of the superiority of American yachtsmen over British, continues to engender only the friendliest sort of rivalry. Gerard Lambert, owner and skipper of Vanitie, who furnished the "old girl" as trial horse to both the American cup candidates and Endeavour, tomorrow will serve as skipper aboard Vita. This will release Vita's master, Capt. Donald McKillop, a very burry Scot, and he will doff his stripes to serve as an ordinary hand on Endeavour.

Sopwith and Vanderbilt exchanged pleasantries for the news reel men before putting out to sea, but they have paid each other so many compliments and have so often entertained each other aboard their yachts, there was nothing new in their remarks.

The "night before" found Newport Harbor jammed with yachts of all descriptions, and many more are known to be en route here. William Therian, the harbor master, was about the busiest man in the city finding moorings for the visitors.

No Predictions of Victory.

Unlike most sporting events, there have been no expressions of confidence or predictions of victory on the part of the rival skippers. They both subscribe to the statement, "May the better boat win."

Sopwith humorously declares his admiration for Rainbow's bow and his distaste for her stern, with the hope he doesn't have to see too much of the latter.

The sailing contest will be decided by the best four out of seven races. The courses of 30 nautical miles will be alternately 15 miles to windward or leeward and return, or triangular. Magnetic directions of the courses will be signaled from the race committee boat at least ten minutes before the warning signal.

Ross and McLarnin To Try Again Tonight

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (AP).—Barney Ross, brisk little double-champion of the lightweights and welterweights, is supposed to defend the latter of those titles against Jimmy McLarnin, the Irish avenger, in Madison Square Garden's Bowl on Long Island tomorrow night, but everyone's fingers still are crossed.

Freaky weather, that already has forced ten days of postponments, still was in charge of the situation and the prospects for a clear night for the 15-round return engagement actually were no better tonight than when the bout was first scheduled to go on September 6. The weather man said showers were due tomorrow.

Regardless, the athletes finished their training chores today as unconcerned as if they hadn't been trying to fight their way out of hotel rooms for almost two weeks. McLarnin punched a light bag and exercised for four rounds at one gymnasium, and Ross, who took McLarnin's 147-pound laurels away from him on a split 15-round decision in May, did about the same at another.

Each insists that the postponements have done no harm. There was every possibility, too, that the promoters would be satisfied with the gate receipts if the sun would only shine tomorrow. Mike Jacobs, putting on the show for the New York American Christmas and Relief Fund, said there was still $137,000 left in the till, and good weather would result in a boom that would shove gate receipts above the $175,000 mark. About $10,000 has been turned back in ticket refunds because of the postponements.

Where Ross probably would have entered the ring 9-to-5 favorite on the original date, and even after the first two postponements, McLarnin has gained favor to a point where he's a mere 5-to-6 underdog, with reports that in some quarters he was held at even money. There was little wagering of any kind.

Both looked in perfect condition this afternoon. Ross seems to have lost a little of the 140 pounds he scaled September 6, while McLarnin seemed heavier than his original 145¾. Jimmy "guessed" that he'd weigh in at the new ceremonies at noon (Eastern standard time) tomorrow at about 146½, while Ross may be about 139.

"I'm more confident than ever," Ross said. "It doesn't matter to me when the fight is staged. I licked him once and I can do it again."

McLarnin merely hoped that Ross would make a slugging fight of it. The Irishman has concentrated on his wallop all through training.

"I want that title back," he said grimly.

The faithful and the promoters merely expressed a wish for clear skies. It probably will have to rain very hard indeed to cause another postponement.

West Choice Over East In Polo

30,000 Expected to See First Test Today in Series Renewal.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (AP).—The polo prides of the East and West will gallop out on International Field at the Meadow Brook Club tomorrow in the first match of the renewal of a series for intersectional supremacy.

Forced into two postponements by weather conditions, the classic faced none too bright prospects tonight with the forecast cool with showers, but the United States Polo Association officials said the match would go on if the ponies could stand up.

The field tonight was in condition for a fast game. Preparations were made to handle an expected crowd of 30,000.

Westerners Choice.

The veteran Western riders remained favorites to down their young, hard-riding opponents, but the Easterns gave their adherents new hope as they completed practice.

They are a hell-for-leather four, this Eastern team of Mike Phipps, Jimmy Mills, Winston Guest and Billy Post, and on a tricky field might conceivably outride their more-experienced foemen of the mallet. To show how good they were they defeated a 28-goal pick-up team, 17 to 4, yesterday and impressed observers with their smooth teamwork.

On paper, however, the Western side, of Eric Pedley, Elmer J. Boeseke, jr., Cecil Smith and Aidan Roark, figure to be every bit as much better as their handicaps would indicate. They have been coming along easily, not attempting a real hard game and contented themselves this week with just one practice and that designed largely as a workout for the ponies.

Inaugurated Last Year.

The series was inaugurated at Chicago last summer with the Westerners winning the first matches. The West team as it rides out tomorrow will be the same that rode roughshod over Tommy Hitchcock, on the sidelines this year with a head injury, and his mates in the final game with a 12-to-6 victory.

The line-ups, with handicaps in brackets:

East.	Position.	West
Phipps (7)	1	Pedley (8)
Mills (8)	2	Boeseke, jr. (10)
Guest (8)	3	Smith (10)
Post (7)	Back	Roark (8)

Brundage Will Let Committee Decide

Will Shift Settlement of Reich Olympic Bid.

Berlin, Sept. 14 (AP).—Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic committee, announced tonight after a one-day study of the Jewish situation in Germany that he had decided not to use the authority delegated to him, but to report back to the committee with his findings and let it decide whether to accept the German invitation to the 1936 games.

"Only one thing is definite so far," he told the Associated Press. "That is that I have made up my mind not to decide this matter by myself. I am sailing for the United States on the Ile de France September 25, and will call the committee together immediately to make my report."

In view of his previous statement that he would make the decision himself if he found the issue clear-cut—that is, either clear discrimination against athletes of Jewish birth or no discrimination—it was believed he had found the situation as complicated as have other observers.

100 Employes To Vie Today In Meet

INTEREST was running high yesterday as the time drew near for the Government employes' track and field meet to be held at Central High School Stadum this afternoon. A field of well over 100 is entered in the 13 events scheduled.

In the men's 100-yard dash, 25 sprinters have filed entries with each and every one something in the nature of a dark horse. The 220-yard dash, the 440, the 880, the hurdles, and the mile will also be raced in the men's classes.

The women will vie in a baseball throw, the 50-yard dash, and the hurdles.

Competition for the handsome team trophy put up for competition by the Community Center, which is sponsoring the meet, is occupying the center of attention, the Agriculture Department vowing wholesale removal of the cup.

In addition to the regular track and field events, several novelty races will be held, namely, the potato race and the fat men's race.

Mount Vernon Nine Travels.

The Mount Vernon Independents will travel to Woodbridge, Va., today to play the Occoquan Athletic Club on Rust Field. A lively battle is anticipated.

Little Beats Armstrong, Chicagoan, 4 and 3, in Semifinals.

Goldman Ousts Smith, 4 and 2, to Gain Final Round.

By Dave Herman
(Post Staff Correspondent).

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 14.—After four years of patient and watchful waiting, America tonight looked upon W. Lawson Little, jr., 24-year-old California golfing hero, as the man who might step in and emulate the glamorous feats of Robert Tyre Jones, the retired "grand slam" monarch of the links.

Over the grassy slopes, the furrowed bunkers and the velvety greens of Brookline, the Pacific Coast Hercules today smashed down the next to last obstacle in his path to the National amateur championship, the blue ribbon classic of Simon-pure golf.

Smith Beaten, 4 and 2.

A determined, brave young man, who claims he developed his golfing hands by milking cows on the farm, Goldman eliminated a fellow townsman, his roommate in Boston, Reynolds (Extra Hole) Smith, 4 and 2, in a battle that saw Goldman finish with a burst of scoring power on the last seven holes.

Thus the Little-Goldman finals will present the spectacle of an international star opposing an unheralded and unsung "dark horse," who has never won a tournament in his life and is competing in his first National championship. The golf scribes, thumbing the pages of history, tonight revealed that only once before has an unknown met a favorite in the concluding round. That was in 1925, when Bobby Jones, in the heyday of his power and glory, exterminated Watts Gunn, of Atlanta, 8 and 7, at Oakmont, Pa.

On Brink of Victory.

When Bobby Jones abdicated his four thrones in 1930, they said it would be a long time before another golfing machine of his type would come forth to dominate the rank of our players, amateurs and pros alike. Twenty years before Jones retired, they hailed peerless Harry Vardon, the English great, as the golfer who might never be surpassed in fame. But America found the equal, if not the superior, in Robert Tyre Jones.

Giants Down Cards, Add To Lead

Schumacher Gives Only 5 Hits and Gets Homer; Wins His 22d.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (AP).—Hal Schumacher picked up the gauntlet the Cardinals tossed down today and slapped the St. Louis pennant hopes right in the face with a five-hit pitching performance and a home run that lifted the Giants to a 4-to-1 victory over their second-place rivals.

The triumph again increased New York's lead to 5½ games at the halfway point of the crucial series and did serious damage to the Cards' prospects to making a race of it for the flag. The Giants have only 14 more games to play and the Cards 16.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 14 (AP).—The Indians trained their batting eyes on the offerings of four Yankee pitchers, beginning with Charley Ruffing, and blasted out a 12-to-5 decision over the second-place New Yorkers today.

The defeat dropped the Yanks to 4½ games behind the league-leading Tigers and evened the current series. Lou Gehrig's forty-sixth home run started a Yankee rally that drove Lefty Thornton Lee out in the seventh, but didn't do much damage. Earl Averill socked his

Burke Gives Only Four Blows in 11 Frames; McColl Loser.

DETROIT, Sept. 14 (AP).—Three times the Tigers nearly threw away a ball game today as they played as if disgusted by their inability to hit Bob Burke's pitching, but each time they repented their actions and tied the score, and finally they won out over the Nats, 6 to 4, in the twelfth, to increase their lead over the defeated New York Yankees to 4½ games.

Charley Gehringer's home run with one out and one on base in the twelfth brought home the winning markers after Manager Mickey Cochrane had knotted the count for the fourth time.

Up to the ninth inning there was no sign of a break in the 1-1 deadlock as Burke allowed only two hits and the Tigers scored in the opening frame without the benefit of a hit.

Go Ahead in Ninth.

Then Washington pulled ahead in the ninth as Hank Greenberg fumbled Heinie Manush's grounder and Manush went to third on a sacrifice and an infield out. Cecil Travis nicked Charlie Fischer for a single to drive in the run.

Greenberg made up for his misplay in the last half of the ninth by belting his twenty-fourth home run of the season with one out.

In the eleventh the Nats counted on a wild heave by Goose Goslin, only to have Detroit tie it up again on a pass to Gehringer, Greenberg's single, an infield out and Goslin's fly.

The third time the Nats forged to the front was in the twelfth. A fumble by Billy Rogell, Johnny Stone's base bunt and an intentional pass loaded the bases, and a fly by Dave Harris let Ossie Bluege tally.

Four Hits Off Burke.

Bobby Burke, who had allowed only four hits, was removed at the start of the Tigers' twelfth when Cochrane sent Gerald Walker in to pinch hit for Hogsett. Joe Cronin withdrew Burke and substituted McColl, who ran into a three-run squall.

The Tigers were off to a one-run lead against Burke in the first in-

Discovery Rules Favorite in $10,000 Potomac as Havre de Grace Opens Today

Muddy Track Will Mark Opening

Meeting Ushers In 10 Weeks of Racing on State Tracks.

By Walter Haight.

MARYLAND horse racing and mud—a combination that makes or breaks the so-called horse lovers—will be served today at Havre de Grace, where the major fall turf season opens.

From today until late in November, when the boys and girls will be buttoning their overcoats at near-by Bowie, the bangtails will be doing their stuff in Gov. Ritchie's domain. The program includes ten weeks of the sport, with two at the Graw, four at Laurel, two at Pimlico and two at Bowie. Whether or not the freezing-out session will be held in December at Charles Town has not been determined.

With the exception of the track, which was the proverbial "sea of mud" yesterday, everything is in readiness for the opening today. Officials of the Harford Agricultural Association, which controls the racing, have been busy for weeks preparing the lay-out. The stands, the clubhouse and the betting ring are spic and span, ready for what they hope will be banner crowds, loaded with the kind of money that hasn't been seen at Maryland tracks since 1929.

Worthy Field in Stake.

The first of the three $10,000 stakes scheduled at the 13-day meeting is booked today—The Potomac Handicap. Despite the fact that Havre de Grace is competing against Rockingham, Belmont and Detroit, the mile and a sixteenth test has brought out a worthy field. Headed by Discovery, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's colt, which spent a large portion of the year chasing Cavalcade, a group of ten has been named overnight.

Fresh from shattering the world's record for a mile and three-sixteenths, at Narragansett, Discovery is assured favoritism when the field marches to the post. Chicstraw, Bazaar, Good Goods and others will draw some of the play, and the off-track conditions will add to their chances of getting home in front.

Sprinters to Vie.

There are fewer horses here than in other years and a noticeable absence of big stables, although several prominent establishments will ship their charges next week. Vanderbilt, Samuel Riddle, Mr. and Mrs. Hertz and Sylvester W. Labrot are well represented. Only a few of the E. R. Bradley horses are now at the course.

Many Washingtonians are expected to visit the track today. There are excellent roads for motorists and the Pennsylvania Railroad is running its daily special, leaving Union Station at 12:05 o'clock.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRACKER, $5.40, $3.30, $2.80; ON OUR WAY, $4.60, $3.30; LORD AUTUMN, $5.70.

TRACKER moved up steadily after leaving the back stretch, was brought to the outside of the leaders nearing the stretch, and drew out steadily in the last furlong. ON OUR WAY took command in the opening furlong and held on stubbornly in the closing test. LORD AUTUMN forced the early pace, and held on well when placed under punishment. SWEEPOGAN, hard hustled from the start, was moving up on the inside midway of the turn, but was blocked and Corbett had to take up. She saved ground on the turn, but was unable to reach the leaders. LUCKY BUCK raced evenly. BLUE BUBBLE and UNA O. were outrun.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-old maidens. Start good. Won easily; place, ridden out. Went to post at 3:10. Off at 3:16. Winner, F. A. Griffith's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HEEDLESS GAL, $4.70, $2.80, $2.30; SUN CLOISTER, $3.40, $2.60; BALANCER, $2.70.

HEEDLESS GAL, steadied along in pursuit of the pace, moved up stoutly in the stretch, came to the outside of SUN CLOISTER, was bumped slightly, but drew out steadily in the last furlong. SUN CLOISTER drew away into a good lead, but was unable to keep pace when challenged. BALANCER, slow to begin, worked his way up gradually, and closed with good energy through the last quarter-mile. EMPLOYMENT went well placed throughout. ADIOS AMIGO never could reach the leaders.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:46. Off at 3:49. Winner, Silver Stock Farm's gr. or ro. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL LINK, $9.70, $3.80, $3.00; UNLAWFUL, $3.60, $2.90; CHARLIE DAWN, $4.00.

ROYAL LINK took the lead in the opening strides, drew clear in the first furlong and was hard ridden through the stretch to hold UNLAWFUL safe. The latter, in closest pursuit of the pace for most of the journey, held on well when placed under punishment in the stretch. CHARLIE DAWN moved up on the outside, was placed under intermittent punishment, and closed steadily. DEADEYE DICK finished with good energy through the last furlong. MASKED REVUE was going gamely on the inside at the end. RIVER ROSE weakened badly in the last furlong. HIGH DELIGHT dropped back at the start, and could never enter into contention. MISS BOSS weakened in the last three-sixteenths.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:24½. Winner, Miss A. Doris' ch. f. (3), by Kai Sang—Knockout. Trained by Hollis Campbell. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:46 3-5, 0:59 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KAI-FINN, $4.30, $3.20, $2.90; CURLING, $9.30, $4.60; HAPPY SCOT, $3.30.

KAI-FINN, well up from the start, wore down CURLING for the lead nearing the far turn, drew clear and, hard ridden through the stretch, was never seriously threatened. CURLING, away fast, continued gamely to the end, but was unequal to the task of keeping pace with the winner. HAPPY SCOT was a forward factor all the way. MOREHEART, well placed, was unable to improve his position. IMMUNE went evenly. CHAIN lacked his usual early speed.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200. The Plymouth Claiming Purse. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:55. Off at 4:57. Winner, A. A. Baroni's b. g. (4), by Dress Parade—Plaid. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $850; second, $100; third, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:49 1-5, 1:12 4-5, 1:39, 1:46.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCOTCH SOLDIER, $18.70, $7.70, $3.80; VESTED POWER, $8.50, $6.30; BELOW COST, $3.00.

SCOTCH SOLDIER, unruly at the post, took command at once, drew clear in the run to the first turn and, rated along in front under steadying restraint, held VESTED POWER safe at the finish. The latter, restrained while following the pace, closed willingly, but was unable to reach the winner. BELOW COST, prominently placed all the way, was never able to reach the leader after saving all possible ground. INHERITOR never could enter into serious contention. OLD JUDGE was outrun. ADOBE POST dropped back at the start, and failed to show any semblance of speed.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:29. Off at 5:31½. Winner, T. J. Martell's b. c. (4), by Blondin—Penur. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47, 1:13.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ST. OMER, $47.90, $19.90, $8.30; FAST MOVE, $8.90, $5.50; FLYING DON, $3.90.

ST. OMER, outpaced early, moved up fast nearing the stretch and, saving a world of ground entering the stretch, took command with a rush and held away to the end. FAST MOVE dropped back at the start, worked his way up gradually, and closed with a rush on the outside through the stretch. FLYING DON, hard ridden, shook off OLD BALDY, but weakened slightly in the closing test. DORNOCH, well placed from the start, faltered in the drive. OLD BALDY weakened after displaying early speed. MY PURCHASE dropped back steadily and appeared to have sulked.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 6:06. Off at 6:08. Winner, Miss M. Kneessi's ch. f. (3) by Dozer—Janis D. Trained by G. K. Kneessi. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:12 1-5, 1:39.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LAURETTA NASH, $19.50, $9.50, $5.80; HASTY PETER, $12.20, $8.00; ON SIR, $4.40.

LAURETTA NASH was not hurried during the first half-mile, began moving up thereafter, came to the outside in the stretch and, closing with a rush, was going away at the end. HASTY PETER, restrained early, moved up on the outside leaving the back stretch, took command in the stretch, but was unable to keep pace when the winner challenged. ON SIR, unable to keep up early, came with good energy in the last quarter-mile. VILLAGE VAMP, unruly at the post, was outrun for the first six furlongs, and closed when low. KOTERITO, hard ridden to keep pace, weakened in the last three-sixteenths. MEROVECH had speed for the first six furlongs, but weakened badly thereafter. CASH SURRENDER tired.

Trapshoot Will Honor Mr. and Mrs. Sanders

Keyser, W. Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—A homecoming reception trapshoot will be held at the Meadow Lark Gun Club, 4 miles from here, tomorrow afternoon in honor of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Sanders, who are bringing home the coveted championship trophies from the recent Grand American Trap Shoot Tournament held at Vandalia, Ohio.

The program will start at 2 o'clock with a contest of 50 single targets followed by the annual watermelon shoot.

Swim Mark Broken.

Tokyo, Sept. 14 (AP).—The world's free style swimming record for 800 meters was bettered by Shozo Makino in the semifinal of a national collegiate meet here today. He covered the distance in 10 minutes 7.2 seconds, 8.4 seconds under the mark set by Jean Taris at Cannes, France, two years ago.

Lieut. Walker Named on Army Polo Team for Mexican Series in Surprise Move

Capt. Davis Is Shifted To No. 1

American Four Drills Tomorrow Against War Department.

A STARTLING shape-up in the line-up of the United States Army polo team which will face the Mexican Army four in the international series on West Potomac Park field on September 19, 23 and 26, was announced by the American team selection committee yesterday.

The committee surprised most observers by picking 24-year-old Lieut. E. A. Walker as the fourth member of the team in preference to 31-year-old Lieut. Harry Stadler, a player of many more years' experience than the successful candidate. It also took the totally unlooked-for move of shoving the veteran, Capt. C. E. Davis, who has been playing at No. 2, up to No. 1, and inserting Lieut. Walker at No. 2.

Maj. Smith Captain.

The committee's selection of Capt. Davis, Maj. C. C. Smith and Lieut. George H. Read for the team was announced through The Post several days ago. Maj. Smith, who will play at back, was named captain by the committee yesterday. Lieut. Read will be at his customary No. 3 position.

Maj. J. M. Swing, F. A.; Col. George S. Patton, jr., Third Cavalry, and Maj. Howell M. Estes, G. S., complete the selection committee.

Since the No. 2 position is generally regarded as the most aggressive, most active and possibly the most important place on the team, the selection of young Lieut. Walker could be explained in only one way. The committee feels that with the dashing youngster, only three years out of West Point, at No. 2, the Mexicans will be constantly worried and harassed by the hard-riding, hard-swinging boy who has shown himself to be the fast, alert player necessary for the position.

His Natural Position.

The second reason for Walker's selection was based on the wish to place Capt. Davis at No. 1, his natural position, where he has earned the reputation of being one of the best in the game.

Giants Win

games of the season as he chalked up victory 22, against 7 defeats. The only Cardinal run was unearned and Jim Collins, who scored it, was the only Cardinal player to touch third, getting there twice.

Jackson Makes Error.

The tally came in the fourth as the result of Travis Jackson's fumble, a passed ball, Bill Delancey's out and Ernie Orsatti's single. In the ninth Collins got to the far corner again when he and Delancey single, but Schumacher whiffed Orsatti for the final out.

Bill Walker, the southpaw who once pitched for the Giants and has been doing some good throwing for St. Louis lately, had one bad inning that cost him the ball game. In the fourth the Giants put together four of their nine hits for three runs. Schumacher's circuit blow in the next inning—his sixth of the season—was just an extra attraction after that rally.

"First Pitch" Joe Moore opened the rally with a double against the right-field wall. Critz and Terry flied out, then Hank Leiber, advanced to the clean-up position to bat against a left-hander, slammed a hot one past second that went for a single despite Frisch's diving try for it, and scored Moore. Mel Ott drew a pass and Jackson scored Leiber with a single. Gus Mancuso brought Ott home with the fourth hit, another single.

Walker lasted until the sixth, when Red Worthington batted for him and fanned. Jess Haines and Tex Carleton divided the pitching duties the rest of the way, holding the Giants to one hit.

Alexandria's Gridmen in Fine Form

Luckett Lost for While; Fraters Practice Tomorrow.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—Alexandria High School's gridmen were in fine fettle this afternoon after a week of intensive drills in which most of the players came through without injury.

Cocaptain Peyton Luckett was the most seriously hurt, suffering a recurrence of an old leg injury. He probably will not be lost to the team for more than a week or ten days.

With Alexandria's schedule this fall one of the hardest in the history of the school, Coach Givens is speeding his workouts in an endeavor to ascertain the best men for the various posts.

The Alexandria Fraters will practice at 11 a. m. Sunday, it has been announced by Manager Gunny Davis.

Games with the Norfolk Tars, Richmond Arrows and the Sewanee A. C. of Portsmouth have been offered the Fraters.

Bill Langford, former Celtic coach, will perform with his old teammates Sunday when the Celtics journey to Fredericksburg for a doubleheader with the Elks. Godfrey probably will be shifted to the outfield in the absence of Ellet Cabell.

Baltimore Weather Delays Jones-Bowen

The program will be presented Monday night, with no change in the original matches. Jimmy Jones will meet Ray Bowen, of Washington, and Mannie Weible tackles Felix Bochenik in the feature eight-round bouts.

Lanham Plays EWA.

Lanham A. C. opposes the Emergency Works Administration nine tomorrow on the former's diamond at 3 o'clock. For games with Lanham communicate with Manager Duckett at Bowie 12-F-2.

Football in Virginia . . .

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Sept. 14 (AP).—The University of Virginia varsity probably will wind up its second week's workouts with a practice game in Scott Stadium.

The newcomers from the 1933 freshman team have broken into the Cavalier "A" line-up. They are Bus Mail, whose generalship of the youngsters was notable last fall, and Leonard Trell, the 200-pound tackle, who also is serving his first season with the varsity. Both men were late in reporting for practice.

Coach Tebell is giving much attention to the play of Virginia's ends. With Ken Morton shifted to the center of the line, he has only two experienced wingmen, John Leys and Cullen Wilkin. There are six other new men, some of them promising, but all of them needing experience.

Despite the weather man's refusal to cooperate with brisk, sparkling weather, two Virginia elevens will start their fall campaigning today with each favored to triumph over an out-of-State adversary.

Emory and Henry's fine eleven, considered by many observers to be one of the Old Dominion's best, will meet the Guilford College team under the lights at Emory tonight.

Another week-end will send V. P. I., Washington and Lee and Hampden-Sydney into battle and other Virginia teams will join the parade the following week.

Although the Roanoke battle was expected to draw a sizeable crowd, most interest centered on the first test this season of Coach Pedie Jackson's strong eleven at Emory. Well fortified in the forewall with a veteran in practically every berth and with a fast and experienced backfield, the Wasps may come close to matching their fine performance of a year ago when they lost only one game—to the University of Richmond on a slippery field.

Roanoke, constantly confronted with superior teams for the past several years, has had to emphasize a tight defense, but the backs may get an opportunity to demonstrate their ability today.

William Moore Named Warrenton High Coach

Warrenton, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—William Moore, graduate with this year's class at Hampden-Sydney, will be football coach this season at Warrenton High School, P. B. Smith, jr., principal, announced today.

Moore succeeds W. W. Wood, last year's coach, who resigned this week. No date has yet been set for the Warrenton football squad to start practice.

J. C. Williams Chosen Master of Foxhounds

Warrenton, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—The Casanova Hunt begins its twenty-fifth year of hunting this season with a new master of foxhounds.

Following the resignation of Harry Lee Smith, master for several years, J. C. Williams consented to be master for the present. Mr. Williams was formerly joint master of foxhounds for the warrenton Hunt with Mrs. Robert C. Winmill from 1925 to 1927.

Interscholastic Loop To Name New Officers

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—The Western Maryland Interscholastic League will meet in Union Street School tomorrow. Officers will be elected and soccer and field ball schedules adopted.

It is understood that Allegany, Beall, Penn, Bruce and Central High Schools will have teams in both soccer and field ball leagues. Barton, which was not represented in the fall sports last year, is not expected to return to the county circuit. Both leagues will open next month and close in November. Arthur F. Smith, principal of Central High School, Lonaconing, has served as president of the league for 15 consecutive years.

Fredericksburg High Cards Eight Contests

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 14. Eight games have been carded by Fredericksburg High for 1934.

Thirty-four candidates for the eleven greeted Johnny Fenlon, newly appointed coach from George Washington University, when he called initial practice this week. Leading the aspirants is John White, captain of the team and an All-Northern Virginia back in 1933. Returning lettermen number 12.

The schedule:

November 2, Warrenton, at Fredericksburg; 9, Chester, at Chester; 16, Blackstone, at Fredericksburg; 23, Alexandria, at Alexandria.

Staunton Wins Tenth Annual Series

Defeats Harrisonburg, 6-1, for Bi-County Title; Keller Is Star.

HARRISONBURG, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.). — Staunton, Augusta League champions, won the tenth annual bicounty series this afternoon by registering its fourth victory over the Harrisonburg Valley Leaguers, 6 to 1.

Harrisonburg's "one-run wonders" registered only four runs during the series and scored only five in the last seven championship games to set a local record for potentless batting. The only game Harrisonburg won in the series was by a 1-to-0 margin.

Kit May, former Southern Association hurler, scored his second win of the series in limiting Harrisonburg to six hits. Benny Good hurled his third game of the set and lost his second. He was tapped for 11 hits and received poor support with men on base.

Keller, the Augusta League's most valuable player, was the big gun in the Staunton attack, driving in four runs with as many hits and scoring another himself.

Staunton bunched hits in four innings to score, registering four runs in the last two innings. Harrisonburg tallied in the fifth on a pass, Bear's double and McFall's hit. Harrisonburg had numerous opportunities to count, but May bore down with men on base.

Sanico Pinmen Open Season Monday

Caseys Start Wednesday; Saturday Night Loop Meets Tonight.

THE first faint rumble of bowling balls colliding with the headpin will emanate from the Convention Hall drives Monday night when the Sanico League resumes operations for the 1933-34 season. Later in the week, Wednesday to be exact, the Knights of Columbus League opens at the same alleys.

Inaugurated six years ago with 10 teams, Sanico gradually has expanded until its roster now includes 18 clubs, and each successive season has witnessed an improved brand of pinspilling. E. G. Yonkers, president of the Sanitary Grocery Co., will roll the first ball officially opening the league.

Charles F. O'Connell again heads the Casey circuit which will have at least 16 teams in action. Applications for franchises have been received from several quintets and by starting time 20 teams may be in line.

A meeting of the Saturday Night League will be held tonight at Convention Hall to plan for the season. Two franchises in the league are open and can be obtained by calling Mr. Bell at National 1992.

Two vacancies exist in the Federal League opening a week from Monday. Information can be obtained from Secretary Charles E. Barnard, 326 Eighth street southeast, telephone Lincoln 9485-W. Employes of either Federal or District Governments are eligible to participate.

A franchise is open in Columbia Heights Bowling League for a team averaging 540 or better. Get in touch with Charles Bernhardt or Ray W. Miller, Arcadia Bowling Alleys, Columbia 10013.

W. O. W. Plans Grid Team.

Dallas Roommates—Rivals

By Paul Gallico.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 14—The story of the National Amateur Golf Championship Tourney here is the pair of kids from Texas, Reynolds Smith and David (Spec) Goldman, both from Dallas, both of them working men, both of them pretty broke, and both in the semifinals.

Smith is a little, dark-haired chap. Goldman, a steel-lather, is larger, scrawnier, has sort of sandy hair and red fuzz on his large bony wrists. He has tremendous wrists, always an asset in golf. When asked how he acquired them he said from milking cows for five years. He said, "You milk cows every night for five years and you'll get strong wrists, too." Smith is a little steadier through the landscape, but Goldman is a fine putter. He certainly rolls the little ball straight for the hole and they just dive in when they get there.

Lost Their Luggage.

The two boys came up from Dallas together. Some say they bummed their way up, chiseling rides where they could, and others that their fare was paid on the airlines as far as Cleveland, after which they did the best they could. But they did lose their luggage somewhere en route, and also, apparently, most of their money. They took a room together in an old Brookline boarding house for $3.50 for the entire week. The room only had one bed, so they slept together. Each night and each morning they gave one another pep talks all week long.

Yesterday Goldman missed the bus that passes their boarding house and also runs by the golf course. He didn't have any taxi money so he walked 4 miles to the clubhouse and then played two 18-hole matches, winning both of them to get into the semifinals with his roommate today.

Gets Long Telegram.

Smith is more the Darling of Dallas than Goldman is. The former's friends there sent him a 450-word telegram of encouragement, but the the wire came too late. Smith was dormie 3 when it rolled into the press barn with the signatures of all the members of Smith's club attached to it. Smith works for the Magnolia Oil Co., in Dallas and Goldman for his brother-in-law, who seems to be a contractor. They played 18 holes this morning and never spoke a word or smiled at one another during the entire trip. Then they came in, ate lunch and read their mail and telegrams together and then went out, and with that thorough and amazing American grimness, never spoke to one another until Goldman won, 4 and 2, on the sixteenth hole. Then they smiled, shook hands, relaxed and walked back to the clubhouse arm in arm.

Curious thing: Goldman has never beaten Smith in any of the State or city matches around Dallas. In the meantime, Bill Little—William Lawson Little, if you prefer—the Stanford University golfer, has made himself thoroughly unpopular with the gallery. I wouldn't exactly know why but they say it is because he plays like a dead fish, never smiles, never praises a good shot made by his opponent and never changes his expression.

An American Trait.

I wouldn't be angry at a man for that, particularly. It is strictly an American trait to play any game as though one were attending his favorite uncle's funeral. I do not care especially for those persistent shot-praisers myself. A man when he has made a good shot knows it anyway. There is something phony, too about the congratulations. When an opponent of mine makes a good shot I regret it deeply.

Little is a bit of a clammy golfer who walks along with a set expression on his broad face and never changes it, but maybe he enjoys playing that way and maybe again he is concentrating. Our National fetish is to win and not to enjoy whatever game we are playing and I do not think the galleries should be angry with Mr. Little for paying attention to that end of it.

Years of Training.

A couple of Englishmen could go along chatting gaily while they played a hammer-and-tongs golf match, but it took years of training to acquire that virtue. William Lawson Little is of the stern American breed at whom coaches for athletic generations have been bellowing, "Come on, wipe that smile off your face and get in there and fight! Show me some blood! Get mad! What the hell do you think this is, a game?"

Of course, it would be a grand Horatio Alger tale if the poor boy who lives in a boarding house won, but he won't, because Little is the better golfer. Apropos of the boarding house, after the Dallas kids began to attract some attention they were invited to live as guests in a private home. But they said they had paid the $3.50 in advance for their room and they reckoned they had better live it out.

More Impressive.

But, to get back to Little, when he wins the American amateur title, he will stamp himself as probably one of the best amateur golfers in the world. Back in 1911 Harold Hilton won both the U. S. and British amateur championships and since then no one but Jones has been bagging the pair of them. And Little's feat, coming when America for the first time tried out the British system of a field of 158 and 18-hole elimination matches daily, makes it all the more impressive.

The kid is built like a full back and is a terrific hitter. He hits so hard that he softens up every hole, leaving himself rarely more than a mashie-niblick pitch to the greens. And he is one of those rare youngsters, who with great power off the tee, combines sensitive fingers near the green. He hits fine soft niblick shots and pitches and putts well. Incidentally, I hear he trained for this show. He went to Chicago for two weeks, stayed at the Medinah Country Club, took a lesson from Tommy Armour every day, practiced four or five hours every day and then played a round of golf to top it off.

Daisy the Duck's Day.

Tomorrow will be Daisy the Duck's day, more or less. Daisy is the Loening amphibian commuter plane upon whose help I am depending to cover the five biggest National sports events of the day. The schedule is a simple one and with any kind of a break in the weather can be accomplished easily.

I expect to see the first nine holes of the Little-Goldman match here in the morning, climb into Daisy, take off from the municipal airport and cut straight across-country to Newport where the international yachts ought to be under way. A look at the tall sails and then westward again to New Haven to stop for gas and check on weather, time and postponements. At 3:30 we will be over Belmont Park watching the ponies come out of the chute for the Futurity, and at 4, land at Roosevelt Field, Long Island, and drive over to Meadowbrook and see the East-West polo. At 6, we fly down to Holmes Airport in Astoria, five minutes from Madison Square Garden Bowl in Long Island City, grab a bite to eat and then see the Ross-McLarnin welterweight championship fight. Rain won't stop us, but it would cancel polo and the fight. Daisy the Duck loves water. Fog is something else again. Neither Daisy nor I care for the soup. We'll be seein' you.

30,000 to See 19 Battle in Futurity

Bradley Pair, Brookmeade Entry Choices Today in $100,000 Race.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (AP).—The world's richest horse race, the $100,000 Futurity, will be renewed at Belmont Park tomorrow with the three B's—Bradley, Brookmeade and Belair—favored to take home the major share of the big purse dangling 6½ furlongs down the Widener straightaway.

Nineteen 2-year-olds, survivors of an original field of 1,415 juveniles named either before they were foaled or as yearlings, were selected today to start in the forty-fifth running of the race that will net the winner more than $80,000. The youngsters will parade to the post at about 2:30 p. m. (Eastern standard) before an expected crowd of 30,000.

Fight Between Four.

Although many, including all of the prerace favorites, have been entered, the contest figures to be strictly one between E. R. Bradley's Balladier and Boxthorn, Psychic Bid and Special Agent from Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade Stable, and Omaha of William Woodward's Belair Stud. The others, with the possible exception of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Flat Eye, are given only outside chances.

With little to choose between them on past performances, the Bradley pair and the Brookmeade entry were the split favorites at 2 to 1 in the prerace calculations. Psychic Bid, assigned the top weight of 130 pounds, won the rich Hopeful at Saratoga in a gallop, with Balladier far back. Balladier, chief hope of the Kentucky sportsman, whirled to a new track record for the same distance as the Futurity in accounting for the Champagne Stakes last week, only to have the Brookmeade ace equal the mark of 1:16 3-5 in a workout.

Beaumont Wins, Takes Lead in Texas Play-Off

Beaumont, Tex., Sept. 14 (AP).—Beaumont took the lead in its Texas League play-off series with San Antonio today by defeating the 1933 champions, 3 and 2.

This was Beaumont's second victory in the series. San Antonio has won one game.

250 Hounds Vie Near Orange Sept. 20

ORANGE, Va., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—A total of 250 hounds will compete for prizes at the first annual bench show of the Virginia Foxhound Club, to be held September 20 at Montpelier, the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Somerville, near here, under auspices of the American Foxhound Club.

John C. Stewart, of Keswick, Albemarle County, secretary of the club, reports 180 entries by 23 exhibitors from the States of Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia. The show undoubtedly will be the largest hound show ever held in the Old Dominion and will bring together some of the best hounds in the country. A. G. Rolfe and J. B. Bland, of Washington, D. C., will bring the pick of their kennels. These hounds have won all over the United States and several of them are field and bench champions.

16 Classes Listed.

The show program provides for 16 classes—five each for dog hounds and bitches, and six specials—for dog hounds and bitch hounds of any age which have been placed in any recognized field trials; best fox hound in show and best of opposite sex, and five couple of hounds (dogs, bitches or mixed, any age) to be shown as a pack. The show will close with a horn-blowing contest.

The show, which will be open to the public, will begin promptly at 10 o'clock. The dog hounds will be shown in the morning and the bitches in the afternoon. The pack class will be shown in the afternoon. This will bring together the Middleburg Hunt, which won last year at the Bryn Mawr show, and the Orange County Hunt, which was second at Bryn Mawr, after a close decision. The Warrenton Hunt will show the pack which gave such a beautiful performance at the recent Warrenton Horse Show. The Farmington Hunt, of Charlottesville, has entered a pack which has not been shown before, but which is expected to furnish keen competition.

ning without the aid of a hit, when Cochrane walked, stole second, went to third on Bolton's overthrow, and scored on an infield out. The Nats tied it up almost immediately when Susko's single followed Harris' walk and Travis' single.

Burke showed his mettle in the second inning when, with one out, he walked three batters to fill the bases. Then he forced Fischer to hit into a double play started by Travis.

Owen's single in the fourth inning was the first hit off Burke, who had a two-hit game in his possession going into the ninth.

Playground Summer Program Participated in by 28,000

12,000 Are Expected to Take Part in Events Coming Season.

ITS record-breaking summer program — which accommodated more than 4,000 more boys and girls than it did in 1933—coming to a close today, the busy Department of Playgrounds, scarcely pausing for a second wind, plunges into a bigger and broader fall schedule of activities Monday.

Under leadership of Assistant Director Richard S. Tennyson and Miss Maude N. Parker, diretcor of girls' and, women's activities, the department noted an increase of from approximately 24,300 youngsters participating in the department's organized athletics in the summer of 1933 to 28,300 taking part during the past summer.

Not content with this 17 per cent increase, this energetic, public-minded playground body is contemplating a fall program focused on the elementary schools which will provide recreation in half a dozen sports for 12,000 boys and girls, as compared with the 10,000 who engaged in the program last year.

The 1934 summer figures which the department announced yesterday, and their 1933 counterparts follow, in respect to the various activities:

Baseball	6,000	5,200
Track elimination	12,000	11,000
Archery	600	...
Swimming	700	550
Totals	28,300	24,250
Tennis finalists	500	450
Track finalists	6,000	4,500
Swimming finalists	240	240

The only event which remains to be completed is the girls' tennis doubles tournament, the finals of which will be played next Tuesday.

In commenting on the summer program, Mr. Tennyson said that the high spots of the year centered in the immense interest shown in the tennis and track elimination events and in the new sport, archery. The latter, included in the program this year for the first time, was greeted with enthusiasm which exceeded the highest expectations of the authorities.

Mr. Tennyson briefly outlined the fall program.

"When school starts Monday," he said, "our directors will give talks in all the elementary schools explaining our elementary school program. They will talk about soccer for the boys, dodge ball for the girls, basket ball for both boys and girls, touch football and volley ball for the boys.

12,000 Expected.

"Last year we had 10,000 boys and girls in this program. We will probably have at least 12,000 this year.

Mr. Tennyson said there would be from 60 to 65 teams in the interplayground soccer activities, with eight leagues in operation. About 1,000 boys will be taking part in the four classes. Divisions for those 14 and under, 16 and under, 18 and under and for unlimited teams will be formed, all but the unlimited to play on Saturday. The unlimited league will play on Sunday.

About 60 teams will make up the basket ball leagues, with 110-pound, 130-pound and unlimited teams playing. At least 50 teams will participate in the volley ball, limited to two classes, 16 and under and over 16. Thirty teams are slated to scramble for the girls' basket ball crown and about 25 boys' elevens for the touch football honors, commencing its second year on the program.

New Champions Crowned.

Among the new champions crowned during the summer were Virginia Avenue Playground, which won the boys' track meet, breaking the five-year tenure of Rosedale, which finished fourth; Sherwood Playground, which dethroned Rosedale for the girls track honors; the Georgetown girls' swimming team and Rosedale's boys' swimming team.

Cardoza won the boys colored track honors and Barry Farms, the girls. Howard Pool representatives won both colored boys' and girls' swimming laurels.

In tennis, Allie and Nathan Ritzenberg, of Cooke, won the boys' junior and senior titles, respectively, and Samuel and Milton Robinson, of Logan, won the colored boys' championships.

Little Faces Goldman in Golf Final

champion of America and Britain. If he rubs out Goldman tomorrow he will have his name linked with none other than Harold Hilton, an Englishman, who achieved this amazing feat in 1911, and Jones, champion in 1930.

While selecting champions before a tournament gets under way is a hazardous task, Boston bookmakers and experts alike were not backward a bit. They offered Little as the top-heavy favorite and on the strength of his playing today he bids fair to vindicate their judgment.

Only One Over Par.

While his golf was not brilliant on every hole, Little flashed enough today to indicate an easy victory over Goldman tomorrow. For the 33 holes the match with Armstrong lasted, the Californian was one over par.

On the other hand, Goldman, sluggish in spots, completed his conquest of little Smith with a ten-over-par exhibition, which, after all, is nothing to rave about for a semifinals match.

If Goldman had been playing Little today, it would have been a rout, for it took skillful putting, marvelous recovery shots and a brave heart for Armstrong to stick in the finals as long as he actually did against the British title-holder.

The beautiful part about Lawson Little's game is that he never cracks. You have to shoot subpar golf to hold your own with him, so powerful is this young, broad-shouldered Lochinvar from out of the West. As in his other five matches, Little was never down to Armstrong. Either he was up or even, and mostly he was up.

Able to Get Jump.

In golf a flying start and a commanding lead mean everything. Little seems to be able to get the jump, and his auspicious beginning against Armstrong enabled him to win as handily as he did.

You should know this Armstrong fellow. He is well known around Illinois, being a former State champion, and rates about on a par with Jack Westland, the Walker Cup star, who passed out so early in the picture. A 6-footer, he has a fine temperament, iceberg nerves and a putting touch that is hard to beat.

Armstrong got off on the wrong foot this morning when he appeared on the first tee with only a glass of orange juice constituting his breakfast. He arrived at the clubhouse at approximately 9 a. m., prepared for a big morning meal, when he suddenly noticed in the papers it was only minutes before teeing-off time. The Chicagoan thought the time was 10 a. m. But he was wrong. He hurriedly drank his orange juice and fired away. He 3-putted the first for a loss, dropped the second to Little's birdie 3, the third when he was stymied and the fourth when the Californian rammed home a 15-footer for a par 4.

Overcast skies with an east wind was no inducement for the four contestants this morning, and Armstrong's golf for the first four holes was about as sour looking as the weather. After that poor start you wouldn't have given five cents for Armstrong's chances. But Dame Fortune took a hand. She smiled at the Chicagoan.

With his putter packed with magic, he started his comeback, sinking a six-footer for a birdie three at the fifth, a four-footer for a birdie three at the sixth, a six-footer for a half in three at the seventh, a seven-footer for a par four and victory at the eighth, and another seven-footer for a par and win at the ninth.

Such putting astounded Little, and in five holes Armstrong had wiped out Little's lead and squared the match as they rounded the turn.

Armstrong had swung his putter only 12 times for that nine.

For the next seven holes it was a regular dog fight. They halved every one of 'em, Armstrong's bold putting saving him on numerous holes.

On the seventeenth, a winding 385-yarder, Little swept into the lead for the first time since the eighth hole by nailing a 15-footer for a birdie three. Throughout the morning, Armstrong's putting was his forte, but on this treacherous eighteenth green it failed him. He three-putted the green, muffing a four-footer to lose to Little's par 4.

It was anybody's match, although Little held a 2-up lead going into the afternoon round. Little shot a 73, two over par, and Armstrong a 75.

Thousands thundering over and around them, Little and Armstrong halved the nineteenth to start the afternoon, Armstrong sinking a 12-footer for a par 4, and Little a 6-footer. On the twentieth Armstrong lost to become 3 down. He lost the twenty-first by dubbing another shot while attempting to explode out of the trap, finally conceding Little his par 4.

Wins With Birdie.

Again the worm turned. With astounding rapidity, Armstrong holed out a blasting explosion shot from 30 feet to win the twenty-second with a birdie three, as Little's try on the green from 20 feet failed. The whisky dealer proceeded to win the twenty-third by laying his approach 12 feet from the pin as Little meandered into a trap and exploded weakly for his five.

Two up, Little drove 265 yards uphill on the twenty-fourth, and anchored his approach 8 feet from the pin for a birdie 3 as Armstrong was trapped on his drive. Those traps were killing Armstrong. He lacked the stuff to get out properly, even though that great explosion shot on the twenty-second was a master stroke. Little picked up another birdie, a deuce at the twenty-fifth by knocking his iron tee shot 6 feet from the pin, and again rocketed into a 4 up lead. Fighting back grimly, Armstrong, arched his approach 1 foot from the twenty-sixth hole for a par 4 as Little landed twice in the rough. Armstrong cut Little's lead to 2 up by winning the twenty-seventh with a great spoon second that halted 20 feet from the pin, enabling him to bag his par 4. Little was trapped on his second.

Trickles Into Cup.

The gallery, still buzzing with chatter about Armstrong's brilliant explosion shot on the twenty-second, was treated to an equally as superb shot on the 510-yard twenty-ninth, the Himalayas hole, where everything imaginable in the way of hazards takes its toll of golfers. Here Little smashed his second shot 4 feet from the green—and what a shot, believe you me—and played a niblick cut shot that had enough top spin to trickle into the cup. What cheers! What a blow to Armstrong, who was ragged enough on this hole, much less having an eagle 3 thrown smack in his face.

Now three up, Little enlarged his lead by winning the 130-yard thirteenth with a par 3 as Armstrong's tee shot floated into a trap. On the thirty-first Armstrong prolonged the issue by reaching the carpet in 2, as Little's second found a trap to the left of the green. Armstrong won the hole with a 4, halved the thirty-second by holing a 7-footer after his drive stuck in a nasty trap.

Yields to Par 4.

Dormie 4, Little put over the killing blow on the thirty-third with two straight shots, the second of which ended up 15-feet from the pin. Armstrong, defeat in sight, knocked his second into a trap, and yielded to Little's par 4.

For the 33 holes, Armstrong was 9 over par.

4 Cumberland Boys Signed By Red Sox

Junior Legion Champions to Be Dinner Guests; Laval May Attend.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 14 (Spl.).—An effort is being made to have Bill Laval, scout for the Boston Red Sox and baseball coach at the University of South Carolina, attend the dinner to be given at the Fort Cumberland Hotel Monday night in honor of the Cumberland Junior Legion Team, National champions.

Laval was responsible for several of the local boys being offered contracts and has been invited to attend the dinner by W. Earl Brooks, Legion nine manager.

Brooks announced this morning that George Kraft, Ken Clark, Fred "Tack" Clark and Wayne Triplett have signed contracts with the Sox. "Pete" Horworth plans to put his name on the dotted line after the Potomac-Edison-Frostburg Demon Interstate League series. Phil Fleming has not indicated what is his intention.

Brooks has received a letter from Eddie Collins, general manager of Boston, stating that he is very much pleased that the local boys have signed. They will be farmed out next season.

Cross Defeats Kid Norfolk Handily

Takes 10-Round Decision; Chris Wins Decision Over Flood.

TOMMY CROSS, Philadelphia lightweight, last night won a ten-round decision over the veteran Kid Norfolk in the feature bout of the Lincoln Athletic Club final outdoor event of the season at Griffith Stadium. Cross won handily, although he gave away 8 pounds in weight. Norfolk was simply too slow for the clever Philadelphia boy.

Cross toppled Norfolk for a one count in the first round, catching him off balance with a right to the midsection. Norfolk, however, rallied and took the next two rounds by virtue of his experience at infighting. He drove Cross to the ropes and beat him unmercifully with stiff rights to midsection.

Stand Toe to Toe.

The fifth round was a corker. They stood toe to toe in the center of the ring and exchanged countless rights and lefts. Norfolk, evidently realizing that he was behind on points, rallied and won the sixth, but Cross came back in the seventh, and from then on the decision was never in doubt.

Norfolk made one last effort for a knockout in the ninth, catching the rooster with 2 beautiful rights to the head. But Cross came out of it boxing nicely and coasted in with the decision.

Kid Chris Is Winner.

Kid Chris, the Washington battler, opened the show with a well deserved victory over Jackie Flood, of Baltimore, in a four rounder. Chris floored his opponent for no count in the third and swarmed all over the man in the last round to win easily.

The second fight, if you can call it that, resulted in a 3-round K. O. of Ace Thompson, Baltimore welterweight, by Charley Wells, Washington. There was some doubt concerning the blow Wells used in flooring Thompson. Some say it was a stiff frown, while more experienced observers claimed it was an alleged right cross. It was an exceedingly slow bout.

Kid Buffalo and the Virginia Wild Cat wound up an entertaining evening with a six-round bout which Buffalo won by unanimous decision. The finish was fast and furious, Buffalo cracking the Wild Cat with a wild right to the knee, the Wild Cat covering with a looping left to the rump. The boys finished with a 50-yard sprint around the ring. Buffalo is believed to have been chasing the Wild Cat and the Wild Cat chasing the referee.

Ross Bout on Radio, Schenley Co. Sponsor

Promoters of the Ross-Larnin fight for the welterweight championship of the world, scheduled at the Madison Square Garden's Long Island City Bowl tonight, announced late yesterday that the bout would be broadcast over a National radio hook-up.

Broadcasting privileges for the fight have been purchased by the Schenley Distilling Co., represented in Washington by the International Distilling & Distributing Co. The title bout is scheduled to start at 9 p. m., Washington time.

Navy Is Lacking Power; Seeks Fleetness

Kicking and Passing Seen Key to Grid Success in Early Games.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 14 (AP).—Facing one of the hardest schedules in the country, the football coaching staff at the Naval Academy is striving to develop an edge in alert playing and fast football, to offset a lack in physical strength.

The 1934 squad, now being tutored by Lieut. Thomas J. Hamilton, head coach, is not above a Navy average. Compared to some of the Navy's opponents, such as Pittsburgh and Notre Dame, it is apparent that the Tars have insufficient physical strength to play as a power team.

Laying Fundamentals.

One hope of the Navy for success, at least in the early season games, is that Hamilton will introduce some new angles to the kicking and passing game. Right now the coaches are busy laying the fundamentals for a team that will function "in air, mud or water."

Hamilton not only faces the duty of developing a team and introducing a new system of offense, but he has the duty of organizing the coaching staff along with his squad. There has been an entirely new lineup in the coaching staff, which is now composed almost entirely of young officers whose sum total of coaching experience is on a par with any representative American college.

Canoeists Seek New Honors Today

30 Events on 2-Day Cards, Brower Will Defend Sculls Title.

A THREAT of cloudy skies and continuation of the stormy weather failed to dampen the ardor of Washington canoeists waiting the annual William C. McKinney Memorial Regatta, starting this afternoon on the Potomac. Only in the event that it is impossible to launch a canoe will the affair be postponed. Should this be necessary, the entire program will be held over until next week.

A Hawaiian surfboard exhibition, eight-oared shell race and single sculls championship race feature the 15 events scheduled this afternoon. Tomorrow an additional 15 events of a novel or comic nature will conclude the two-day celebration, which is the last important canoe regatta of the season.

Small Field Entered.

Paul Brower, Potomac Boat Club, seeking to retain his single sculls laurels, faces a small but select field, including Granville Gude, the veteran and capable oarsman. Hailie Chisholm, who with Gude is a clubmate of Brower's, and Parke Bell, Old Dominion Boat Club, comprise the list.

The late William C. McKinney, in whose honor the ragatta is named, held the single sculls title during the 1880's when he was an outstanding figure in aquatic sports.

Day's Other Events.

A bit of keen, neighborly competition can be expected in the tandem single blades canoe; mixed tandem single blade canoes, and tandem single blade events in which the Washington Canoe Club will match strokes with the host club. The Potomac eight-oared crew reigns a slight favorite over its Old Dominion rivals.

Today's program:

3 p. m., novice single shell; 3:15, one-man single blade canoe; 3:30, swimming exhibition; 3:45, tandem single blade canoe; 4 p. m., championship single sculls; 4:15, diving exhibition; 4:30, four-oared gig; 4:45, four single blade canoe; 5 p. m., double sculls; 5:15, mixed tandem single blade canoes; 5:30, eight-oared shell; 5:45, Hawaiian surfboard exhibition; 6 p. m., quadruple sculls.

Sophs Giving Terp Stars A Fight

Candidates Drill Today Against Catholic U. at College Park.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

JACK FABER, Maryland's youthful head coach, did a bit of long range prognosticating yesterday while the thundering herd that is the Terrapin football squad slopped and sloshed through the ankle-deep mire of its practice field. Summing it all up, Mr. Faber thinks the Washington and Lee game will determine Maryland's fortunes for the year.

Getting by the Generals, who were upset by Maryland last season in the granddaddy of all major form reversals and who will be out for revenge, is the job Faber is prepping his men for at the moment. Another victory would, Faber opines, give the team the necessary impetus and confidence to carry it into the Navy game with something more than hope for a decent performance against Tom Hamilton's outfit.

Hoping on Majority.

Naturally, Faber is not predicting an undefeated, untied or unscored on eleven—not with Indiana, Florida and Georgetown scheduled in addition to the usual Southern Conference opponents. He wants to do better than last season, a feat that should not be difficult, and hopes to win the majority of his major games.

Faber's veterans are having rough sailing with the ambitious youngsters up from the '33 frosh squad and it would not be surprising if more than one letterman from last season got nothing more than a comfortable seat on the bench when the starting line-up is selected. Al Farrell, District product, Bill Guckeyson, Vic Willis and a few others not with the team last season, have been outstanding in practice and very much in the running for regular work.

Practice Maneuvers.

Mr. Faber will have an excellent opportunity of witnessing his rookies and veterans alike under fire today when Catholic University troops into College Park for a bit of practice maneuvers.

Maryland's back field, after all candidates have been looked at, probably will find Harold Sothoron at quarter, Nelson and Widmyer, halves, and possibly Guckeyson at full back. With Nelson and Widmyer to do the broken-field running, Widmyer punting also, Guckeyson to do the line-plunging and Sothoron the passing, the Terps will have a well-balanced bayy carrying unit. Defensively, especially against forward passing, however, this is not the ideal quarter, and Fober is rummaging about among the squad for men to overcome this.

Opens With St. John's.

Maryland opens with St. John's at College Park, September 29, the only "breather" scheduled. On successive Saturdays it stacks up against W. and L., Navy, Virginia Poly, Florida, Virginia, V. M. I., Indiana, Georgetown and Johns Hopkins.

Mack, 72, Looking to Future With Optimism; Declares Reported Lack of Talent "Nonsense"

Aged Pilot of A's Plans to Rebuild in 1935 for Third Time.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 14 (AP).—A half century of baseball behind him, Connie Mack, who says his interest in the game is greater than ever, today looked to the future through rose-colored glasses and talked of rebuilding his Athletics.

Prize optimist at 72, Mack is planning a comeback for his team next season. Twice before in his career he has rebuilt after breaking up his club, and he figures he can do it again.

His club could use additional pitching strength, a second baseman, a regular right fielder and a utility infielder, he said today. And these replacements he plans to obtain if possible.

"When times get better," he said, "attendance will get better, and I am facing the 1935 season without the slightest misgiving. People, hurt by the depression—and who wasn't?—have got to learn how to spend money again and they've got to learn to play again. That time is coming and baseball will find the uplift and feel it as will other businesses and amusements. Don't worry about baseball's future; I'm not."

CONNIE MACK.

Mack said he expected no change in admission prices, "but if prices are changed at all there'll be a revision upward, not downward."

A short time ago Jimmy Dykes, once a pupil of Mack and now manager of the Chicago White Sox, deplored the lack of young baseball players, insisting the sources of major league talent were "drying up."

Says Young Players Are Handicapped by Few Minor Leagues.

"Why, every day in Philadelphia I get at least 50 letters from young players wanting a tryout," he said. "There's only one trouble in this connection. Ten or 15 years ago we had 60 or so minor leagues and there were places to put these youngsters and develop them. Nowadays the number of minor leagues is comparatively so small, placing them is impossible.

"There are thousands of youngsters who might make the grade with proper training that we can not give the chance because of the small number of minor circuits. Sure, the demand is great, but the supply is greater if only we could take advantage of it."

Asked if he could foresee any deflation in baseball, he commented: "Deflation? I haven't heard of any. There'll be inflation if there is any change at all."

Night games, he said, "wouldn't be baseball at all. It's an afternono game, always has and, in my opinion, always will be. The game's the thing and it doesn't need any trimmings—and that goes for prices, too."

Stock Market Dips 2 Points In Wide Slump

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Stocks and grains set the pace today for a general decline in financial markets.

The share list was shaken out of a rut by the heaviest selling in about a month. Turnover expanded to 835,375 shares, compared with 415,660 in the preceding session.

Weakness centered in a few issues, notably Allied Chemical and United States Steel preferred, but the whole list was affected in some degree. Allied Chemical broke 8½ points to 117, a new low for the year, and Steel preferred touched the lowest price quoted for more than a year at 71, off 4.

Two Points Down.

The Standard Statistics Co. average declined 2 points to 67.3, only about a point above the 1934 low, touched July 26. Rail and utility shares, on the average, moved into new low ground.

The declines in grains and persistent heaviness in bond prices made holders of shares nervous, as did the breaks in a few prominent stocks.

It was asserted in brokerage quarters that some belated liquidation was taking place preliminary to October 1, when full Federal control of the security exchanges becomes effective, including operations of so-called "inside interests."

Losses of 1 to 3 points were numerous among active shares. Chemicals followed the decline of Allied Chemical, with Air Reduction, Du Pont and Union Carbide off 1⅝ to about 3 points at the finish. Recent inflation favorites dropped with the general list, American Smelting, U. S. Smelting and Cerro de Pasco losing more than a point each.

Also Are Losers.

American Can, American Telephone, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Santa Fe, Illinois Central, Pennsylvania Railroad, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Western Union were among shares showing losses of a point or more.

The stock exchange remained silent on the identity of about 35 corporations which failed to apply for registration of their securities.

The Securities and Exchange Commission extended the period for registration to September 22 and it was believed some last-minute registrations would be made.

European Use Of Sugar Rises

Consumption Is Increased to 6,736,004 Long Tons, Report States.

New York, Sept. 14.—Consumption of sugar in the 14 principal European countries during the first 11 months of the current crop year, September, 1933, through July, 1934, totaled 6,736,004 long tons, raw sugar value, as against 6,510,135 tons consumed during the similar period last season, an increase of 225,869 tons, or approximately 3.5 per cent, according to European advices received by Lamborn & Co.

Sugar stocks on hand for these countries on August 1, 1934, approximated 2,070,267 tons as compared with 2,304,505 tons on the same date last year, a falling off of 234,238 tons or approximately 10.2 per cent.

The 14 countries included in the survey are Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, France, Germany, Holland, Hungary, Irish Free State, Italy, Poland, Spain, Sweden and the United Kingdom.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Several of the leading steel producers, according to reports in the trade, have experienced a moderate increase in orders during the past week. Most of the new buying has been in miscellaneous lines of steel products.

State and municipal financing scheduled for next week amounts to $15,750,000, reports the "bond buyer." The total for the past week was $7,731,420.

A seat on the New York Cocoa Exchange has been sold for $3,000, an increase of $150 over the previous sale.

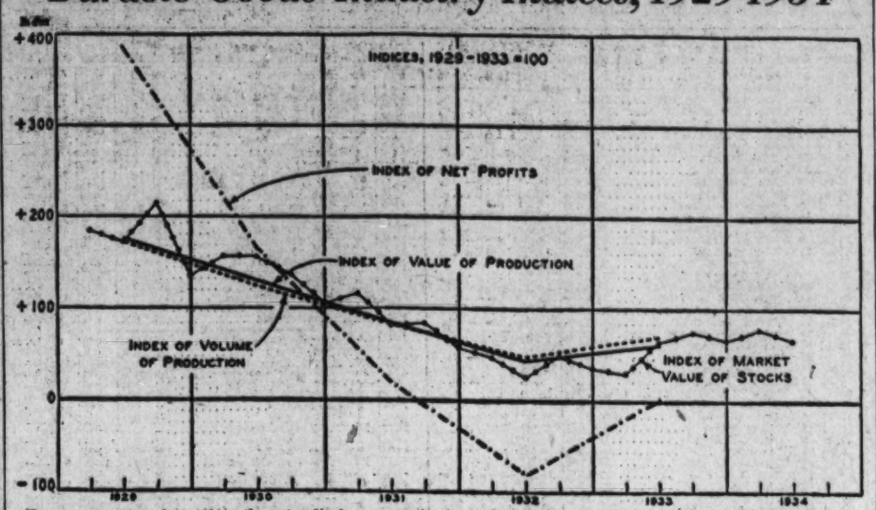
Durable Goods Industry Indices, 1929-1934



To compare trends, rather than to disclose quantitative relations, four indices of available statistics, reported for the durable goods industry, are charted above. While this study largely was confined to similar industrial groups of this major industry, it was found impracticable to base it on identical companies in each bracket. The relation of the index of net profits realized by the durable goods industry to the market values of its equity securities listed on this exchange compares with the relation of the indices of corporate earnings to stock price. The index of the market value of the listed junior securities of this industry held its rather close relationship to the indices of the value and of the volume of production of durable goods over the last five years; the latter indices, compared with the index of net profits, disclose the relatively higher rates of production that must be attained before net profits again can be won. The National City Bank of New York provided statistics on net profits; Col. Leonard P. Ayres, Cleveland, supplied data on production; listed stock market values for the durable goods industry were selected for the first days of March, June, September and December for each year.

The Markets at a Glance

What the Stock Market Did.

	Fri.	Thur.
Advances	43	164
Declines	538	224
Unchanged	120	162
Total issues	701	550

Stocks—Heavy selling shook stocks out of the rut, and a general decline followed. Losses averaged 2 points. Weakness entered in a few issues, but affected the entire list in some degree. Sales were the largest in about a month, and totaled 835,375 shares.

Bonds—Federal loans turned downward again and other categories displayed a heavier tone. There were a few firm spots, but the general trend was downward. Losses averaged three-tenths of a point. Sales totaled $16,725,000.

Curb—Active selling forced the curb market sharply lower, utilities, oils, metals, alcohols and specialties were pushed down. Sales volume was increased to 200,000 shares.

Wheat—Notable unsettlement of confidence in all grain futures hit wheat and sent prices to lower levels. September wheat sold at 1.03¼; December at 1.03¾.

Cotton—There was a further decline in cotton prices under moderate Southern selling and liquidation attributed to the unsettled developments in the textile strike. October closed at 12.79. The general market declined 6 to 15 points. December sold at 12.90.

Rubber—Crude rubber futures closed irregular, 25 to 30 points lower. September closed at 15.05; October, at 15.15.

Dollar—The United States dollar was lower on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $5.01⅛ to the English pound; 6.67⅝ cents to the French franc, and 40.47 cents to the German mark.

Wheat Tumbles As Faith Shifts In All Futures

Prices Touch Low Levels for Months; Declines Hit Other Grains.

Chicago, Sept. 14 (AP).—Notable unsettlement of confidence among holders of all grain futures led to general price tumbles today to low levels not reached before in many months.

Fear of enlarged imports of foreign grain into the United States was a conspicuous disturbing factor, and so too was weakness of securities at New York.

Numerous assertions were voiced by traders that the Washington Administration would be unlikely to take any measures to prevent foreign grain from flowing into the United States over the tariff wall.

Wheat Closes Unsteady.

Wheat closed unsteady at about the day's bottom quotations, 2⅛ to 2¾ under yesterday's finish; December new, 103¾-⅞; rye, showing 3⅝-4 cents decline; corn, 1¾ to 2⅛ down; December new, 76 to 76⅛; oats, 2 to 2⅜ off, and provisions varying from 12 cents setback to 17 cents gain.

Contributing momentum to grain price downturns were estimates current that so far this season imports of Canadian durum wheat into this country totaled 1,172,000 bushels, and that there have been liberal imports also of foreign rye, barley and oats.

Pronounced weakness of wheat and other grains developed quickly after a show of firmness at the start, the fact becoming evident that no vigorous buying support was likely to develop in any of the speculative pits.

Coarse Grains Heavy.

A heavy tone in coarse grains, especially oats, started corn downhill, with rye, barley and wheat following in rapid order. Action of oats prices pivoted mainly on reports of Argentine oats competing northward from New Orleans because of low rates for large shipments by river.

On the general down sweep of values, stop-loss selling of all grain futures took place as a result of inability or unwillingness that not a few traders showed to put up requisite additional funds to protect holdings. About the only important new buying which developed came from resting orders to purchase on declines to various set limits.

Adding to weakness of wheat were reports from Kansas City that farmers Southwest were preparing to plant a large winter wheat acreage, rains having insured a favorable seed bed for the coming crop.

(Associated Press.)

Gasoline—Markets are unsettled in many sections of the East, according to reports in refining circles. In some localities, it is said, regular gasoline is being sold as much as 2 cents a gallon below the posted price of third-grade material.

Wool—Raw prices as reflected in the Textile World price index numbers, showed the most decided drop in the year in August, declining 8 points, that publication will report in its September issue.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY The Law By Harry J. Tuthill

OH NO, DARLING, WE DID NOT BRING THE POLICE WITH US. THEY TAGGED ALONG AFTER IKE TOLD THEM ABOUT.
LISTEN, IKE BUNGLE, DO YOU CLAIM I GOT YOUR $210? DO YOU?
COME COME GEORGE, KINDLY DO NOT TRY TO PANIC ANYBODY WITH THAT INDIGNANT STUFF.
SUCH A LOW-BROWED MESS. UGH!
THIS MAN CLAIMS YOU TRIED TO GET PART OF THAT MONEY AWAY FROM HIM BEFORE HE LEFT HERE.
YOU ADMIT THAT, DON'T YOU GEORGE?
LISTEN IKE, DIDN'T YOU OFFER BEFORE THE SALE TO GIVE ME A SLICE OF WHATEVER I GOT YOU FROM WALL ST?
I DON'T REMEMBER SAYING VERY MUCH ABOUT THAT IDEA. I WAS VERY VERY EXCITED. ALSO, I SHOULD OF GOT MORE AND ANYHOW WHAT HAS IT ALL GOT TO DO WITH MY $210 THAT'S A.W.O.L?
I DON'T KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT YOUR $210. ALL I KNOW IS THAT FROM NOW ON I'LL FEEL THE SAME WAY ABOUT RELATIVES AS BASEBALL UMPIRES DO ABOUT POP BOTTLES.
HEY, HEY, WE HAVEN'T GOT TIME FOR ALL THIS STUFF. LISTEN, DO YOU WANT THIS MAN ARRESTED?
UNLESS I GET MY $210 RIGHT NOW, I'M NOT GOING TO STAND IN THE PATH OF JUSTICE.
LET'S ALL GO AND SEE THE CAPTAIN.
O.K. I KNOW HIM. LET'S GO.

On Horseback.

The statesman of the distant past was often forced to stand aghast. When he was called to Washington he found the trip but little fun. For him there were no speeding trains, no autos and no aeroplanes. He mounted on his trusty steed, with all the chattels he might need, with saddlebags and other traps, and charts and diagrams and maps, so he might safely find his way, nor lose himself, from day to day. The land was desolate and sere, save for the hardy pioneer, who seeing him, would swiftly run to his abode to get a gun. He stopped at night at village inns, whose bedrooms were like musty bins, the bedticks stuffed with bric-a-brac that left contusions on his back. And doubtless then the village clods assembled there to blow their wads for divers drinks that please the boys and lead them to indulge in noise; and so the weary statesman swore and wrung his hands and walked the floor. And when the dismal morning came he was so stiffened up and lame that he could scarcely mount his steed, and it was lame and gone to seed. But when his duty calls a man, he has to do the best he can. And so the statesman, sick and sore, jogged on his weary way some more. He forded rivers in their flood, and then was plastered up with mud, and when there blew the Summer gust, his mouth and eyes were filled with dust, the sun beat down upon his head until he wished that he were dead. And when at last he reached his goal, in Washington, a swampy hole, he was so sore for days on end he couldn't sit or bow or bend, his vitals all were out of line, he had a poultice on his spine, and one sad thought was in his dome—he'd have to make the journey home.

Tortured Man Escapes From Kidnapers' Car

Oklahoman Works Self Free After Refusing $50,000 Demand.

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 14 (AP).—Kidnaped, tortured and held for $50,000 ransom, H. D. Snell, 42, of Cordell, Okla., was freed accidentally today when his abductors' automobile, bounding along a highway north of San Antonio, threw him through a door he had managed to open.

He lay unconscious for several hours on the unpaved road until a special policeman saw him and took him to police headquarters. There he told how the kidnapers choked him, stepped on his neck and poked pistols in his side. They did not take $56 in his pockets.

Gus Jones, a Department of Justice agent who aided in the solution of the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil millionaire, a year ago, questioned Snell briefly, then sent him to a hotel to sleep. Jones later resumed his questioning behind closed doors. The department likely will handle the investigation because Snell's transportation from one State to another involved a Federal statute.

Snell said he recently had found two demands for $10,000. One was tacked to his barn and the other came through the mails. They were signed, "Blackie."

He said two masked men seized him yesterday morning near his home and drove him away in his automobile. Two more men joined them at Wichita Falls, Tex., and the four began torturing him, demanding at the same time that he sign a note or check for $50,000.

When he resisted and refused to "sign anything," the two men who abducted him from Cordell drove him away in his car again.

While lying in the rear of the automobile early this morning, Snell reached up in an effort to keep his head from bouncing on the floor. He said he felt a lever of a door and, under the pressure of his grasp, it gave and the door opened. A lurch of the car threw him to the road. He said he did not know what happened to his abductors.

Mary Fontaine Is Secretly Sent To New Hideout

Tri-State Gang Witness Removed From Women's Bureau by Police.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Fontaine, 31, principal State witness in the recent tri-State gang trials in Richmond, has been secretly removed from the Women's Bureau, where she has been kept in fear of reprisals of henchmen of the two gangsters against whom she testified.

Detectives questioned concerning her whereabouts, steadfastly denied knowing anything of a transfer. "She is in a place where she can be summoned if wanted," was the answer to persistent attempts to ascertain her new location.

She is believed to have been taken from the Women's Bureau some time during the past two weeks and transferred to the home of relatives in Canada. Ill health, caused by an attempt on her life by members of the gang, was said to have necessitated a change of location.

During the recent trials Mrs. Fontaine declared she intended returning to her mother's home in Canada as soon as she was released. Officials countered this by saying that the trials had not really been completed until a pending application for a new trial by two of the gang members has been disposed of.

Mrs. Fontaine was shot in Upper Darby, Pa., last spring when she refused to take part in the gang's holdup plans. She was the alleged sweetheart of Jerry Reid, alias Phillips, slain here by a policeman.

Hopkins Holds Drought Hides Out of Market

Manufacturers Persuade Him Not to Turn Stock Into Shoes.

Protests of private business forced a retreat yesterday in the plan of Harry Hopkins, Federal emergency relief administrator, to make up several million hides from slaughtered drought cattle into shoes and other articles of apparel for distribution to the unemployed.

He announced, after a long conference with protesting shoe manufacturers, that he would hold these hides off the market until they can be absorbed in an orderly way.

"I am convinced," Mr. Hopkins said, "that it is to the interest of the Government that the hides not be sold or processed at this time."

The amount of hides now under FERA control was not indicated.

This decision was made after a conference between Mr. Hopkins and Roger Selby, president of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers Association; Fred A. Miller, vice president; J. O. Ball, secretary, and Charles F. Johnson, of the Endicott-Johnson Co., shoe manufactureres.

Mr. Johnson later expressed complete satisfaction with the announcement, saying, "it is exactly what we wanted."

Shoe manufacturers reported that numerous plants had closed down due to demoralization of the market because of the possibility of Government processing and manufacture of shoes from the drought hides.

Recently the RFC set aside $10,000,000 to stabilize the hide market which went to pieces over the prospect of an influx of additional hides from the drought cattle.

Accused Preacher in Sanatorium.

Suit Balks Allred's Governorship Bid

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 14 (AP).—An order restraining Democratic party officials from certifying the name of James V. Allred to the Secretary of State as the partys' nominee for Governor was issued here today by District Judge W. W. McCrory in a suit brought by District Attorney Walter Tynan and Joe Burkett, San Antonio attorney.

Allegations of excessive campaign expenditures were understood to form the basis of the suit, which was filed in the name of the State of Texas on the relation of District Attorney Tynan.

Papers in the suit were withdrawn immediately after filing.
